DULLES TELLS REDS TO END AGGRESSION IN INDOCHINA OR FACE 'UNITED ACTION'

SAYS U.S. FAVORS TAKING SERIOUS RISKS TO SAVE SOUTHEAST ASIA

Declares Loss of Area Would Be Grave Threat to Free World —Against Recognizing Red China.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 30—In a speech bearing the stamp of White House authority, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles called last night for "united action"—although it might involve "serious risks"—to prevent "imposition on Southeast Asia of the political system of Communist Russia and its Chinese Communist ally."

Dulles, in a major foreign policy address to the Overseas Press Club of America, declared Red China will not receive diplomatic recognition from the United States nor gain admittance to the United Nations with American approval.

Chinese and Russian propagandists have made clear their purpose to dominate southeast Asia, the "rice bowl" of the Asiatic world, Dulles said. He pointed out the military importance of the area, affecting the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand.

He recalled that in this regard President Eisenhower had asserted the Korean armistice would be a fraud if it merely released aggressive armies for attack elsewhere.

Restates Warning.

"I said last September that if Red China sent its own army into Indochina, that would result in grave consequences which might not be confined to Indochina," the Secretary continued in evident amplification of his much discussed policy of "swift retaliation" against Red aggression at places of our own choosing.

"Recent statements have been designed to impress upon potential aggressors that aggression might lead to action at places and by means of Free World choosing," Dulles said with heavy emphasis, "so that aggression would cost more than it could gain."

The facts are, he said, that Red China has not openly invaded Indochina in the face of that implication although it has "stepped up" support of aggression.

"Under all the circumstances it seems desirable to clarify further the United States position," Dulles continued.

"Imposition on southeast Asia of the political system of Communist Russia and its Chinese ally, by whatever means, would be a grave threat to the whole free community.

Taking of Risks.

"The United States feels that the possibility should not be passively accepted, but should be met by united action. This might involve serious risks. But these risks are far less than those that will face us a few years from now if we dare not be resolute today.

"The free nations want peace. However, peace is not had

THRONE MISSING, ARCHANGEL GETS ONE FIT FOR QUEEN

"Somebody stole the archangel's throne" was the frantic cry of members of the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis today when they learned that the "throne," traditionally occupied by Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman at the club's annual gridiron dinner, had disappeared—and only two days before the dinner was scheduled.

Mrs. Sayman, as "archangel," presides over 200 "angels," so described because they pay $60 a plate instead of the $20 charged ordinary diners at the affair, whose proceeds go to Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital.

There was considerable scurrying about when the florist with whom the ornate chair had been left after last year's dinner reported it was nowhere to be found.

Then somebody with the right connections phoned the Veiled Prophet of Khorassan—or at least one of his agents—so at this year's dinner and show, at Hotel Jefferson Thursday night, Mrs. Sayman will be seated in none other than the throne customarily used by the Veiled Prophet Queen at the Prophet's annual ball in October.

WILSON SAYS AID MAY BE HUNTING KEY BIRD IN ARCTIC

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said today Assistant Secretary John A. Hannah has flown to the Arctic in his capacity as American chairman of the joint United States-Canadian defense board.

This was his serious answer to a question at a news conference. Wilson had been asked why Hannah had gone to the North Pole and he joked in reply:

"Maybe he has gone up there to find the North American key bird."

This was a reference to an Air Force joke, tried on all newcomers to the Arctic regions. The freshmen are told to go out and look for the key bird. When they ask what it is, they are told that it is the bird that flies over the North Pole crying "keyrismas, how cold it is!"

WILSON'S STORY EXPLAINS REASON FOR DEFENSE OF TV

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson interrupted photographers at his press conference today to tell them a story:

In Detroit recently, he parked his car on a lot. The attendant asked if he were not the Secretary of Defense.

"I admitted it," Wilson said.

"Do you mind if I tell you something" the attendant asked. "You look a lot better on television than you do in real life."

DOLAN TESTIFIES, ONLY WITNESS IN OWN DEFENSE IN PERJURY TRIAL

Asserts He Carried Suitcase Into Station When Kidnaper Hall Was Taken In, and Put It in Back Room.

By JAMES A. KEARNS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 30—Elmer Dolan, suspended St. Louis policeman, took the witness stand in his own defense today at his trial on a charge of perjury before a jury in United States District Court.

Dolan was called to the stand by his attorney, Mark M. Hennelly, of St. Louis, after the Government concluded its direct evidence at 2:25 p.m. The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow, following argument by council, and the reading of the court's instructions.

The defendant, charged with making a false statement to a federal grand jury investigating the missing portion of the Bobby Greenlease ransom, testified he carried one of two suitcases containing ransom cash into the Newstead Avenue Police Station last Oct. 6. That was after he and Lt. Louis Shoulders arrested Carl Austin Hall, the kidnaper-killer. Lt. Shoulders is also under a charge of perjury, and is scheduled for trial here next month.

Under Shoulder's Orders.

"After Lt. Shoulders got out of the machine with Hall in front of the station, he instructed me to get a suitcase and a briefcase out of the back of the car," Dolan told the jury.

"I got the suitcase, carried it in and placed it in the back room," Dolan testified.

Asked if he could identify which of the two cases he carried into the station, the defendant said he could not.

Asked if he saw Lt. Shoulders with a suitcase "before or after Hall was locked up," Dolan said he could not definitely fix the time.

He then told of returning to the Town House, Pershing avenue and Union boulevard, where Hall had been arrested, and getting a third suitcase, a revolver and other personal effects of the killer.

The defense rested its case following Dolan's 32 minutes on the witness stand. He was the only defense witness.

In a brief opening statement, before Dolan took the stand, Hennelly emphasized that the young officer was a subordinate, and acted under the orders of Lt. Shoulders on the night of Hall's arrest.

Police Clerk's Testimony.

Testimony which contradicted Dolan's account, both today and before the grand jury, was given earlier today by Walter McDowell, clerk at the Newstead Avenue Station, who said Dolan carried a green metal suitcase into the station on the night of Oct. 6, one hour and a half after Hall was booked.

McDowell said he was sitting at the switchboard and typewriter desk when Shoulders and Dolan entered with Hall. Following the booking, which the witness said was prolonged because Hall had about $700 in currency that had to be counted, Shoulders talked with Dolan briefly, then went into his office.

"Did you see any suitcases, a black one or a green one like these?" Assistant United States Attorney Kenneth West asked the witness, pointing to the ransom-money suitcases, which are on exhibit in the courtroom.

"No, there was a valise in front of the booking desk, but no black or green cases."

The witness, in reply to questions, said he had a clear view of the booking and at one point he

CONGRESS VOTES EXCISE TAX CUTS, PRESIDENT MAY SIGN TOMORROW

House Passes Measure 395 to 1, Senate 72 to 8 — Republicans Expect Increase in Consumer Buying.

(Roll Call on Page 2A).

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Congress today rushed to President Eisenhower a bill cutting a broad range of excise taxes by $999,000,000 a year—the first such general reduction in 30 years.

The Senate completed congressional action on the measure soon after the House passed it by a 395-1 vote. A conference committee from the two Houses finished the job of compromising Senate and House versions of the bill only yesterday.

The count in the Senate was 72 to 8. Both Houses voted by roll call.

The reduction will take effect Thursday if President Eisenhower signs the bill tomorrow, as he is expected to do. Republican leaders at the Capitol freely predicted the President would give his approval although the Administration has not been happy about the big loss of revenue.

Has Little Choice

However, Mr. Eisenhower has little choice because G.O.P. House leaders who originated the bill included in it extension of 1951 excise increases which will save $1,077,000,000 in the next year. That is more money than the cuts will cost.

Automatic reductions of these taxes will take place Thursday unless the President acts tomorrow.

Mr. Eisenhower counted on extension of those levies in figuring his budget for the new financial year starting July 1.

But he did not figure on any excise cuts. Thus the net effect is a one-billion-dollar boost in the $2,900,000,000 deficit already forecast by the President for the next year.

Just before the House vote, Speaker Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, told reporters he is confident President Eisenhower will sign the bill tomorrow.

In a brief debate, House Democrats needled Republicans with the contention that the final version of the bill, written by a Senate-House Conference Committee yesterday, includes many provisions supported by Democrats but opposed by Republicans when the original measure was before the House.

Quotes Republicans.

Representative Eberharter (Dem.), Pennsylvania, said Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has been saying the tax cuts would "ruin the country" but he added that Secretary of Commerce Weeks said over the weekend "the excise tax cuts would help bail out the Eisenhower Administration by providing a stimulus to business."

Congressional G.O.P. leaders foresaw a boost for the national economy, currently undergoing a dip, from tax cuts on stoves, refrigerators and other household appliances, movie and other admissions, furs, jewelry, handbags and luggage, cosmetics, sporting goods, passenger fares, telephone bills, telegraph charges, mechanical pens and pencils, cameras and film, lighters, and electric light bulbs.

Economists expect consumer buying to be stimulated when price cuts show up on many of these items in stores Thursday, accompanying the tax reductions, or shortly thereafter. One fairly general exception to the probable lowered prices may be movie tickets.

The bill would also extend for one year, to April 1, 1955, present excise rates on cigarettes, automobiles, gasoline, trucks, liquor, beer and wine. Under the old law these taxes would have dropped by $1,077,000,000 a year starting Thursday.

FARM PRICES DROP 0.8 PCT. IN MONTH UP TO MID-MARCH

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported today that farm product prices declined eight-tenths of 1 per cent between mid-February and mid-March. This was the second consecutive month of decline, the prices having dropped nearly one-half of 1 per cent in February.

Lower prices for eggs, milk, hogs, potatoes and butterfat were primarily responsible for the decline. These decreases were only part offset by higher prices for beef cattle, commercial vegetables, cotton, lambs, wheat and soy beans.

The mid-March farm price level was 2.96 per cent below the level of a year ago, and about 16 per cent below the record high set in February, 1951.

Prices paid by farmers for goods and services used in family living and in production increased about one-third of 1 per cent between mid-February and mid-March. Higher food prices were primarily responsible.

EISENHOWER CALLS FOR TARIFF CUTS TO EXPAND WORLD TRADE, CREATE JOBS AND STRENGTHEN U.S. DEFENSE

SYMINGTON SAYS 'NEW LOOK' HAS PUT AIR FORCE 2 YEARS BEHIND

Charges 'Money Firsters' Have Refused to Spend Funds Voted, Have Juggled Figures on Appropriations.

Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30—Senator Stuart Symington, (Dem.), Missouri, demanded more information on the "new look" in an address to the Senate this afternoon. The American people, he said, "don't understand parts of it. Neither do I. Neither do many of my colleagues."

"This lack of understanding," he continued, "endangers the future security of the United States, because proper decisions cannot be made if the facts are not available."

Allied to the confusion over the "new look," according to Symington, is the lack of information in the Congress about nuclear weapons. In the absence of information about the hydrogen bomb, as well as our other atomic weapons, the Congress, and particularly the armed services committee of the Senate and House, are unable to determine whether "current strategic and logistic planning recognizes the rapid changes in military strategy required by the ever more rapid developments in the quantity and size of nuclear weapons."

"In my opinion," Symington declared, a carefully made study by Congress "would present the American taxpayer with far more savings than any plans recently advanced for tax reduction."

Recalls Air Force Cut.

Symington commented on the "bitter opposition of the new inexperienced Pentagon civilian chiefs" that Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, former chief of staff of the Air Force, ran into when he "stressed to the Congress the importance of security as against money."

"Acceptance by the Congress last year," he continued, "of the wishes of the 'money first' men in the Pentagon even led the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, to say publicly that, 'they started to coast before they reached the top of the hill.'"

In spite of claims by the Administration that "the allocation of future defense dollars represented a major shift in emphasis to more recognition of air power," Symington declared that "now the Air Force program is aimed at attaining 137 wings, including exactly the same number of combat wings—126—as in the 143-wing air force, but not until 1957 instead of 1955."

As a result, Symington said, "our own Air Force units—Air Force, Navy and Marine—will not be 50 per cent jet-powered until 1957—three years from now." In contrast, Symington quoted the Chief of Staff of the Air Force to the effect that the Soviet air force "is now more than one-half jet-equipped."

Air Power Funds.

Symington deplored the fact that next year's appropriations for the Air Force are being held down to $11,200,000,000. He pointed out that the estimate made by the previous Secretary of Defense, Robert A. Lovett, of the level off cost of maintaining a 143-wing air force would be about 16 billion dollars.

While some trimming of this

LONDON, March 30 (AP).

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL disclosed today a second way in which Britain and presumably other nations, can detect atomic explosions up to half way around the world.

Speaking in the House of Commons about American H-bomb tests, Churchill said:

"Our instruments, which are highly developed, of course recorded the explosion last Friday as soon as sound waves or pressure waves reached us."

The most commonly known method of detecting distant nuclear explosions is by gathering of radioactive particles from the atmosphere, usually by planes.

CHURCHILL BACKS H-BOMB TESTS BY U.S. IN PACIFIC

Calls Weapon Greatest Deterrent to War, Rejects Demands to Call for a Halt.

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today threw his support behind the United States hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific and said American possession of the H-bomb "provides the greatest possible deterrent against the outbreak of a third world war."

Addressing a House of Commons deeply concerned over the threat to humanity from hydrogen warfare, Churchill rejected Laborite demands that he try to persuade the United States to halt further H-bomb tests. He said:

"We should be doing a great disservice to the free world if we sought in any way to impede the progress of our American allies in building up their overwhelming strength in the weapon which provides the greatest possible deterrent against the outbreak of a third world war."

He said there is no foundation for fears that the hydrogen tests would get out of control and cause widespread injury or death in the Pacific. He assured the House United States authorities "will continue to take most rigorous precautions to minimize the risks involved" and rejected Laborite demands for international consultation on control over future tests.

He said restrictions imposed by United States law would make such control impracticable.

"Even if this were not so, I should not myself be ready to propose it," he said. "We have no power to stop this.

". . . I can say from our own scientific knowledge that there is no foundation for the suggestion that these explosions are incalculable in the sense that those making the tests are unable to set limits to the explosive power of the bomb or to calculate in advance what the main effects will be."

Churchill acknowledged that Britain had not been consulted about details of the American H-bomb tests and said, "I am sure that consultation is to the advantage both of Great Britain and the United States."

No Reason for Concern Over March 1 Explosion, Strauss Says — New Blast Set Off.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson today described the results of the recent hydrogen bomb tests as "unbelievable."

At the same time, Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said he saw no reason for concern over the unexpected force of the monster March 1 hydrogen explosion.

Strauss, just back from the Pacific atomic testing grounds, made the statement to reporters at the White House after conferring with President Eisenhower for an hour.

The AEC chairman gave the President an eyewitness account of the latest hydrogen explosion in the Pacific area, touched off last Friday, and also reported on the shattering March 1 blast.

"Is there any reason for concern over the unexpected force of the first (March 1) test?" a reporter asked him.

"I haven't any," Strauss replied.

A member of Congress has suggested that that explosion got out of control. The President himself told a press conference last week that something must have happened at the March 1 test that surprised and astonished the scientists who conducted it.

Witnessed Blast Friday.

Strauss witnessed the hydrogen explosion which the AEC announced last night was touched off last Friday. He was not on hand for the March 1 explosion, but presumably got a detailed report on it while he was in the Pacific testing area.

To a barrage of questions about the nature of his report to Eisenhower, Strauss replied:

"I won't have anything further to say now." He declined to amplify that statement. He also declined to say whether Mr. Eisenhower discussed with him the feasibility of making a public statement on whether the United States has a hydrogen bomb which could be delivered anywhere in the world.

Representative Cole (Rep.), New York, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said on March 16 that this country does have such a bomb and that it could be delivered anywhere.

Strauss declined to comment on whether further hydrogen blasts are planned in the Pacific at this time.

Tests 'Successful.'

Asked whether the first two tests in the current series—the one on March 1 and the one last Friday—were successful, Strauss replied that they have been successful "in that they reveal the information the scientists set out to obtain."

Strauss carried into Mr. Eisenhower's office a large map of the Pacific testing area and was spreading it out on the

Special Message Proposes Gradual Removal of Walls 'With Full Regard for Our Own Interests.'

(Text on Page 8A).

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30—President Eisenhower told Congress in a special message today that "the United States must take the initiative" in lowering the unjustifiable trade and currency barriers of the world.

The 4500-word message was based substantially on the majority recommendations of the 17-man Commission on Foreign Economic Policy, headed by Clarence Randall of Chicago, president of the Inland Steel Co.

Interlocks Policies.

The President interlocked the American foreign economic policy with the national defense program and asserted that "if we fail in our trade policy, we may fail in all." He added:

"Our domestic employment, our standard of living, our security and the solidarity of the free world—all are involved.

"For our own economic growth we must have continuously expanding free markets; for our security we require that our allies become economically strong. Expanding trade is the only adequate solution for these two pressing problems confronting our country."

Emphasizing the urgency of the problem, the President said:

"Together we and our friends abroad must work at the task of lowering the unjustifiable trade barriers—not all at once but gradually and with full regard for our own interests. In this effort the United States must take the initiative and in doing so, make clear to the rest of the world that we expect them to follow our lead."

11 Major Recommendations.

The major recommendations and items of a "middle road" program, which he called the "minimum" required for American participation in increasing world trade were:

1. Three-year extension of the present reciprocal trade agreements law, with retention of the Republican sponsored "peril point" and "escape clause" amendments.

2. Authority for the President to reduce present tariff rates, through trade agreements negotiations on selected commodities, by not more than 5 per cent annually during the next three years.

3. Revision of the "Buy American Law," enacted in the 1930s depression, to give the President authority to exempt from the present law those foreign bidders whose nations treat our bidders on an equal basis with their own nationals. This recommendation stated, however, that the "discretionary authority must be continued to permit special consideration in Government procurement for the requirements of national security, for the problems of small business and of areas where persistent and substantial unemployment exists."

4. New legislation for simplification of commodity definitions, of classification of rates and methods of evaluation of imports.

Changes in Gatt Agreement.

5. Renegotiation of the 1948 general agreement on tariff and trade, usually known as Gatt, to confine its operations to sponsoring multilateral trade agreements which would be passed on by the legislatures or appropriate authorities of the various countries. Mr. Eisenhower promised that if this basic agreement is rewritten he will submit it to Congress for approval. The present agreement has not been approved by Congress. Randall told reporters that under the Eisenhower plan, ratification of the new agreement would require a two-thirds majority of the Senate, as a treaty.

6. Notice to our Allies—and to Republican Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin—that an increase in East-West trade in non-strategic goods between this country and our Allies; on the one hand, and Soviet Russia and its satellities, on the other, "should not cause us undue concern."

6. A grant of a 14 percentage point differential on the regular corporation income tax rate to American companies and their foreign subsidiaries on their profits made in foreign countries. This recommendation is included in the tax revision bill that was recently passed by the House.

7. A promise that the President will recommend to the next

Mother Accused of Arson to Get Public Sympathy at Christmas

FLINT, Mich., March 30 (AP)—A 34-year-old mother of eight stood accused today of ordering two sons to burn down their rented home last December "so the family will have a better Christmas."

Mrs. Charles Larkin, of Swartz Creek; her eldest son, Vernon, 18, and a younger son were arrested on charges of arson. Mrs. Larkin and Vernon were held under $500 bonds pending examination after arraignment in municipal court yesterday. The name of the juvenile, in custody of juvenile court, was not disclosed.

State Trooper Richard Dalton said Vernon admitted setting the fire, which destroyed the house.

The object, Dalton said, apparently was to receive gifts from a sympathetic public imbued with the Christmas spirit.

The house burned last Dec. 13, while the Larkin family, with the exception of the two boys, was at church.

Police got their first tip last week, when the younger boy was picked up by police after running away from home. The boy told them, Dalton said, about burning the house.

Christmas for the Larkins turned out to be a poor one. The mother and children were given shelter in the Genesee county juvenile home. There were a few gifts of clothing, and the only Christmas packages came from church and charity groups.

Indians Go to Court, Get Paleface Ousted From Their Reservation

MASSENA, N.Y., March 30 (UP)—The Appellate Division has upheld Indian chiefs who went on the warpath when a white man settled on their reservation.

The decision, handed down yesterday, reversed a ruling by Supreme Court Justice Ellsworth N. Lawrence permitting a non-Indian to reside on the St. Regis Indian Reservation.

The case involved Michael Checkman, a white man, who married Minnie Grey, an Indian. The couple tried to set up housekeeping on the reservation.

The chiefs tried to evict Checkman under a law which says "no person shall settle or reside on any lands owned or occupied by any nation, tribe or band of Indians except the members of such nation, tribe or band."

The Appellate Division said Checkman had a legal right to marry the Indian girl, but no right to live with her on the reservation.

DULLES THOUGHT TO BE HINTING AT U.S. JOINING IN INDOCHINA FIGHT

U.N. Sources Believe He Was Preparing Public for Possibility of Another Korea-Style War.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 30—What did John Foster Dulles mean when he urged last night that the free world must join in "united action" to prevent Indochina from succumbing to the Communist Chinese, whatever "serious risks" are involved in such a policy?

Informed sources here believe that the Secretary of State was trying to prepare American public opinion for the cruel possibility that if worst comes to worse American boys might one day have to fight in Indochina.

American policy, as it is understood here, is to try to keep France fighting for another year or two while a really potent Viet Nam army is organized from native forces. By that time, it is hoped, the French and native forces will be strong enough so that they will have established their military superiority over the Communists even though they will not have won a clear-cut victory. And that will be the time when a negotiated settlement can be worked out safely with the Communists.

Set Against Deal.

Dulles made it clear last night that the United States is going to the Geneva conference on April 26 dead set against any negotiations at this time which the French and Red Chinese both want.

For one thing, the United States would not tolerate admitting Red China to membership in the U.N. whatever the Reds promised in return. For another thing, the United States is convinced that any deal with the Chinese Communists at this point would simply hand them Indochina on a platter. And, as Dulles stressed, we have too big a stake in that country and the rest of southeast Asia to let it go Communist.

But the French are getting very war weary after years of combatting the Communists in the endless jungle struggle and there is always the chance that they might decide one day to drop out. If this should happen, the United States apparently would try to get the U.N. to take action on Indochina—action up to the ultimate of carrying on the struggle with the United States and its allies fighting together under the U.N. flag as in Korea.

Big-Scale Korea.

What disturbs experienced observers here is the feeling that if American troops should be committed on the anti-Communist side the Red Chinese would almost certainly commit their troops on the other side and then we would have another Korea—or worse—on our hands. Worse, possibly, because it might not be possible this time to prevent it from exploding into an atomic world war.

Equally disturbing is the criticism from Asian sources here of French "stupidity and shortsightedness" in Indochina. An Indian official said privately the other day: "The natives in Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos will never put their hearts into the war until the French give them something to fight for—complete independence."

PEGGY ANN GARNER FINED $55 ON TRAFFIC CHARGES

NEW YORK, March 30 (UP)—Peggy Ann Garner, 22-year-old blond star of "The Moon is Blue," pleaded guilty today for failure to answer three traffic tickets and was fined $55 by Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh.

Her attorney, William J. Calise, explained that she received two parking tickets when she not in New York and that she was in Nova Scotia when the summons were returnable.

It was explained that someone must have borrowed her car, a green 1954 Jaguar and parked it without her knowledge.

TWO QUAKES FELT IN HAWAII

HILO, Hawaii, March 30 (AP)—The island of Hawaii was rocked today by two strong earthquakes and early reports said the second caused considerable minor damage. The first shock was at 6:30.06 a.m. (10:40 a.m. St. Louis time) and the second at 8:42 a.m.

The center of the quakes was believed to be about six miles from the observatory of the slopes of Mauna Loa volcano. They apparently were not felt in Honolulu, which is an Oahu island.

Senate Roll Call On Excise Cuts

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP)—The 72-to-8 roll call vote by which the Senate approved and sent to the White House a one billion dollar cut in excise taxes:

For the bill—72.

TORONTO SUBWAY OPENS, BUILT AT COST OF $58,500,000

TORONTO, Ont., March 30 (AP)—The whistles of 100 trains today signaled the opening of Toronto's slubway, a $58,500,000-dollar project.

Ontario Premier Leslie Frost and Mayor Allan Lamport pulled the switch that gave the green light for the line to start operating.

Teh opening ceremonies were at Davisville station, one of 12 along the 4½-mile route from Union Station near Lake Ontario northward to Eglinton avenue.

Two hours later the subway was opened to the public.

The trains, of two to six cars each, will run 2½ minutes apart and make the entire run in 18 to 20 minutes. Streetcars now average 35 to 40 minutes for the same run. The subway is geared to handle 40,000 passengers an hour. Streetcars on two lines it displaces could take only 13,000.

HAWAII-ALASKA STATEHOOD DEBATE LIMITED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Senate today agreed to limit debate on Hawaii-Alaska statehood legislation beginning Thursday.

Proposed by Majority Leader Knowland (Rep.), California, and agreed to without objection, the agreement could result in a vote on the combined bill by the close of Thursday's session. It provides for a maximum of 90 minutes debate on any amendment or motion to the bill and would limit debate on the bill itself to one hour. The time would be divded equally between sponsors and opponents.

So far, opponents to the statehood legislation have indicated they plan to offer only one amendment—commonwealth status as an alternative to statehood—and, if that is defeated, will seek to send the bill back to committee.

GEN. PARTRIDGE TAKES OVER U.S. FAR EASTERN AIR FORCES

TOKYO, March 30 (UP)—Lt. Gen. Earle Partridge, who commanded the Fifth Air Force in the early days of the Korean War, returned to Korea today as new commander of the Far East Air Forces.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Anderson, present Fifth Air Force commander, accompanied Partridge from Tokyo. The new FEAF leader will spend two days in Korea.

Parted 39 Years, Seeks Divorce.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 30 (UP)—Joseph Jones filed suit yesterday for a divorce from his wife, Elmira. He said they were married in 1910, separated in 1915, and he hasn't seen her since.

VISHINSKY CASTS 58TH SOVIET VETO IN U.N. COUNCIL

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 30 (AP) — Andrei Y. Vishinsky cast the Soviet Union's fifty-eighth veto in the United Nations Security Council yesterday to block a Western demand that Egypt stop interfering with Israeli-bound cargoes in the Suez Canal.

Vishinsky's "no" vote in the 11-nation council was on a New Zealand resolution calling on Egypt to comply with a Security Council demand of 1951.

Vishinsky joined Dr. Charles A. Malik of Lebanon in voting against this proposal as he had done Jan. 22 in killing a Western Big Three plan to settle a Syrian-Israeli dispute over Jordan river water rights, in a way that Syria disliked.

The United States, Britain, France, Brazil, Denmark, Colombia, Turkey and New Zealand voted for the resolution, which New Zealand had introduced. Nationalist China abstained.

The resolution needed seven votes to pass—and had eight. But it could not pass in the face of a negative vote from any of the five permanent members of which the Soviet Union is one.

6 MAU MAU CHIEFS MEET BRITONS FOR PEACE TALKS

NAIROBI, Kenya, March 30 (UP)—Six chieftains of the terrorist Mau Mau came out of the jungle today for the first peace talks in ther year-old campaign to drive the white man from East Africa.

The chiefs met top British officials at a secret rendezvous arranged by "Gen. China," the captured native leader whose offer to mediate a surrender gave this colony its first hope of ending the anti-British attacks.

A cautiously worded announcement from the colonial government siad further talks would be held to arrange details of a cease-fire.

9 Were Aboard Flying Boxcar in Crash at Fort Bragg — Some Victims in Building.

FORT BRAGG, N.C., March 30 (AP)—A C-119 Flying Boxcar, carrying nine men, crashed in flames into a mess hall here today. The Air Force reported at least six men were killed and 12 injured.

The big plane, trailing smoke from its left engine, had just taken off from adjacent Pope Air Force Base for Louisville, Ky.

Witnesses said the pilot apparently was trying to land on a parade field when the plane struck the top of an officers quarters, snapped off a power pole, skidded across the parade ground and crashed through the mess hall.

The mess hall burst into flames.

The Ninth Air Force Public Information Office reported that four of the dead were on the plane and two were in the mess hall. Of the nine men on the plane, three soldier-passengers and the pilot were killed. At least seven of the injured were in the mess hall and a fireman was hurt fighting fire that followed the crash.

One member of the plane crew was unaccounted for and the Air Corps said it feared his body was in the wreckage. That would make a total of seven dead.

The plane was attached to the Thirty-seventh Troop Carrier Squadron at Stewart Air Force Base, Tenn. It carried an Air Force crew of four and five Army men, some of them members of the Eighty-second Airborne Division's paratroop maintenance company at Fort Bragg.

7 KILLED IN B-36 CRASH IN SPOKANE

SPOKANE, Wash., March 30 (AP)—Seven of the 10 men aboard were killed late yesterday in the crash of a B-36 bomber that fell seconds after take-off and burst into flames.

The plane hit the ground hard just off the runway at Fairchild Air Force Base, skidded through a small construction shed and quickly burned.

The three survivors crawled, stumbled or were thrown to safety.

The extent of their injuries could not be determined immediately nor could they say exactly how they got out alive. The cause of the crash was a mystery.

The $5,000,000 bomber with six piston and four jet engines was taking off just at sunset on a routine training mission.

Commander of the aircraft, Capt. Walter M. Koller, was among the survivors.

Capt. Koller is married to a former St. Louisan, the former Miss Hortense Peetz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Peetz, 3835 Federer place.

5 ENVOYS TO SEE DULLES TODAY ON 'UNITED ACTION'

Expected to Ask What Course U.S. Favors Against Reds in Southeast Asia.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP) — Five ambassadors arranged to call on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today, and there were indications of an intense desire for more information on what "united action" the United States favors to prevent Communist conquest of southeast Asia. Diplomats representing Britain, Italy, India, New Zealand and the Philippines had separate appointments.

In a speech last night Dulles warned of "grave danger" to the free world if Indochina and other southeast Asia nations fell under Communist control. To prevent this, he said, "united action" by freedom-loving nations was needed, but he did not spell this out.

British and French diplomats said they had no idea what specific "united action" Dulles had in mind. Dulles has not briefed anyone on this yet, they said.

The British Ambassador, Sir Roger Makins, undoubtedly was ready to talk over the matter. A Foreign Office spokesman in London said talks in the "usual way" undoubtedly would be held.

A New Zealand Embassy spokesman said it was likely Ambassador Leslie Munro would discuss Dulles's speech even though the appointment was made several days ago.

It seemed probable it also would be brought up by Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani, Philippine Ambassador Carlos Romulo and Indian Ambassador J. L. Mehta.

Senator Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, expressed pleasure over Dulles's speech. Knowland, who has cautioned against a "Far Eastern Munich," told reporters Dulles outlined a "flexible" plan whose details would depend on developments. He said, for instance, that there might be united action by this country, Australia and New Zealand in one set of circumstances, and with Korea and Nationalist China in another.

Senator Smathers (Dem.), Florida, said he would like to see Dulles go to Geneva with a "more open mind."

"To go into the meeting with views so dogmatic and unrealistic is just wasting everyone's time," he said. "I would suggest keeping our own counsel until we see what they are going to propose."

British Reported Anxious for Fuller Explanation.

LONDON, March 30 (UP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today Britain had been aware of the contents of Secretary of State Dulles's speech in advance of its delivery. However, British diplomats were understood to be anxious for a fuller explanation of what Communist moves in southeast Asia, and Indochina specifically, Dulles would expect to be met by "united action."

The British press commented on Dulles's admission that the policy he suggested "might involve serious risks."

The headline in Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express summed up the British view. It said: "Do We Face Korea No. 2?"

The Labor party newspaper, Daily Herald, wrote: "The Geneva conference on Korea and Indochina on April 26 was torpedoed in a non-appeasement speech by Mr. John Foster Dulles tonight."

The Daily Mail (Conservative) bannered: "Dulles—we must stop Reds" and added that Dulles had declared his firmest "no" to Red China's admission to the U.N.

French View Speech as Strong Warning to Chinese Reds.

PARIS, March 30 (AP) — A French Foreign Ministry spokesman said Secretary of State Dulles's address last night proved the importance the American people attach to the questions of southeast Asia and was a strong warning to Communist China.

The independent newspaper L'Aurore said Dulles "clearly recognized" that if the Geneva conference on Asian questions is a failure, France will not be expected to carry on the Indochina war with only her troops. "Secretary Dulles's speech, approved by President Eisenhower, is an assurance of relief," it continued. L'Aurore clearly implied the word relief was meant in the military sense.

Franc-Tireur, an anti-Communist paper, was less optimistic. It interpreted Dulles's speech as ruining French hopes that the United States would be prepared to offer much to China in return for helping quiet the Indochina war.

The fellow-traveling newspaper Liberation said Dulles seemed to want to save the rubber, tungsten and possibilities of a base in Indochina for eventual use against China. The real objective for France, it said, was to get out of a "ruinous affair."

WESTERN BIG THREE AGREE TO EXPAND RUSSIAN TRADE

Easing of Bar on Goods to Be 'Compatible With Security Requirements,' Says Communique.

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—The western big three agreed tonight to an expansion of trade with Soviet Russia "compatible with security requirements."

A joint communique, issued after a two-day conference of United States foreign aid administrator Harold E. Stassen and top British and French officials, said the three countries agreed to revise the regulations on doing business with Russia by "narrowing substantially their scope and increasing their effectiveness."

But at the same time, they ruled out any change in existing controls on trade with Red China and North Korea.

The British press has been campaigning for relaxation of controls on trade with the Soviet bloc. Their chief target was Stassen.

Text of Communique.

The text of the communique: "On March 29 and 30 exploratory discussions were held in London by representatives of the governments of France, the United States and Britain on the subject of East-West trade. At these meetings, the three governments exchanged views on the general aspects of this policy and found there was a wide area of agreement, providing a common basis for reviewing, in close co-operation with friendly countries, the existing controls inorder to encourage an expansion of trade compatible with security requirements.

"The three goverments will proceed to discuss the existing control arrangements with other friendly governments in the immediate future.

"The object of these discussions should be to refine these control arrangements by narrowing substantially their scope and increasing their effectiveness. Existing ocntrols on trade with Communist China and North Korea should be continued."

HOUSE GROUP APPROVES 3 TAFT-HARTLEY CHANGES

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP)—The House Labor Committee today approved three of President Eisenhower's proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley Act.

By a vote of 16 to 11, the Committee approved an amendment to require employers as well as union officers to file non-Communist affidavits.

By 20 to 5, it approved an amendment to bar recognition elections during a strike—for four months if requested by a rival union or for a year if requested by the employer. By 20 to 6, the committee approved an amendment to bar reopening of negotiatioons during a contract unless both parties agree or unless the contract contains a reopening clause.

EFFORT TO SEAT RED CHINA IN U.N. AGENCY BEATEN

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 30—A Russian move to seat Red China in the United Nations Economic and Social Council, was successfully opposed today by Preston Hotchkis at his first appearance as a member of the American delegation. He was backed by Nationalist China. Czechoslovakia supported Russia.

Hotchkis asserted "it would stultify the entire purpose of the U.N." to admit to its councils "a nation which has war as an instrument of its international policy."

Previously, Semyon T. Tsarapkin replacement of Nationalist Chinese delegates by representatives of Peiping, which he said were the real spokesmen for the Chinese people.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief American delegate, aroused Soviet and Czech delegates by denouncing "false propaganda" that the United States was preventing the attendance at U.N. meetings of representatives of nations "with ideologies with which we differ."

Lodge said five visas had been sought for representatives of organizations dominated by the Soviet Union, among them the Women's International Democratic Federation, the World Federation of Democratic Youth and the World Federation of Trade Unions.

Only one was refused, he continued. It was requested for Iraj Eskandary, an Iranian, by the youth organization. Lodge recalled that Eskandary had been sentenced to death for conspiracy to murder the Shah of Iran, is now a fugitive, and has been expelled from France.

"The headquarters agreement and our supplementary agreement with the secretary general last summer did not contemplate the admission of desperadoes and triggermen," Lodge said.

Jiri Nosek, Czech delegate, asked Lodge why Jan Dessau of France, another WFTU observer, had not received a visa. Lodge replied it had been issued this morning.

Semyon K. Tsarapkin, Russian representative, said he would make reply to Lodge's "slurring remarks" after studying a transcript. He said Lodge had put "a drop of venom" in the council deliberations.

MAYOR REJECTS FURTHER CURBS ON EARNINGS TAX BILL AT HEARING

Opposes Suggestion Part of Revenues Be Set Aside to Retire Bonds Issued for Civic Improvements.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30—Proposals for further restrictive amendments to the pending St. Louis earnings tax extension bill were flatly rejected today by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, who vigorously urged the Legislature to give St. Louis authority to continue the levy on a permanent basis and to permit the city to decide how the revenue should be spent.

One of the proposals suggested as the House Taxation and Revenue Committee opened hearings on the Senate-approved tax renewal measure was that the new earnings tax revenues be ear-marked in part for retirement of bonds issued to finance civic improvements in St. Louis.

Fears of Some Legislators.

The plan was proposed by State Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), St. Louis county, who told Mayor Tucker that many legislators fear that earnings tax funds will be used to increase salaries of city employes and create new jobs, instead of being used to rebuild the city.

Tucker declared he doubted the legality of such a proposal, pointing out that municipal bonds are secured by all the real and personal property in the city, and that the law requires that sufficient ad valorem taxes be levied to meet bond principal and interest payments.

In further answer, the Mayor pointed out that St. Louis's financial difficulties do not stem from inadequate bond retirement funds, but from the lack of sufficient general operating revenues.

At the conclusion of the three-hour hearing, Committee Chairman H. F. Holland (Rep.), Worth county, announced that opponents of the measure will be heard at 10 a.m. tomorrow. He said he hoped his committee will report the bill later tomorrow, so it will be ready for House action Thursday.

Jones, who was one of the attorneys for members of Local 688, AFL Teamsters Union in St. Louis, who unsuccessfully attacked the constitutionality of the present earnings tax in a test case, said he thought St. Louis is in dire need of a civic rehabilitation.

But Jones said he did not think earnings tax funds should be used for pay increases or to create new city jobs until bonds had been authorized to bring about needed improvements.

Opposes Another Amendment.

He asked the Mayor if he would object to another amendment providing that the tax would be automatically voided if the city increased salaries or established new jobs before $100,000,000 civic betterment bonds had been issued.

"I certainly would," Tucker replied. "It would be taking all discretion away from our Board of Aldermen. It would further remove home rule for St. Louis."

The Mayor also pointed out that the salaries of employes in city offices are not controlled by him, but by the St. Louis Civil Service Commission. He explained that the commission initiates the city pay plan, which must be approved or rejected by the Board of Aldermen in the form it is presented by the commission.

Mayor's Veto Power.

The St. Louis county legislator, pointing out that the Mayor has the power to veto such pay plans, asked Tucker if he would give the House his "personal assurance" that no city salaries would be raised and no new jobs created until the civic improvement bonds had been authorized.

"It would be unwise for me to make a promise of that kind," the Mayor answered. "As you may have seen, the aldermen have the power to override my veto. Besides, there is always the possibility that the people of St. Louis will not authorize the issuance of bonds."

Referring to the recent strike of St. Louis city electricians, Jones wanted to know whether the city during its settlement negotiations had agreed to increase salaries if the new earnings tax bill was passed by the Legislature.

"No such promise was made," Tucker replied with emphasis.

The Mayor, returning to the earmarking proposal, said he doubted that such an amendment would be legal for another reason. He pointed out that Gov. Phil M. Donnelly had called on the special session of the assembly to consider an earnings tax "for general revenue purposes" and not for bond retirement payments.

Under the state constitution, the Legislature may consider in special session only those subjects specially submitted by the Governor in his official call.

Earmarking Police Costs.

Tucker, however, said he would have no objection if the earnings tax revenues were earmarked for payment of the costs of operating the St. Louis police department, which would be a general revenue purpose.

The police department is under state control. The salaries of police officers and other employes are fixed by state law, but St. Louis must pay the bill. The present cost of the department is about $9,500,000 a year, or about $1,500,000 in excess of the annual amount obtained from the earnings tax.

Mayor's Opening Statement.

In his opening statement to the House committee, Tucker warned that St. Louis "can not limp along forever on temporary measures," but requires "an honest, effective and permanent solution to its long-standing financial ills."

He made a strong plea for elimination of a Senate amendment limiting the life of proposed new tax to three years.

With the city's present $8,000,000-a-year earnings tax expiring Thursday, Tucker declared that it is essential to the future welfare of St. Louis that this vital source of municipal operating revenue be renewed on a permanent basis.

The Mayor continued his fight for a permanent levy in the face of reports that there is a strong movement in the House to further restrict the time limitation to two years, or possibly to only one year. The House is expected to act on the city's vital revenue measure later this week.

Fear that the House might approve an even shorter time limitation increased late yesterday when the Taxation and Revenue Committee recommended for passage a bill calling for a legislative study of St. Louis's municipal government and its need for a permanent earnings tax.

The proposed study, which would duplicate two similar exhaustive surveys conducted in recent years, is likely to be used as an argument against a permanent earnings tax. Opponents of the tax are expected to contend that the levy should be continued for only a short time until the legislative inquiry is completed.

Warns of Delays.

But Mayor Tucker declared today that unless the earnings tax is renewed on a permanent basis, solution of the city's fiscal problems will be again postponed indefinitely.

"Meanwhile," he said, "the city's hands would be tied. We would be unable to engage in any long-range planning for municipal services and for maintenance and repair of existing facilities. Our hopes for a large bond issue to finance civic improvements would be shattered.

"And while St. Louis was compelled to mark time, other American cities will be going forward in providing modern day facilities and services that are essential to the continued growth and prosperity of a metropolitan center.

"St. Louis is still a great city with unlimited potentialities. But we can not limp along with temporary measures and hope to develop and prosper as we should."

The Mayor also urged removal of two other restrictive amendments which were adopted by the Senate. One would permit a referendum on a new earnings tax ordinance enacted by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, under authority of the proposed new state enabling act. The other cut the top permissible tax rate from 1 per cent to one-half of 1 per cent.

Charter Restriction.

Tucker pointed out that the St. Louis city charter does not now permit a referendum on a revenue ordinance of that kind. If the Legislature amends the city charter to that extent, he said, legal questions and time-consuming test suits will arise. Tucker also said an attempt to invoke the referendum provisions might result in suspension of the tax ordinance for a long period and deprive the city of needed revenue.

He opposed the tax rate limitation. Although the present rate is one-half of 1 per cent, the present state enabling act permits a rate up to 1 per cent if the board decided exemptions should be allowed.

At the conclusion of his testimony, the Mayor was asked by Jones if the St. Louis city administration had ever given consideration to a recommendation that the earnings tax be made a deduction from the state income tax. Tucker said it had not, but added he saw no objection to such action.

Charts on Cost Rise Offered.

St. Louis Comptroller Milton Carpenter presented charts showing how the cost of operating the city government has increased two and a half times during the last 15 years.

Charles E. Albanese, president of the Board of Aldermen, prefaced his testimony with the statement, "I am the Republican member of the city's board of estimate and apportionment."

He told the committee that inflation of the last few years has been such that the city's annual budget might well be $60,000,000 instead of $47,500,000 "if we had not constantly cut it here, there and somewhere else."

Alderman Louis G. Berra, Democratic majority floor leader of the board, informed the committee that the Aldermen unanimously indorsed the pending bill and urged extension of the city's authority for the levy.

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, Republican, during whose administration the city's first earnings tax was enacted, ridiculed the idea that the earnings tax might be used to create a new political machine in St. Louis.

He pointed out that the Mayor, since the advent of civil service, has only about 15 appointments to remunerative jobs at his disposal.

Leaders of Civic Progress, Inc., emphasized the importance of St. Louis being placed on a sound financial basis before the public improvement program can be undertaken.

The speakers included Powell B. McHaney, president of the Citizens' group and head of General American Life Insurance Co.; Edgar M. Queeny, board chairman of Monsanto Chemical Co.; former Judge James M. Douglas of the Missouri Supreme Court and Tom K. Smith, board chairman of Boatmen's Bank.

Also in attendance were John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic city committee, and Ancel A. Skaggs, chairman of the Republican city committee. The appearance of these St. Louis party leaders emphasized the bipartisan support for the tax renewal measure.

Survey Proposal Voted.

The taxation and revenue committee voted unamiously yesterday to report favorably the bill providing for a 12-man bipartisan committee of state legislators to study St. Louis's municipal government and its earnings tax needs.

It also approved another bill appropriating $40,000 in state funds to finance the survey. Both measures were introduced by House Speaker Lester A. Vonderschmidt of Mound City, and State Representative J. B. Moore of Hamilton, Republicans.

A joint resolution sponsored by Representative Francis M. O'Brien (Rep.), St. Louis, which sought to authorize a similar study by a 16-member commission appointed by the Governor, was killed by the committee.

THOMAS J. BOLAND NAMED ST. LOUIS PROBATE JUDGE

Democrat Succeeding Glendy B. Arnold Was One of Three Attorneys Nominated.

Thomas J. Boland, St. Louis attorney, was appointed late yesterday by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly as probate judge of St. Louis, under the non-partisan provisions of the Missouri Constitution. Boland, former clerk of the court, is a Democrat.

A state inheritance tax appraiser under probate court appointment since 1942, Boland succeeds former Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold, Democrat, who resigned effective last March 1. The salary of the office is $15,000 a year.

Arnold, 77 years old, retired from the court with a request, under a special judicial retirement act, that he be appointed a special commissioner or referee in the state courts for the rest of his life.

The new judge, 53 years old, lives at 4907 Maryland avenue. He was one of three St. Louis attorneys nominated by the Eighth Circuit Judicial Commission, a nomination committee created under the court plan.

The other two nominees were Franklin E. Reagan, 53, a former assistant attorney general of Missouri, and Adolph Thym, 50, now clerk of the probate court. Reagan is a Democrat and Thym was said to be an independent in politics.

Donnelly, in announcing Boland's appointment, would not say whether he was a Democrat or Republican. The Governor said he received letters recommending Boland from both Democrats and Republicans.

The appointment enables Boland to serve as probate judge for a term ending Dec. 31, 1956. Under the court plan he is entitled to seek retention in the office without opposition, for a full four-year term at the first general election held after he has served 12 months in the office. The first such election would be in November, 1956.

The statue under which Judge Arnold retired from the office would entitle him to retirement pay of $5000 a year, one-third of his judicial pay.

However the 1935 Legislature, which placed probate judges of St. Louis and Kansas City under the retirement act, failed to amend an appropriation act to authorize state payment of retirement pay to such judges. The state has taken the position Judge Arnold would have to wait until the 1955 legislative session, to obtain his retirement pay.

Frank Birkner, a farmer, was found hanged in the hayloft of a barn on his farm near New Athens, Ill., yesterday. His wife, who found the body, told deputy sheriffs her husband had suffered a nervous breakdown a month ago. He was 58 years old.

JOSEPH SESTRIC'S 'SKID' ROW SOLVES PIGEON PROBLEM

Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric is putting "skids" under the City Hall pigeons, thus improving the appearance of the three main entrances to the building.

The "skids" are pieces of sheet metal which city workmen are placing at a sharp angle over ledges inside the arched entranceways. These ledges, protected from the weather, have long been favorite roosting places. Sestric's "skids" make roosting impossible in the entrances, as many a landing pigeon discovered when skidding off a newly covered ledge.

There are many other pigeon parking places, on the ornate roof and the upper window ledges. Sestric, having evicted the pigeons of the entranceways, is hopeful of coping with the larger problem. Observers think the Public Safety Director's victory will be limited to the portals, however, as the pigeons receive great encouragement from kind-hearted city employes, who bring daily offerings of bread crumbs and cracked corn.

POLICEMAN SERIOUSLY HURT IN OFF-DUTY AUTO ACCIDENT

Leach, 36 years old, apparently was on his way to his home at 5015 Davison avenue, after going off duty at 11:30 p.m., when the accident occurred. He was found by another policeman, Probationary Patrolman Richard Davis, who was on his way home from the Ruskin Avenue station. The machine was on the west side of Union, facing north.

BUTTER PRICES DECLINING TO AS LOW AS 59 CENTS

Prices paid by St. Louis housewives for table butter will have dropped nine to 10 cents a pound by Thursday from two weeks ago, in some cases to as low as 59 cents a pound, a survey of large chain stores indicated today.

One chain slashed butter to 59 cents more than a week ago and will continue to sell at that price. Another has cut to 66 cents the price of butter which brought 73 cents only 10 days ago. A third was down to 65 and expected to drop to 59 cents Thursday.

The 59-cent price for table butter, a spokesman for one organization declared, will mean selling at below cost. Butter prices began declining with the Department of Agriculture's announcement that dairy price supports would be reduced by from 8 to 10 cents a pound.

Madison Schools Reopen; Dispute To Go to Illinois Superintendent

Teachers, Board Agree to Plan in Deference to Children—Sociologist to Keep Job Pending Inquiry.

Madison's 2700 public school children returned to classes today after teachers, who had been on strike since last Wednesday, agreed to submit to Illinois Superintendent of Public Instruction Vernon L. Nickell their dispute over abolition of the job of school sociologist.

Settlement was reached about 2:30 a.m. after seven hours of negotiations in which Carl J. Megel of Chicago, president of the AFL American Federation of Teachers, of which 74 of the Madison system's 87 teachers are members, participated.

The school board and Local 763 of the teacher's union, in a joint statement, announced they would request that Nickell investigate and submit recommendations on the dispute.

Meanwhile, Boris Gitcho will remain on the job as sociologist pending a final settlement. Elimination of his position, effective June 30, had been voted by the board in a secret meeting a week ago. Gitcho's contract expires at the end of this school year.

The joint statement set out that both the board and union still were "equally convinced of the equity of their positions," but that "in deference to the welfare of the children and community" they were willing to submit the matter to Nickell.

Until last night negotiations had been deadlocked, with the board refusing to talk to union representatives until teachers returned to work, and the teachers refusing to return until Gitcho's job was reinstated.

School Board President Charles Skinner had opposed abolition of Gitcho's job, saying juvenile delinquency in Madison was almost non-existent as a result of Gitcho's "fine job." Skinner added that the real reason for the board action was Gitcho's union activity.

The union had delegated Gitcho to seek support of the Tri-City Central Trades Council in trying to obtain a public hearing on certain dismissals of teachers proposed by school board members. Six public schools were affected by the strike.

4 QUIT CITY JAIL HUNGER STRIKE, 6 STICK IT OUT

Four of the 10 prisoners who started a hunger strike at city jail last week ended it last night, but the other six were still going strong this morning.

The four who weakened in their protest against being kept in a maximum detention cell tier asked guards for supper at the usual serving time. They ate the evening's meal—chicken soup, meat loaf, lima beans, another vegetable, bread and coffee—with apparent relish.

One of the four, Robert Preston Dickey, broke his self-imposed fast in time to get two meals before being sent to Leavenworth penitentiary to start serving an 18-year federal sentence for his part in robbing a bank at Bourbon, Mo., last Nov. 19. He started the trip right after eating a hearty breakfast this morning.

Warden E. E. Hensley said the stock of pies and candy purchased at the jail commissary by the hunger strikers last Wednesday before they began refusing food is now gone. The hunger strike started, Hensley said, after he received a tip that at least four men were going to try to break jail and he ordered the group confined in a maximum security section.

2 MISSING BOYS FOUND NEAR HOME OF ONE'S UNCLE

David Switzer, 15 years old, and John L. Gillis Jr., 14, who had been missing since Friday night after they attended a movie, were found last night in a play shack near the home of Switzer's uncle, W. Byrne Dimond, 8 Country Life Acres, St. Louis county. They were found by Dimond after his son reported seeing a light in the shack.

Switzer's father, John K. Switzer, 3 Forest Ridge drive, Clayton, said the youths told him they left on an impulse because his son feared he would be punished for taking the family automobile without permission Friday night. The machine was found in the driveway of the Switzer home, and the boys told their parents they had hiked the eight miles to the cabin where they were found.

The cabin is heated and was stocked with food, and both youths were in good health when found. The Switzer boy attends Taylor School. Gillis, who lives with his parents at 1 Forest Ridge, attends Country Day School.

BIDS FOR DARST HOUSING PROJECT UNDER ESTIMATE

Low Offers for 660 Units Total $6,250,976, or $270,024 Less Than Figured.

The apparent low bids for the construction of 660 units of the Joseph M. Darst Apartments, a public housing project east of City Hospital, totaled $6,250,976 or $270,024 below the figure estimated by the St. Louis Housing Authority, when they opened today.

The bids will be checked by officials of the Federal Public Housing Authority before they are accepted.

Apparent low bidders and the amounts bid in the five categories in which they were submitted are as follows:

General construction, MacDonald Construction Co., $4,312,000; plumbing, Tobin Brothers, $643,000; heating, Kremer-Hicks Co., $846,000; electrical, J. Livingston & Co., $361,266, and utilities, Fred M. Luth Sons, $38,710.

The St. Louis Housing Authority had estimated the cost of construction at $6,521,000.

RIVER DES PERES ROAD BIDS' DEADLINE MAY 4

Bids for widening access roadways in the River des Peres drainage system will be received by the Board of Public Service up to May 4, it announced today.

Estimated to cost about $240,000, the project would widen to 12 feet existing roadways on shelves on each side of the drainage canal from a point near Morganford road to a point near Chippewa street. Purpose is to give trucks better access to the canal for repairs, spraying and flushing.

It is one of three projects in the 1944 bond issue designed to end the nuisance of foul odors from the canal that have plagued sections of South St. Louis for a number of years.

Plan Submitted for County Toll Bridge Project at St. Charles

Counsel, Highway Board Urged to Consider Construction at Once With Approach as Part of Expressway.

A plan for immediate construction by St. Louis county of a toll bridge over the Missouri river at St. Charles, together with a 3.79-mile east approach which would be part of the proposed Mark Twain Expressway, was submitted today to the County Council and Missouri Highway Commission.

Financing would be by a $13,500,000 bond issue, to be paid off by toll charges and payments by the state as funds become available. Of the total bond proceeds, $8,500,000 would go for bridge construction, $2,450,000 for the approach to St. Charles road west of Lindbergh boulevard, $260,000 for right-of-way, mostly for the approach; $910,000 for interest on bonds during construction; $810,000 for engineering and project management and the rest for miscellaneous expenses.

Connections From Wentzville.

Under the proposal the bridge and U. S. Highway 40 connections from Wentzville at least to Lindbergh boulevard would be open by late 1956 or early 1957, six or more years before completion would be possible if the county waited for the state to build the bridge and approach.

Suggestion that the county consider building the bridge was made by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews last fall after it was learned that state funds to build the bridge would not be available for from six to 10 years. State money is in sight, however, for construction of Mark Twain Expressway in St. Louis and St. Louis county, and preliminary work is in progress toward acquisition of right-of-way.

Planned by St. Louis Firm.

The plan submitted today was drafted by Sverdrup & Parcel, Inc., St. Louis consulting engineers, under a contract approved by the County Council last December with concurrence of the State Highway Commission, by which the engineering firm would make bridge studies to include preliminary engineering plans, costs and financing.

Under the contract Sverdrup & Parcel would receive a fee of 6 per cent of the principal amount of revenue bonds in event the project goes through. The engineering firm's plan goes beyond the scope of the original idea in that it includes construction by the county of the nearly four miles of approach highway, at a cost of about $2,700,000, including right-of-way cost.

A company spokesman said, however, that the contract with the county would be subject to modification with respect to fees for approach engineering, since some approach plans already have been drawn by the state and might be completed by that agency.

Supervisor Matthews said the chief attractive feature of construction by the county of the approach highway, with financing by bridge revenue bonds, was that a contract with the state then would be possible, under which the state would credit the county in the amount of its $2,700,000 outlay for the approach and right-of-way.

Use of Credit Fund.

This credit then could be applied against the county's one-half share of right-of-way costs for the Mark Twain and Ozark expressways east of Lindbergh boulevard, Matthews said.

Such an arrangement would obviate inclusion of these items in the general obligation highway bond issue program planned for submission to voters next year. The $32,124,000 highway bond proposal defeated by voters Feb. 9 included a $2,450,000 item for right-of-way acquisition for Mark Twain and Ozark expressways.

Following defeat of the bond proposal, Chief Engineer Rex M. Whitton of the State Highway Department told Matthews that the state would proceed with right-of-way acquisition but that no construction would begin until the county paid its half share for the right-of-way.

He said also, however, that the state would buy all right-of-way for Mark Twain west of Lindbergh, since this part is outside the county's "urban area," within which the state requires local assistance in right-of-way purchase.

Thus, assumption by the county of responsibility for construction of the 3.79 miles of highway east of the bridge would relieve the state of having to pay the full cost and the money could go for other state projects in the county, Matthews pointed out.

The county's share of right-of-way cost east of Lindbergh in effect would be defrayed by bridge tolls rather than by county taxpayers.

Shorter Route Downtown.

Sverdrup & Parcel, in its study, pointed out that the Mark Twain route from Wentzville to downtown St. Louis city is several miles shorter than the present Highway 40 route on the Daniel Boone Highway, which crosses the Missouri river near Weldon Spring.

Mark Twain would follow the old line of Highway 40 from Wentzville to a point about two miles west of St. Charles, then would veer to the south edge of St. Charles and cross the river about a mile and a half south of, or upstream from, the present St. Charles bridge.

Construction of the Daniel Boone route started in the 1930s and was completed to Brentwood boulevard in Richmond Heights in 1947. It has since had a dead-end there, and all efforts to continue it into the city so far have failed because of objections by persons living near the proposed locations. A study now is under way for a possible new location south of Maplewood.

The engineering firm in its study said the Daniel Boone route, in addition to being longer than Mark Twain, also is unsatisfactory west of the Missouri river because of heavy grades and short sight-distances. The state has plans for four-lane construction on old Highway 40 west of St. Charles.

Limited Access Approach.

Construction plans proposed by Sverdrup & Parcel call for a limited-access approach highway of four 12-foot lanes, with a center median strip of varying width.

On the bridge, the four lanes would be 13 feet wide with a four-foot median strip and a 2½-foot emergency curb on each side. The approach road would have overpasses at St. Charles and McKelvey roads.

Plans already adopted by the state for the expressway east of Lindbergh call for it to pass near Lambert-St. Louis Field and continue into St. Louis to a connection with the Third Street Interregional Highway at Washington avenue.

Several alternate plans for financing the bridge and approach were outlined in the Sverdrup & Parcel study, all based on estimates that toll income would total $550,000 in 1957 and rise to $885,000 by 1969. Tolls would range from 25 cents for passenger automobiles to 50 cents for heavy trucks and busses, with a commuter rate of 10 cents for regular passenger car users.

Financing plan recommended by the engineers called for payment of $500,000 a year by the state for 16 years, after which the bridge would become toll-free.

In these three hours your skin "dies" a little

There are periods from 1 to 3 hours every day, skin specialists say, when your skin is "not itself"—This is immediately after you have washed your face. The washing removes not only dirt, but also removes natural protectors of your skin. It takes from 1 to 3 hours for your skin to re-establish its defenses. It is during this period of "skin un-balance," dermatologists say, that your most serious skin problems can take root:

Dryness . . . cracking . . . "shrivelling"
Enlarged pores, coarseness

Mrs. Anthony A. Bliss—This lovely young New York social leader lives most of the year in her charming country home on Long Island. A real beauty—slender, vibrant, and very fair—Mrs. Bliss has exquisite skin. She says, "Every woman who uses water as part of her face care—and what woman doesn't—should discover what a major difference a follow-up with Pond's Cold Cream makes in the texture, the clearness, the good looks of her skin. And a stimulating deep clearing with Pond's Cold Cream at bedtime is a necessity to me."

Read what these women do to prevent these disturbing skin problems—

After each washing—"re-balance" your skin

You yourself have noticed the more obvious signs of this "un-balance" in your skin.

The tight-stretched feel of your face as it dries.
The rough flakiness of your skin when you try to smooth on your face powder.

These are small immediate warnings of skin "un-balance"—the ones that show right away. But in the 1 to 3 hour period that Nature takes to reprotect your skin, more serious problems often start to develop. Dryness. A "shrivelled" look. Oxidized secretions in pore-mouths—forerunners of blackheads.

Do skin specialists recommend that to avoid "un-balancing" your skin you should avoid using water on your face? Not at all.

"Wash your face, of course, and as often as you wish," leading skin specialists say, "but after each washing 're-balance' your skin instantly . . ."

60 times faster than Nature

Women of outstanding beauty and social distinction "re-balance" their skin after washing with an immediate application of Pond's Cold Cream. Light, swift-acting, this world-famous beauty formula promptly restores skin elasticity . . . combats dryness, flaking, shrivelling. Keeps pore openings cleared—skin texture fine and smooth.

Begin using Pond's Cold Cream after every face washing—immediately—before the bad effects of "un-balance" can start. It takes only 7 seconds to smooth your face lightly with Pond's. Yet this one simple act "re-balances" your skin within one minute—at least 60 times faster than Nature does. You can actually feel the "re-balancing." Always leave on a trace of Pond's for continuing skin "balance" beneath your make-up.

A vitalizing clearing and firm-up at bedtime

Besides an immediate "re-balancing" after each washing, most skins need a deep clearing and firm-up every night—to vitalize the skin to its full beauty.

A luxurious, deep Pond's Cold Creaming softens and works loose the water-resistant dirt that is still clinging—really gets down between the roughened skin cells, and dislodges stubborn dirt.

This vitalizing clearing and firm-up with Pond's Cold Cream stimulates circulation in the skin—brings a fresh glow. Do it every night at bedtime.

Today—begin this beautifully simple and complete beauty care with Pond's Cold Cream: a quick 7-second "re-balancing" after each face washing. Plus a deep Pond's clearing and firm-up every night at bedtime. Like beautiful society women all over the world, you'll find that skin "re-balancing" with Pond's will accomplish wonders of new softness and smoothness—new clarity for your complexion.

Among beautiful social leaders who use Pond's

More women use this one cream than any other face cream ever made. Get a large jar of Pond's Cold Cream. Keep it in your bathroom—reach for it the instant you finish washing your face. Today—begin giving your skin the quick daytime "re-balancings," and—at bedtime—a deep clearing with Pond's Cold Cream to stimulate circulation . . . keep skin vibrant.

BODY OF AIRMAN HURLED INTO GULF FOUND BY TEXAN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 30 (AP)—The body of an Air Force gunner, hurled from a B-29 into the Gulf of Mexico when a plastic blister on the craft broke loose at a height of 19,000 feet, has been found eight miles southwest of Freeport, Tex., Randolph Air Force Base said yesterday. The accident occurred last Monday. The victim was S. Sgt. Claude J. Trahan.

The base said a civilian pilot, R. B. Larson of Freeport, found the body. There were indications the flyer's parachute had opened and he died in the water.

Dulles Warns Reds to Halt In Asia or Face United Action merely by wanting it. Sometimes it is necessary to take risks to win peace just as it is necessary in war to take risks to win victory.

"The chances for peace are usually bettered by letting a potential aggressor know in advance where his aggression could lead him."

Dulles, expressing the hope that his words "will serve the cause of peace," did not submit to his audience of about 1000 reporters, former reporters and their guests, a definition of what he considered "united action" against the Communist threat in southeast Asia.

His concluding words, however, were that "the United States is a member of a goodly company who in the past have stood together in the face of great peril and have overcome it." He was certain that "true to that past", the future could be faced with confidence.

His words were interpreted by some as an invitation to the western Allies to join in the doctrine of hitting back at Communist-inspired violence at the source instead of following a policy of "containment" by resisting force locally, as in Korea.

Performance vs. Promise.

Referring to Communist Chinese representation at the Geneva conference on Korea and Indochina, to be convened April 26, Dulles said "it is now the policy of the United States not to exchange United States performance for Communist promises." Red China's presence at the conference table would not imply diplomatic recognition, he said.

"The United States will go to Geneva in an effort to bring about a united and independent Korea, from which Communist China will have withdrawn its army of invasion," Dulles added.

"Also we hope that any Indochina discussion will serve to bring the Chinese Communists to see the danger of their apparent design for the conquest of southeast Asia, so that they will cease and desist.

"We shall not, however, be disposed to give Communist China what it wants from us, merely to buy its promises of future good behavior."

It was evident the Secretary was directing his words to those who were fearful that Red China, by professing temporarily a change from the Communist policy of aggression in Asia, might gain political and economic concessions at Geneva.

Against Recognition.

As to diplomatic recognition of the Peiping regime, Dulles asked rhetorically if it would "help our country if, by recognition, we give increased prestige and influence to a regime that actively attacks our vital interests?" He gave an emphatic "no" in answer.

As to receiving Peiping in the U.N. to replace the Nationalist regime now in refuge on Formosa, the Secretary recalled that Red Chinese intervention in the Korean war in 1950 contributed substantially to the "killing, wounding or losing" of about 500,000 U.N. soldiers, including more than 100,000 Americans.

Despite a resolution voted overwhelmingly by the U.N. General Assembly labeling Red China an aggressor and demanding withdrawal of Red Chinese troops from Korea, the Communist army has remained, Dulles continued.

"As one of the U.N. members who must pass on representation, we must ask: 'Will it serve the interest of world order to bring into the U.N., a regime which is a convicted aggressor, which has not purged itself from that aggression, and which continues to promote the use of force in violation of the principles of the U.N?

"I can only find the answer 'No.'"

Earlier in a parf of his speech dedicated to discussion of the Nationalist government on Formosa, Dulles said it was "unthinkable" that free nations would abandon their loyal "allies of World War II" and "encourage and facilitate" their bloody liquidation by Chinese Reds.

Broken Pledges.

Recalling that the history of dealing with Moscow was a chronology of broken pledges on the part of the Kremlin from the time of recognition, Dulles declared that any proposal to recognize Red China and admit that nation to the United Nations must be judged "on the basis of past experiences."

"Our experience with the Chinese Communists is limited because we have only one agreement," Dulles said. "That is the Korean armistice. The U.N. command has reported that the Communists have violated it 40 times."

No nation or individual has a record beyond reproach in the keeping of agreements, the Secretary continued, and the American people are as ready as any to forgive and forget human frailties.

"But it would be reckless for us to ignore the events of recent years which have filled our archives with vain promises," he added. "We are not in the market for more."

Because free nations have "moved unitedly" against the Communist threat, the free world "feels a sense of lull," Dulles said. But no real reason exists to justify belief the Red peril has abated, "if permanent peace would block" Kremlin aspirations.

"In Europe, Soviet Russia holds its grip on eastern Germany and Austria and maneuvers recklessly to prevent reconciliation between France and Germany. In Asia, the whole area from Japan and Korea to southeast Asia is troubled by Communist efforts at penetration," he concluded.

"As against such efforts, there is only one defense, eternal vigilance, sound policies and high courage."

The speech was broadcast nationally by radio and television, and the Voice of America gave Dulles an international audience. It was learned in Washington earlier that it had been specfically cleared with Mr. Eisenhower at a weekend White House conference.

FRENCH PRAISE 'FIGHTING FOOLS' AT DIEN BIEN PHU

Defenders Earned Right to Nickname, After Counter-Attack, Officers Say.

HANOI, Indochina, March 30 (UP)—French officers said today the defenders of Dien Bien Phu had earned the right to call themselves the "fighting fools" of the Indochina war. They said only 20 French union soldiers had been killed in Sunday's attack on a Communist artillery emplacement, an assault that cost the lives of 1400 Reds.

Foreign Legion soldiers and Moroccan infantrymen killed 400 rebels with their bayonets. Another 1000 Communists were killed in their trenches by bombers.

Dien Bien Phu's defenders gave themselves the "fighting fools" nickname because a wounded French officer had made a pun on the fortress's name.

As the officer was awaiting evacuation in the early days of the fighting, he said he yelled "Tiens, Bien Fous," which sounds like Dien Bien Phu but means, in French, "Hold fast, fools."

French observers flying over the hills and forests surrounding the fortress today said the Communists were regrouping to the north of their positions, indicating they may be forced to make an all-out assault soon.

U.S. General Optimistic on Indochina, to Report to Washington.

TOKYO, March 30 (UP)—An American general who recently visited Indochina said today the French and the Associated States can win the Indochina war within a year if they take the offensive now and if the Chinese Communists do not intervene directly.

The general, who refused to permit use of his name, is expected to report personally to the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff early in April on his observations.

He said there was no reason to expect deeper American involvement in the Indochina fighting because, unlike the situation in Korea in 1950, "there is no critical need for American troops or American-manned naval or air units in Indochina now."

He said this statement also applied to the United States Air Force technicians now servicing planes lent to the French forces since the "French can and should send in their own air crews" to replace these technicians.

CHILE JAILS THREE EDITORS

SANTIAGO, March 30 (AP)—Three editors of a newspaper that published articles critical of the Chilean government received prison sentences yesterday. They also were stripped of political rights for life.

Raul Morales, editor-in-chief of Las Noticias Graficas, received a four-year-term. Jose Luis Montero was sentenced to two years and Segundo Hidalgo to 541 days.

SAUD REPORTED IN CONCILIATOR ROLE IN EGYPT

Saudi Arabian King Said to Have Saved Naguib From Fall in Latest Crisis.

CAIRO, March 30 (UP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia saved President Mohammed Naguib from another fall from at least nominal power in Egypt's tempestuous political crisis, a Revolutionary Council member said today.

The pro-western Saud intervened even after the President had been forsaken by the cavalry officers who had put him back into power after he had been fired last month. Lt. Col. Anwar El Sadat, a member of the Revolutionary Council, said Saud stepped in as a conciliator at the moment when the split in the council seemed "utterly hopeless."

Saud, whose oil-rich country is a key nation in the Arab League, succeeded in bringing together Naguib, who favored restoring civilian rule, and Vice Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, an adamant proponent of a military government.

Naguib Keeps Office.

Thus Naguib was enabled to remain in office as president, premier and head of the council even though the council yesterday formally rescinded its decision to dissolve itself next July 24 and turn the government over to a constituent assembly to be elected next July.

Naguib collapsed at a Cairo airport yesterday after bidding farewell to Saud, who had been in Egypt on a visit of state, but recovered in time to preside briefly at a council meeting in which the decision to continue control by the council until 1956 was made.

The President apparently lost none of his personal popularity with his civilian supporters and in foreign quarters in the aftermath of his defeat by the youthful Nasser, brain of the revolution.

Nasser's strength appeared to derive from support of the young officers in the military government and the organized components of the civilian population.

Bar on Parties.

(The Associated Press reported that the revolutionary council also renounced Naguib's decision to permit political parties to form once again for the elections in July. Instead of an elected assembly, the council said it would appoint a national advisory council representing various organizations, professions and regions.)

There was an orderly demonstration by students today against the Revolutionary Council's decision to continue its military rule. A general transportation and communications strike also took place but was called off after a few hours. It had been staged to show organized support for the Revolutionary Council. Otherwise there were no disorders after two days of transport strikes. Banks, offices and shops, which closed Monday when a general strike was proclaimed, reopened their doors.

43 MEN REPORTED DROWNED ON INDIAN ARMY MANEUVERS

NEW DELHI, March 30 (AP)—Forty-three men of the Indian army were reported drowned in an attempted river crossing Friday while on maneuvers in Jammu state, a Defense Ministry spokesman said today.

Reports reaching here said the unit sought to make a foot crossing of the Tawi river, which was swollen by spring thaws and the soldiers apparently lost their footing.

Dolan Testifies as Only Witness in Own Defense

had walked into the lobby for a drink at the water fountain.

About an hour and a half later, McDowell continued, he was checking the teletype machine when he saw Patrolman Dolan coming in the front door of the station, "shuffling a large green case around."

"He had a hard time opening the door, and he shuffled this case to get it through the door," McDowell told the jury.

McDowell said the case Dolan carried resembled the one in evidence, but he was unable to make a positive identification of it.

Toward Captain's Office.

Asked if he saw what Dolan did with the suitcase, after bringing it into the station at approximately 10:30 p.m., McDowell replied: "He walked through the north corridor toward the captain's office."

On cross-examination by Hennelly, the witness was asked if he had changed his original account of what he had seen following a conference with Assistant Chief of Police Joseph E. Casey.

"I amended my story to tell the truth," McDowell answered.

Asked if he had told the truth in his first account, the witness testified, "I told the truth the first time, and I told more the second time."

Hennelly then asked McDowell if he had been promised a promotion to patrolman "for changing your story." The clerk said he had received no promises.

Questioned about his opportunity of observing the entrance of Lt. Shoulders and Patrolman Dolan with their prisoners, McDowell said he was about five yards from the booking area, in a position to see persons coming in "after they had taken three steps inside the door." He said his view of Dolan was from "the elbows upward."

Shown a briefcase Hall carried when arrested, the witness said the case was the "valise" he had referred to in his direct testimony.

FBI Man Testifies.

Dolan was quoted as having told FBI Agent Frank F. Staab, who worked on the kidnaping case, that he "would be interested" in changing his grand jury testimony. Staab's testimony was ruled out on a defense objection, however, and the jury was instructed to disregard it.

Staab told of interviewing Dolan four times last November. On one occasion, the witness related, he asked Dolan if the two suitcases were taken into the police station when Hall was taken in. Doland replied, Staab testified, "No, afterward." Staab added that Dolan refused to answer when asked who had taken them in.

Mrs. Esther Wells, 4250 Lindell boulevard, testified that she and Miss Barbara Cupp, 5060 Delmar boulevard, were in the station waiting to see two prisoners. She said she saw Hall at the booking desk, but did not see Dolan, and did not see any suitcases.

The witness added that she saw Lt. Shoulders receive a phone call in a telephone booth. Miss Cupp, a witness yesterday, was cross-examined briefly today.

5 Saw No Suitcase.

Sgt. Jesse Miller testified he drove up to Newstead Station about 9:20 o'clock the night of Hall's arrest and saw Shoulders and Dolan coming out the front door. Sgt. Miller said he remained in the station 45 minutes, and neither Shoulders nor Dolan returned in that period.

Capt. Thomas Dirrane, Newstead District commander, told of turning the green and the black suitcases over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation on Oct. 7.

Five of the 11 Government witnesses who took the stand after the trial opened yesterday said they were in the station in St. Louis when Shoulders and Dolan arrived with Hall in custody the night of Oct. 6 but saw no suitcases at any time.

However, defense counsel, on cross-examination, succeeded in getting two witnesses to admit the suitcases possibly could have been brought in without their seeing them.

Testimony moved swiftly after United States Attorney Edward L. Scheufler, heading the prosecution, told the 12-man jury in Judge Albert A. Ridge's court that Dolan knowingly lied under oath about the handling of the suitcases.

Handling of the suitcases is an important phase of the missing ransom inquiry because, when Hall's luggage was opened at the Newstead Station, it contained less than half the ransom.

Before being executed last Dec. 18 with Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, Hall told authorities that almost all of the $600,000 was in the suitcases when he was arrested at the Town House, St. Louis apartment hotel.

Several of Dolan's fellow officers were witnesses yesterday. They included Cpl. Raymond J. Bergmier, Cpl. Alexander Magee and Patrolmen Karl Schottler and Thomas Crowe, all of Newstead District.

The witnesses said Dolan, Shoulders and Hall entered the that looked like a suitcase or metal case or briefcase?" Scheufler asked Bergmeier. Dolan has station together and walked to the desk where Cpl. Bergmeier booked the prisoner at 8:57 p.m.

"Did you see any containers also testified he carried Hall's briefcase.

"No, sir, I didn't," the witness said.

Contradiction in Testimony.

The following witness, Patrolman Schottler, gave testimony that contradicted Bergmeier directly on one point. Schottler said the desk man was speaking to Miss Cupp and Mrs. Wells at the counter when Dolan and Shoulders appeared with Hall.

Bergmeier had told the jury that only Schottler was at the counter, telephoning, at the time the kidnaper arrived in custody of the two police officers.

Cpl. Magee testified he obtained a good view of Shoulders, Dolan and Hall entering the station through the front door.

"How were they walking"? Scheufler asked him.

"Officer Dolan was in front, the prisoner behind him and Lt. Shoulders behind the prisoner," Magee said.

"Did you see any of these persons carrying any luggage?"

"Not that I could see."

"What happened then?"

The witness said Lt. Shoulders nodded to him indicating Magee should take a place near the front door. Shoulders has said he feared Hall would make a break for freedom while in the station.

After taking a position near the door, Magee continued, he observed Dolan and Shoulders go to the booking desk, with Hall standing between them.

Again, Scheufler inquired: "Did you see any object in their possession—any bulky objects or anything like that?"

"No, sir," was the answer.

Model of Station Used.

Frequently witnesses were asked by Government and defense counsel to step down from the witness chair and explain their testimony with help of a miniature of the Newstead Station prepared by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington.

Other exhibits introduced by the Government include 19 photographs taken at the Newstead Station by G. Wayne Mack, an FBI agent from St. Louis.

The photographs show views of Shoulders's office in the rear of the station; the courtyard in the back, a cell block and the booking-desk lobby, where the five witnesses who did not see the suitcases had been when the police officers arrived with Hall.

Dolan appeared at ease as he sat at the counsel table with Hennelly and Richard P. Shanahan, Kansas City lawyer, who also represents him. Occasionally the neatly dressed, slightly-built defendant would rest his chin on his right hand or chew his thumb.

J. C. PENNEY TO SHUT WAREHOUSE HERE

Decision Follows Refusal to Accept Union Plan—500 Employes.

J. C. Penney Co. announced today it would shut down its distributing warehouse at 400 South Fourteenth street, employing about 500 persons, on or before July 1.

Decision to discontinue warehouse operations here followed refusal of the company last December to accept a proposal by Local 688, AFL Teamsters Warehouse Union, calling for a five-year contract and a guaranteed annual wage.

English O'Connor of New York, in charge of warehousing for the company, announced the closing plans after a conference with union representatives.

He said plans call for shipment of merchandise directly from factories to retail outlets. Formerly the firm, which operates a chain of retail dry goods stores, had four warehouses. With closing of the 13-story structure here only one will remain—in Statesville, N.C.

The only reason for the shutdown given by O'Connor was "economy and efficiency." He added that the company would try to find employment with other firms in St. Louis for the displaced workers.

He said the company-owned warehouse, which has nearly 1,000,000 square feet of floor space, probably would be offered for sale.

The proposed contract offered by the union was similar to those which have been negotiated recently with other large firms here, including Brown Shoe Co. and Rice-Stix Dry Goods, Inc.

Harold J. Gibbons, secretary-treasurer of the local, in announcing these contracts said the union would seek to use them as patterns in other negotiations. They provide a guarantee of 2000 hours of work annually and include the so-called "hot cargo" clause, under which employes can refuse to handle goods involved in strikes elsewhere.

The Penney management was willing to acceept a five-year contract, but refused the annual wage guarantee, the "hot cargo" clause and other union proposals, it was learned.

U.S. TO TRY HAND AS DEALER IN USED POSTAGE STAMPS

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Government is taking a fling at the used stamp business for profit. The results of a sale tomorrow will determine whether the salvage program will become a regular thing.

The trial sale will include 40 pounds of United States and 20 pounds of foreign used stamps, including 25,000 received at the White House.

The idea was conceived by Roger Steffan, director of operations at the White House. He is a retired vice president of the National City Bank of New York.

The stock for the sale is a 10-day collection of stamps tween March 8 and 19 at five clipped from incoming mail be- Government mail rooms — the United States Information Agency, White House, Department of Commerce, Foreign Operations Administration and Bureau of the Public Debt.

The 60 pounds being offered for sale will be on display tomorrow until 3 p.m., at which time bids will be opened.

NEW YORK STATE HAS SNOW 18 INCHES DEEP; 13 DEATHS

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 30 (AP)—A foot and a half of snow falling yesterday and today caused 13 deaths in New York state. Many schools were closed and transportation was tied up.

The storm eased this morning after moving eastward across the state during the night. The fall at Buffalo was measured officially at 14 inches, with drifts up to three feet. Up to 17½ inches were reported in some sections.

To the east, at Old Forge and Alder Creek in the Adirondack mountains, 16 to 18 inches fell.

Most of those who died in the storm suffered heart attacks while shoveling snow.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN PASSES 64 PCT. MARK

Chairman Faust Appeals to Solicitors to Make Speedy Reports.

Contributions of $740,840, or 64 per cent of the $1,150,000 goal, have been received in the 1954 Red Cross drive, Campaign Chairman Leicester Faust said today. He renewed his appeal to volunteers to complete solicitations and make reports as quickly as possible.

Des Peres has exceeded its quota, William H. Bryan, west county chairman, announced. Mrs. Harry Robke headed the campaign in that area.

Faust reported the following contributions: $766 from home offices and branches of the Missouri Insurance Co., up 8 per cent from 1953; $2078 from Curtis Manufacturing Co. and its employes, up 5 per cent; $519 from Continental Grain Co., up 20 per cent, and $1212 from employes at Sears Roebuck & Co. store at 1408 North Kingshighway.

Among the unusual gifts, the campaign chairman said, was one from Brownie Troop 714 at McKenzie School, Affton. It consisted of 21 dimes attached to a red cross made of paper. Faust said he hoped the gift would inspire additional group participation in the campaign.

Women who have time in the evenings or on weekends to give to Red Cross Volunteer Services were invited by Mrs. G. Chadbourne Taylor, chairman of volunteer services, to come to St. Louis Chapter Headquarters, 3414 Lindell boulevard, between 5 and 6 p.m. Thursday for interviews.

SPEAKER URGES VOLUNTARY END TO RACE SEGREGATION

Teachers and church members of the Christian faith have a special responsibility and opportunity to work for the integration of children of all races in schools, Rolfe L. Hunt, executive director of the department of religion and public education of the National Council of Churches, said last night.

Hunt spoke at a meeting at Graham Memorial Chapel on the Washington University campus, sponsored by the Metropolitan Church Federation. About 125 attended.

Phony Bomb Scare Penalized.

WEST HEMPSTEAD, N.Y., March 30 (UP) — A phony bomb scare forced evacuation of 1000 students from the local high school yesterday. Authorities made up for lost classroom time by keeping the students two hours past their usual dismissal time.

ISRAEL REBUKED BY TRUCE GROUP FOR KILLING OF 9

Commission, Boycotted by Israelis, Votes Strong Censure After Attack on Jordan.

JERUSALEM, March 30 (AP) —The Jordan-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission condemned Israel today "in the strongest terms" for the killing of nine Arabs and the wounding of 19 in an attack Sunday midnight on the Jordanian border village of Natalin.

The censure was voted by Jordan's members of the commission and its United Nations chairman, United States Navy Comdr. E. H. Hutchison.

Israel, which had viewed the attack as a "local reaction" to a previous border killing by Arabs, did not send delegates to the commission meeting. The Israelis have boycotted the commission since it failed to support their charge that Jordan was responsible for the March 17 ambush of a bus on the Negeb desert in which 11 persons were killed.

The commission's condemnation was announced by the U.N. truce supervision headquarters in the Israeli sector of divided Jerusalem.

Proposed by Jordan.

The resolution proposed by Jordan and adopted by the commission said the attack "constitutes the most flagrant breach of the armistice agreement." It added:

"The Mixed Armistice Commission condemns Israel in the strongest terms for this latest aggression and calls on Israeli authorities to take the most effective measures to prevent such and other aggressions against Jordan in the future and apprehend and punish those responsible."

The resolution said a "large group of military-trained Israelis" crossed the demarcation line into Jordan territory, "firing from automatic weapons, detonating explosives and throwing hand grenades and incendiary bombs."

It said this group killed five national guards and a woman and wounded 14 villagers, both men and women. Then, it said, the Israelis blew up a truck of Arab Legionnaires rushing to reinforce the village force, killing three Legionnaires and wounding the officer in charge and four other Legionnaires.

Chairman Hutchison said the "evidence found established guilt without question." He called on Jordan "to refrain from actions that will aggravate instead of lessen the existing tension."

MENTAL HOSPITAL CASHIER ADMITS STEALING $267,000

NEW YORK, March 30 (UP) —A conscience-stricken cashier-accountant at Manhattan State Hospital walked into a police precinct station early today and confessed he had embezzled $267,000 and squandered it all on the horses.

Police identified him as Alexander P. Maran, 57 years old, married and the father of a 15-year-old son. He was booked on charges of grand larceny. Maran confessed, police said, that he embezzled an average of $1000 a week during the last five years. His yearly salary was $4100, police said, but he lived in a sumptuous courtyard apartment in Brooklyn.

Maran told police he went to Miami when he found out state auditors planned a routine check of his accounts. After thinking it over he returned here and gave himself up.

It was possible for the thefts to go undetected, police said, because the hospital, a mental institution, has no fixed rates. Patients pay in accordance with their financial ability, and apparently no check was made of individual amounts collected.

FRENCH ASSEMBLY VOTES 10 PCT. INCOME TAX CUTS

PARIS, March 30 (AP)—The National Assembly today passed a new income tax law giving the average French taxpayer a break. The new law "forgives" everybody 10 per cent of net income and allows childless married couples to deduct 440,000 francs ($1276) from their income before they start paying.

To make up some of the loss, the law boosted the tax rate on corporations slightly. Increased taxes also will be levied on persons who indicate a good income by their high standard of living but declare only a small income.

A Frenchman with a wife and one child will pay no income tax if he earns $1000 a year or less. A similar family with $3000 yearly will pay the equivalent of $82.85, compared to $205 under United States tax schedules, and with $5000 will pay $317.85 compared to $594 for an American.

TIMES-HERALD PURCHASER KILLS AFTERNOON EDITIONS

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Washington Post and Times-Herald discontinued, effective yesterday, its two late afternoon editions and henceforth will be a strictly morning newspaper, with its first edition hitting the street at 7 p.m.

The two afternoon editions, on the street at 3:45 p.m. and 5 p.m., were a carryover from the publication schedule of the Times-Herald, which was purchased by the Post March 17.

The Post and Times-Herald, as the combined newspaper now is known, announced that beginning last night it will publish five editions, starting with the 7 p.m. edition and ending with the Final at 3 a.m.

Eisenhower Text: We Must Lower Unjustifiable Trade Barriers

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP).

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's special message to Congress on foreign economic policy:

I SUBMIT HEREWITH for the consideration of the Congress recommendations concerning the foreign economic policy of the United States.

Due to the urgency and significance of our problems in this area, I previously recommended, and the Congress approved, the establishment of the Commission on Foreign Economic Policy. Its membership, consisting of 17 elected officials and private citizens, was drawn from all parts of the country and represented diverse points of view. The commission's report, prepared in the American tradition of full debate and vigorous dissent, has been carefully reviewed by the various executive departments of the Government and forms the basis for the program I submit in this message.

One Guiding Principle.

Before the commission began its deliberations I said to its members, "I commend to you an attitude both realistic and bold. Above all, I urge you to follow one guiding principle: What is best in the national interest."

The national interest in the field of foreign economic policy is clear. It is to obtain, in a manner that is consistent with our national security and profitable and equitable for all, the highest possible level of trade and the most efficient use of capital and resources. That this would also strengthen our military allies adds urgency. Their strength is of critical importance to the security of our country.

Great mutual advantages to buyer and seller, to producer and consumer, to investor and to the community where investment is made, accrue from high levels of trade and investment. They accrue no less in trade from nation to nation than in trade from community to community within a single country. The internal strength of the American economy has evolved from such a system of mutual advantage.

Toll of Depression, Wars.

In the press of other problems and in the haste to meet emergencies, this nation—and many other nations of the free world—have all too often lost sight of this central fact. Worldwide depression and wars, inflation and resultant economic dislocations, have left a sorry heritage: a patchwork of temporary expedients and a host of restrictions, rigidities, interferences and barriers which seriously inhibit the expansion of international trade. Thus are impeded the very forces which make for increased production, employment and incomes.

The tasks of repairing the physical damage caused by the catastrophe of war have been substantially achieved. The creation of an adequate system of defense for the free world is well advanced. Most of the countries which suffered the ravages of war have made remarkable headway toward financial stability and increased production. Their own efforts have been greatly aided by our assistance, and yet, despite this recovery, we and other free nations are still severely limited by the persistence of uneconomic, man-made barriers to mutual trade and the flow of funds among us.

Must Lower Barriers.

Together we and our friends abroad must work at the task of lowering the unjustifiable barriers—not all at once, but gradually and with full regard for our own interests. In this effort, the United States must take the initiative and, in doing so, make clear to the rest of the world that we expect them to follow our lead.

Many foreign restrictions have been imposed as a consequence of the so-called "dollar gap." This phrase has become the symbol of the failure of the free world to find a lasting solution to the imbalance of international payments. We should no longer fill it by major grants to enable other nations to secure what they need but cannot buy. Our aim must not be to fill the dollar gap, but rather to help close it. Our best interest dictates that the dollar gap be closed by raising the level of trade and investment.

The United States stands ready and able to produce and sell more than the rest of the world can buy from us. The inability of many foreign countries to buy our goods in the volume we would like to sell does not arise from any lack of desire for these goods. Such is far from the case. Instead it arises out of an inability of these nations to pay—in dollars—for the volume we have to sell.

Dollar grants are no lasting solution to this impasse.

The solution is a higher level of two-way trade. Thus we can sell and receive payment for our exports and have an increasing volume of investment abroad to assist economic development overseas and yield returns to us. Greater freedom from restrictions and controls and the increased efficiencies which arise from expanding markets and the freer play of economic forces are essential to the attainment of this higher trade level.

Failure so to move will directly threaten our domestic economy, for it will doom our efforts to find ways by which others, through their own efforts, can buy our goods. The only practicable alternative is to reduce exports. Our farms would have to sell less, since the products of 40,000,000 acres, amounting to 10 to 12 per cent of our agriculture, have to find their market outside our own country. Moreover, if their export markets were curtailed, American factories now selling their products throughout the world would have to reduce employment. It is a very important fact that over 4,000,000 American workers depend on international trade for their employment.

Free World Unity Threatened.

Beyond our economic interest, the solidarity of the free world and the capacity of the free world to deal with those who would destroy it are threatened by continued unbalanced trade relationships—the inability of nations to sell as much as they desire to buy. By moving boldly to correct the present imbalance, we shall support and increase the level of our exports of both manufactured and agricultural products. We shall, at the same time, increase the economic strength of our allies. Thus shall we exchange our own military security by strengthening our friends abroad. Thus shall we assure those sources of imports that supplement our domestic production and are vital to our defense. Thus shall we raise our standard of living and aid in the development of a better world for all of us and our children.

TARIFFS

I am convinced that the gradual and selective revision of our tariffs, through the tested method of negotiation with other nations, is an essential ingredient of the continuing growth of our domestic economy. An expression of our willingness to negotiate further will offer needed leadership towards the reduction of trade and payments barriers that limit markets for our goods throughout the world.

The Commission on Foreign Economic Policy recommended a three-year extension of the Trade Agreements Act with admendments to authorize:

A. Reduction, pursuant to trade agreement negotiation, of existing tariff rates on commodities selected for such negotiations by not more than 5 per cent of present rates in each of the three years of the new act;

B. Reduction, by not more than one-half over a three-year period, of tariffs in effect on Jan. 1, 1945, on products which are not being imported or which are being imported only in negligible volume and

C. Reduction, over a three-year period, pursuant to trade agreement negotiation, to 50 per cent ad valorem, or its equivalent, of any rate in excess of 50 per cent ad valorem, or its equivalent.

I have adopted these recommendations of the Commission and urge their adoption by the Congress. I may also recommend special provisions for negotiation with Japan in view of the economic problems of that country.

No Across-the-Board Cuts.

The foregoing authority does not contemplate across-the-board tariff reductions. The peril point and escape clause procedures would, of course, be preserved, and the three proposed types of rate reduction would not be cumulative. Tariff reductions would be made selectively on specific commodities, and only after notice and hearings in accordance with past practice. This would represent our part in the gradual and careful approach to the whole problem of improved trade which the world so urgently needs. No sudden, sharp or widespread adjustments within our economy would be involved.

These escape clause and peril point provisions of our tariff legislation are designed to mitigate injury to our domestic producers from tariff reductions. Whenever recourse is had to these provisions, I shall carefully consider the findings and recommendations of the Tariff Commission. My responsibilities for the welfare of the nation require that I continue to base my decisions at times on broader grounds than the Tariff Commission is empowered to consider. The Commission on Foreign Economic Policy supports this position.

Wage Protection.

I have approved the commission's recommendations that the United States withhold reductions in tariffs on products made by workers receiving wages which are substandard in the exporting country. This policy shall be placed in effect. I have also approved the commission's recommendations concerning raising of labor standards through consultative procedures and co-operation in international conferences such as those sponsored by the International Labor Organization.

These recommendations for renewal and amendment of the Trade Agreements Act are based on the plain truth that if we wish to sell abroad we must buy abroad.

THE GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE.

Since 1948, virtually all the major trading nations of the world, including the United States, have become parties to a general agreement on tariffs and trade. This agreement has been the principal arrangement by which we in the United States have sought to carry out the provisions and purposes of the Trade Agreements Act.

The Commission on Foreign Economic Policy has recommended that the United States re-negotiate the organizational provisions of the agreement, so that the contracting parties, acting collectively, would confine their functions to sponsoring multilateral trade negotiations, recommending broad trade policies for individual consideration by the legislative or other appropriate authorities in the various countries, and providing a forum for consultation regarding trade disputes.

I shall act promptly upon this recommendation. At the same time, I shall suggest to other contracting parties revisions of the agreement to provide a simpler, stronger instrument contributing more effectively to the development of a workable system of world trade. When the organizational provisions of the agreement have been re-negotiated, they will be submitted to the Congress for its approval.

CUSTOMS ADMINISTRATION AND PROCEDURE

The problems of tariff classification, of proper valuation of imported articles and of procedures for administering the customs are complex and perplexing. Over the years, these problems have grown to the point where they now constitute an unwarranted and unintended burden on trade.

The United States may be no worse in this regard than many other nations, but good business practice alone is sufficient to require:

A. Simplification of commodity definitions, classifications and rate structure;

B. Improvement in the methods of valuation of imports; and

C. Establishment of more efficient procedures for customs administration.

To this end I shall propose legislation providing for the simplification of the commodity definitions and rate structures in the Tariff Act, after a study by the Tariff Commission, and subject to appropriate standards to be established by the Congress. Such legislation should also provide for a better method of classification of articles not enumerated in the tariff schedules, and for such improvement in the statutes governing the administration of customs procedures as can be made at this time. In this connection I am directing the Department of the Treasury to keep customs procedures under continuous review and to report to the Congress annually on the difficulties and delays in processing goods through customs, together with recommendations for action to eliminate such obstructions. I further recommend that the anti-dumping law and procedures under it be changed so far as necessary to permit speedier and more efficient disposal of cases and to prevent undue interference with trade during investigation of suspected dumping.

To provide an improved basis for customs valuations, I urge adoption of the Treasury's valuation proposals. These are embodied in H.R. 6584 which has already been passed by the House of Representatives.

U.S. INVESTMENT ABROAD.

An increased flow of United States investment abroad could contribute significantly to the needed expansion of international trade. It also could help maintain a high level of economic activity and employment in the United States. Further, such investment contributes to the development abroad of primary resources needed to meet our own ever-increasing needs even while it helps to strengthen the economies of foreign countries. In view of the great importance of private investment to our foreign economic policy, I emphasize the necessity for passage of the Administration tax bill already recommended to you and already advanced in your considerations which provides for:

A. Taxation of business income from foreign subsidiaries or from segregated foreign branches which operate and elect to be taxed as subsidiaries at a rate 14 percentage points lower than the regular corporate rate;

B. Broadening the definition of foreign taxes which may be credited against the United States income tax to include any tax, which is the principal form of taxation on business in a country, except turnover, general sales taxes or excise, and social security taxes;

C. Removing of the over-all limitation on foreign tax credits; and

D. Permitting regulated investment companies concentrating on foreign investment to pass on to their stockholders the credit for foreign taxes which would be available on direct investment.

Further to encourage the flow of private investment abroad, we shall give full diplomatic support, through our activities here and through our missions and representatives in the field, to the acceptance and understanding by other nations of the prerequisites for the attraction of private foreign investment. We shall continue to use the treaty approach to establish common rules for the fair treatment of foreign investment.

In connection with legislation authorizing the Mutual Security program I suggest that the Congress consider the desirability of broadening the existing authority to guarantee against losses on new investment abroad, so as to cover losses caused by war, revolution and insurrection.

Anti-Trust Provision.

The commission has pointed out that uncertainty as to the application of United States anti-trust laws to the operations of American firms abroad is a deterrent to foreign investment. It recommended that our anti-trust laws be restated in a manner which would clearly acknowledge the right of each country to regulate trade within its own borders.

At the same time, the commission insisted that it should be made clear that foreign laws or established business practices which encourage restrictive price, production or marketing arrangements will limit the willingness of United States business men to invest abroad and will reduce the benefits of such investment to the economies of the host countries.

I have requested the Department of Justice to consider this recommendation in connection with its current study of the anti-trust laws.

BUY-AMERICAN LEGISLATION.

At present certain of our laws require that, in specified Federal or Federally-financed procurement, preference be given to domestic firms over foreign bidders. Except where considerations of national security, persistent and substantial unemployment, or encouragement of small business require otherwise, I agree with the Commission that it is improper policy, unbusinesslike procedure and unfair to the taxpayer for the Government to pay a premium on its purchases.

I request, therefore, that legislative authority be provided to exempt from the provisions of this legislation the bidders from nations that treat our bidders on an equal basis with their own nationals. Meanwhile, the Executive branch is clarifying the application of these preference principles to Government procurement. It will limit the price differential favoring domestic producers over foreign bidders to a reasonable per cent dependent upon the circumstances over and above whatever tariffs may apply. Discretionary authority, however, must be continued to permit special consideration in Government procurement for the requirements of national security, for the problems of small business and of areas where persistent and substantial unemployment exists.

RAW MATERIALS.

This country is blessed with abundant mineral resources, but we must make the most of them if we are to satisfy the ever-increasing appetite of an expanding economy and at the same time maintain an adequate defense posture. We must recognize, however, that it is not possible for this nation, or any other nation, to produce enough of every metal and mineral needed by modern industry. These materials are not evenly distributed throughout the world. We have to depend on one another. Our foreign economic policies, therefore, must encourage the relatively easy flow of these materials in international trade.

The commission has made two sets of recommendations which I believe will materially assist in achieving an orderly expansion of mineral production both here and abroad.

The first is that the United States Government should make a constructive contribution toward greater stability of world prices of raw materials by moderating or relaxing impediments to international trade, by encouraging diversification of foreign economies, by avoiding procurement practices which disturb world prices, by consultation with other nations, and by tempering the fluctuations in our own economy.

The second calls for increased encouragement of investment in overseas production by our citizens and the nationals of other countries.

I heartily indorse these recommendations.

The commission also recommended that domestic sources for raw materials required for military purposes should be assured by direct means and not by tariffs and import quotas. I believe that normally this is sound.

However, I have appointed a special Cabinet committee which is now surveying the whole field of our minerals policy and have drawn their attention to these recommendations.

AGRICULTURE.

Perhaps no sector of our economy has a greater stake in foreign trade than American agriculture. In recent years, for example, one-third of our wheat, 40 per cent of our cotton and rice, and one-fourth of our tobacco and soybeans have been exported. It is highly important to maintain foreign markets for our agricultural products.

Any program designed to serve the interests of American agriculture must take due account of the necessity for export markets. Put in the words of the commission, "It is necessary to harmonize our agricultural and foreign economic policies without sacrificing the sound objectives of either." I am convinced such reconciliation is possible. Acceptance of the recommendations in my agricultural message of Jan. 11 will, I feel certain, help accomplish this objective.

MERCHANT MARINE.

With respect to our ocean shipping, we must have a merchant marine adequate to our defense requirements. I subscribe to the principle that such support of our merchant fleet as is required for that purpose should be provided by direct means to the greatest possible extent. Such a policy, however, requires a careful analysis of the means available for providing direct support, its possible effects on foreign flag vessel carryings, and its total costs before a specific program can be recommended.

The Department of Commerce has already studied this problem at length. Its findings will be further reviewed within the Executive branch in order to develop specific recommendations to transmit to the next session of the Congress, in addition to the proposals submitted by the executive branch that are now before the Congress.

INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL.

International travel has cultural and social importance in the free world. It also has economic significance. Foreign travel by Americans is a substantial source of dollars for many countries enabling them to pay for what we sell them.

While the promotion of tourism is primarily a responsibility of the countries which welcome visitors, and is a function for private enterprise, there are some specific governmental actions which can be helpful. For example, there is H.R. 8352 which increases the duty-free allowance for tourists from $500 to $1000, exercisable every six months. I recommend its passage. From time to time I may have other recommendations for legislative action to stimulate travel.

Meanwhile, in the executive branch, I shall instruct the appropriate agencies and departments, at home and abroad, to consider how they can facilitate international travel. They will be asked to take action to simplify governmental procedures relating to customs, visas, passports, exchange or monetary restrictions and other regulations that sometimes harass the traveler.

ECONOMIC AID AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.

Assistance extended in the past by the United States to other free nations has played an effective part in strengthening the national security, developing important resources, and opening up significant opportunities, for ourselves and for others. It has also carried with it, in many instances, particularly in technical co-operation and famine relief, a deep humanitarian response by our people.

However, economic aid cannot be continued indefinitely. We must distinguish between an emergency and a chronic malady, between a special case and a general rule.

I subscribe, therefore, to the principle that economic aid on a grant basis should be terminated as soon as possible consistent with our national interest. In cases where support is needed to establish and equip military forces of other governments in the interest of our mutual defense, and where this is beyond the economic capacity of another country, our aid should be in the form of grants. As recognized by the commission, there may be some cases in which modest amounts of grant aid to underdeveloped countries will importantly serve the interest of security. I further agree that in other situations where the interest of the United States requires that dollars not otherwise available to a country should be provided, such support to the maximum extent appropriate should be in the form of loans rather than grants.

In extending such loans, we must be careful not to interfere with the normal lending activities and standards of the Export-Import Bank. The International Bank is the primary institution for the public financing of economic development. The Export-Import Bank will consider on their merits applications for the financing of development projects, which are not being made by the International Bank, and which are in the special interest of the United States, are economically sound, are within the capacity of the prospective borrower to repay and within the prudent lending capacity of the bank.

Urges Technical Aid.

I approve the recommendations of the Commission on Foreign Economic Policy that the United States participation in technical co-operation programs should be pressed forward vigorously. Such programs should concentrate on providing experts and know-how rather than large funds or shipments of goods except for necessary demonstration equipment. They should not provide capital for investment, but should be so administered as to fit into the programs of development of the assisted countries and they should be related to any private or public investment likely to be forthcoming.

Review of the requirements for the Mutual Security program has been conducted with these principles in mind and substantial reductions in grant aid have been made by this Administration. The legislation which I shall later propose for the Mutual Security program will reflect these principles.

EAST-WEST TRADE.

In viewing the problems of other nations of the free world, we are forced to recognize that the economies of some of them have been weakened by the disruption of the broad historic pattern of trade between East and West.

Curtailment of our aid programs will increase the pressures for resumption of such trade. A greater exchange of peaceful goods between East and West—that is, goods not covered by the Battle Act nor otherwise considered national security, and subject to our embargo on Communist China and North Korea, should not cause us undue concern. I shall, of course, take appropriate action to insure that our security is fully safeguarded.

CONVERTIBILITY

The Commission rightly regards positive progress toward currency convertibility as an indispensable condition for a freer and healthier international trade. Steps toward enabling holders of foreign currencies to convert them freely into other currencies deserve our encouragement.

The commission has correctly observed that the initiative and responsibility for introducing currency convertibility must rest with the countries concerned. I am happy to say that such initiative is being taken. The British and other members of the Commonwealth of nations have met twice, in London and in Sydney, to consider plans for convertibility of the pound sterling. The United Kingdom and other important nations of Europe have discussed their aims with us. Individually, they are taking constructive steps affecting their own currencies. In addition, discussions among them which are now under way in connection with the renewal of the European Payments Union are being largely influenced by their desire to prepare the way for convertibility.

Approves Recommendations.

I have approved the Commission's recommendations for co-operation in strengthening the gold and dollar reserves of countries which have prepared themselves for convertibility by sound internal and external policies. These recommendations do not call for new action by the Congress. Authority and procedures for this purpose already exist. The United States will support the use of the resources of the International Monetary Fund as a bulwark to strengthen the currencies of countries which undertake convertibility. In addition, a study is now being made, as suggested by the commission, of the possibility of standby credits from the Federal Reserve System.

Conclusion.

What I have outlined to you is a minimum program which should be judged as a whole. Its various parts are interrelated; each requires the other.

Conceived as a whole, this program consists of four major parts:

Aid—which we wish to curtail;

Investment—which we wish to encourage;

Convertibility — which we wish to facilitate, and Trade—which we wish to expand.

I consider it essential that we achieve each of these objectives, which we must clearly understand are closely interlocked: As we curtail our aid, we must help to close the dollar gap by expanding our foreign investment and trade. This expansion will be facilitated by a return to convertibility of foreign currencies. The return by our friends abroad to convertibility will be encouraged if our trade policy leads them to expect expansion of our foreign trade and investment.

Many Issues at Stake.

Unless we are prepared to adopt the policies I have recommended to expand export and import trade and increase the flow of our capital into foreign investment, our friends abroad may be discouraged in their effort to re-establish a free market for their currencies. If we fail in our trade policy, we may fail in all. Our domestic employment, our standard of living, our security, and the solidarity of the free world—all are involved.

For our own economic growth we must have continuously expanding world markets; for our security we require that our allies become economically strong. Expanding trade is the only adequate solution for these two pressing problems confronting our country.

Highlights of Eisenhower's Foreign Trade Message

WASHINGTON, March 30.

Highlights of President Eisenhower's special message on foreign economic policy:

THE national interest in the field of foreign economic policy is clear. It is to obtain, in a manner that is consistent with our national security and profitable and equitable for all, the highest possible level of trade and the most efficient use of capital and resources. That this would also strengthen our military allies adds urgency . . .

Together we and our friends abroad must work at the task of lowering the unjustifiable barriers—not all at once but gradually and with full regard for our own interests. In this effort, the United States must take the initiative . . .

The United States stands ready and able to produce and sell more than the rest of the world can buy from us. The inability of many foreign countries to buy our goods in the volume we would like to sell . . . arises out of an inability of these nations to pay—in dollars—for the volume we have to sell.

Dollar grants are no lasting solution to this impasse.

The solution is a higher level of two-way trade . . .

Failure . . . will directly threaten our domestic economy, for it will doom our efforts to find ways by which others, through their own efforts, can buy our goods . . .

Beyond our economic interest, the solidarity of the free world and the capacity of the free world to deal with those who would destroy it are threatened by continued unbalanced trade relationships—the inability of nations to sell as much as they desire to buy . . .

I am convinced that the gradual and selective revision of our tariffs, through the tested method of negotiation with other nations, is an essential ingredient of the continuing growth of our domestic economy . . .

Economic aid cannot be continued indefinitely. We must distinguish between an emergency and a chronic malady, between a special case and a general rule.

I subscribe, therefore, to the principle that economic aid on a grant basis should be terminated as soon as possible consistent with our national interest.

A greater exchange of peaceful goods between east and west—That is, goods not covered by the Battle Act nor otherwise considered strategic—so far as it can be achieved without jeopardizing national security, and subject to our embargo on Communist China and North Korea, should not cause us undue concern. If we fail in our trade policy, we may fail in all. Our domestic employment, our standard of living, our security, and the solidarity of the free world—all are involved.

Eisenhower Calls for Tariff Cuts to Expand World Trade

session of Congress legislation to give the American Merchant Marine the "greatest possible support" by "direct means," presumably by subsidies, rather than by preferential treatment, such as current law which provides that 50 per cent of our foreign economic and military aid goods must be carried in American ships.

Technical Co-operation.

8. Vigorous continuation of the technical co-operation program for under-developed countries by providing experts and know-how rather than shipments of goods. Such funds, the message said, "should not provide capital for investment but should be so administered as to fit the programs of development of the assisted countries and they should be related to any private or public investment likely to be forthcoming.

9. Notice to our allies and other free countries that "economic aid cannot be continued indefinitely" and such aid on a grant basis should be terminated as soon as consistent with our national interest. Mutual military aid, where the expenditure is beyond the economic capacity of another country, the message said, should be in the form of grants, but in other situations "where the interest of the United States requires that dollars not otherwise available to a country should be provided, such support to the maximum extent appropriate should be in the form of loans rather than grants."

10. Without new legislation, the executive branch of the Government will help and encourage other countries, particularly the United Kingdom and other members of the British Commonwealth, to achieve free convertibility of their currencies.

11. Approval of pending legislation to increase the duty free allowance for tourists from $500 to $1000 a person, exercisable every six months. Eisenhower said that from time to time he would have other legislative recommendations to stimulate travel.

Randall Holds 'Seminar.'

As an education document to stimulate interest in the need for lowering trade and currency barriers, the message was not impressive. Randall held a "seminar" yesterday to brief reporters on its contents but to almost every question he declined to go beyond the President's words or to give examples of what the recommendations were intended to do.

Randall said that the message had the full approval of the President and the Cabinet and he announced with pride that the recommendations had had the unanimous approval of the seven presidential appointees on the Economic Policy Commission. He would not discuss the probable legislative fate of the proposals except to say that the two controversial items were the three-year extension of the present reciprocal trade agreement law and revision of the "Buy American" act.

The commission's own report bristled with dissents and separate statements and it was next to impossible to tell what individual members had advocated.

Three General Dissenters.

The general dissenters were only three but their combined influence in Congress outweighs the legislative influence of all the other members. They were Chairman Daniel A. Reed of the House Ways and Means Committee, which will handle most of the proposed legislation; Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, a high-ranking member of this committee, and Chairman Eugene D. Millikin of the Senate Finance Committee, which will take over after the House has acted on it.

Reed and Simpson are high tariff zealots and Millikin is lukewarm when he is not cold to changes in the present law.

The present trade agreements law will expire on June 12 and it is questionable whether it will be extended for more than one year. Reed, who has frequently been at odds with the Eisenhower Administration, could postpone hearings — or prolong hearings—close to the expiration date.

During the Roosevelt Administration, a large block of Republicans in both the Senate and House opposed the mere extension of the law. In later years, however, when the "peril point" and "escape clauses" were added at the insistence of the late Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, most Republicans supported the law.

These Vandenberg provisions, generally opposed by Democrats, permit the President to increase tariff rates if the federal tariff commission finds that imports of specific products imperil the sale of domestic goods. The President can, however, disregard the commission's recommendations if he decides that the broader national interest is served by retention of the current rates.

Eisenhower's Authority.

On this point Mr. Eisenhower told Congress:

"Whenever recourse is had to these provisions, I shall carefully consider the findings and recommendations of the Tariff Commission. My responsibilities for the welfare of the nation require that I continue to base my decisions at times on broader grounds than the Tariff Commission is empowered to consider."

Both Mr. Truman and Mr. Eisenhower disregarded the recommendations of the commission on one or two occasions.

Mr. Eisenhower told Congress that his recommendations were based on "the plain truth" that "if we wish to sell abroad we must buy abroad."

His greatest support is likely to come from representatives of the farm belt and from those cities which produce machinery for export. He pointed out that if tariff rates remain where they are "the only practicable alternative is to reduce exports," and added:

"Our farms would have to sell less, since the products of 40,000,000 acres, amounting to 10 to 12 per cent of our agriculture, would have to find their markets outside our own country. Moreover, if their export markets were curtailed, American factories selling their products throughout the world would have to reduce employment. It is a very important fact that over 4,000,000 American workers depend on international trade for their employment."

Going beyond the economic aspects of the problem, he said that if international trade is increased "we shall, at the same time, enhance our own military security by strengthening our friends abroad. Thus shall we assure those sources of imports that supplement our domestic production and are vital to our defense. Thus shall we raise our standard of living and aid in the development of a better world for all of us and our children."

Washington Comment Runs For and Against Tariff Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Representative Halleck of Indiana, the Republican leader in the House, said of the tariff message, "the President has again demonstrated his capacity as a leader of all the people."

House Speaker Martin (Rep.), Massachusetts, reserved comment, but Representative Kean (Rep.), New Jersey, a member of the tariff-handling ways and means committee, said "a gradual reduction in tariffs" is desirable.

Senator Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, chairma nof the Senate Banking Committee which is expected to handle part of the legislative program outlined in the message, said, "Generally speaking, it's excellent."

Asked whether he disagrees with any features of it, he declined to go farther than a "generally speaking" indorsement.

HOUSE GIVES FINAL APPROVAL TO AIR FORCE ACADEMY BILL

WASHINGTON, March 30 (UP)—The House gave a final indorsement late yesterday to legislation authorizing the Air Force to build its own academy, comparable to the Army's at West Point and the Navy's at Annapolis.

The bill now goes to the White House for the President's signature, which is assured.

Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott will select the site with the help of a commission which he will appoint. Up to $126,000,000 can be spent on the new service school.

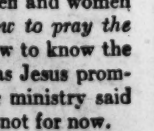
Health and freedom found


SCIENCE AND HEALTH
with Key to the Scriptures by MARY BAKER EDDY is showing multitudes of thankful men and women how to find health and freedom—how to pray the healing prayer of understanding. How to know the Truth which will "make you free," as Jesus promised. Nothing in Christ Jesus' entire ministry said his healing method was for then but not for now.
Christian Science has come as the promised Comforter to restore the lost element of healing to modern religion. It shows the sick, as well as others in need of help, how to claim and have their God-given freedom from fear, sickness, and lack.

Is the recession over?

A respectable case can be made that the 1953-54 business readjustment may be about over. To be sure, industrial production has ebbed 12 per cent since last summer, and some cities and industries are feeling the unpleasant after-effects of that decline. But in the economy as a whole, production appears to be leveling and should soon rise. Steel use, for example, is now outrunning production by 15 per cent. As CEA Chairman Arthur Burns recently observed, "a foundation is being laid for a new economic advance."

FOR WHAT the U. S. has been experiencing to date, Burns and most other economists agree, has been primarily an inventory readjustment; the most clucked-over inventory readjustment in history, perhaps, but an unclogging of the nation's supply pipelines nevertheless. The turnabout from inventory building to inventory reduction has cut demand for goods by $14 billion a year while "final purchases" have dropped less than half that much.

WHAT complicates matters, of course, is that the nation has also been readjusting from a part-war to a peace economy. In most discussions of this larger transition, however, two immensely important facts have had less attention than they deserve. The first is that consumers have remained remarkably unperturbed by all the glooming and brooding about the economic outlook. Savings have risen slightly, but only because people have been paying off debts (and getting in shape for a new round of credit buying).

WHILE the politicians and pundits have been arguing whether we are in a "depression," "recession," or "readjustment," the consumer has been blithely treating the present for what it is, a period of unusual prosperity. Although sales of specific items such as cars and appliances have sagged sufficiently to make news (both have picked up recently), last month Americans were earning and, in the aggregate, spending just about as much as in the record year 1953.

THE SECOND fact that is frequently overlooked is that most consumers have never had it so good. Consumer prices have not changed appreciably for more than two years now. Price stability for that long in a time of rising wages and incomes is unprecedented. It even connotes a sort of economic millennium. For price-stability with rising wages has meant a rise in the "real" standard of living for millions of Americans and a respite from the corrosive effect of inflation for those living on fixed incomes. With prices right and consumers buying, it might well be asked what all the shooting is about.

UNEMPLOYMENT, of course, is the answer. The March figures, when announced, conceivably may record a further rise in joblessness. And Dwight Eisenhower, in effect, promised to take "remedial" action if any substantial rise occurred in March. But there is one fact about the present unemployment situation worth noting. The present range of 3,400,000 to 3,700,000 unemployed is remarkably low for a year of business decline. In the 1949-50 recession the work force was smaller and unemployment rose considerably higher—i.e., to 4,700,000.

IF THE government provides a salubrious business climate (it has already provided ample money and credit), the nation's long-term readjustment from war to peace may be accomplished as expeditiously and with as little relative discomfort as has been the current inventory cleanup. For the business community, no less than the consuming public, seems remarkably confident about the future. As Sears, Roebuck's retiring chairman, General Robert E. Wood, remarked, "The people of this country couldn't talk themselves into a depression if they tried."

A GOOD many business executives apparently agree with General Wood. Despite all the recession talk, a substantial number have announced impressive expansion programs. According to the F. W. Dodge reports, in fact, new construction awards rose to an all-time high for the first two months of the year, and non-residential construction awards were up 21 per cent from a year ago. General Motors' billion-dollar pledge of faith in the economy and in its own ability to expand sales beyond the $10-billion level naturally made the biggest headlines.

BUT THERE were other sizable corporate bets being placed on continued industrial growth and prosperity. General Electric planned to spend $160 million on expansion in 1954 and a like amount in 1955; Standard Oil of Indiana earmarked half a billion dollars for expansion in the next two years; Standard of California mapped a $275-million expansion and drilling program for 1954. The Bell System companies will lay out $1.4 billion; the electric utilities $3 billion as compared with $2.8 billion last year. Steel firms, despite all the forebodings of the Cassandras, plan to invest another three-quarters of a billion dollars in modernization and added capacity in 1954.

BUSINESSMEN do not invest such large sums in expansion unless they expect their sales to increase. Nor do they commit such sums if they believe new plant is going to become much cheaper than it is today. And consumers do not keep spending as freely as they have been if they expect their incomes or prices to drop substantially. Thus, by their actions to date, both businessmen and consumers have demonstrated considerably steadier nerves than have the political and professional pundits.

AND THIS raises an interesting question for the "experts" to ponder in their contemplation of the economic outlook. When there is such widespread confidence in the long-term prospects for prosperity, can any readjustment possibly get very bad? The fact that neither businessmen nor consumers appear perturbed about the outlook for next year or the year after is probably the best assurance that this "recession" year will turn out to be the second best in the nation's history, and that the present inventory readjustment, if not already completed, soon will be.

DONNELLY DENIES PLEA FOR ROAD SAFETY ACTION

Exhaustive Study of All Phases of Problem Needed Before Enacting Laws, He Says.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today denied the request of the Missouri House that he enlarge the field of legislation which might be considered at the current special session so that highway safety measures might be taken up.

The Legislature, in special session, may consider only matters to which its attention is specifically directed by the Governor in his proclamation. In a resolution adopted March 10, the House asked Donnelly to permit consideration of highway safety measures, including a highway speed limit law.

"I regret that I do not deem it advisable to comply with this petition," Donnelly said today in his reply to the House.

Thorough Survey Needed.

"It is my firm conviction that a thorough and exhaustive study and survey of all phases of highway safety are essential prior to the enactment of highway safety legislation. This is necessary in order to determine the kind and character of legislation that could best cope with and solve in as great a degree as possible the vital problem of highway traffic safety."

Despite all that has been accomplished through various suggestions and proposals advanced over a long period of time, Donnelly said, "this ghastly carnage on our highways continues, resulting in an appalling loss of life and property damage running into millions of dollars."

He reviewed at length the various arguments advanced as to what actions should be taken, pointing out that there are great differences of opinion as to whether maximum or minium speed laws are required, whether the speed of automobiles should be mechanically governed and whether highways should be built differently.

Scope of Survey.

Resolution of these differences in opinion require a thorough study of the cause, type, location and time of occurrence of all accidents on the highways over a period of years, Donnelly said.

Such a survey, he pointed out, would be impossible in the remaining days of the limited 60-day special session and even would have been impossible had he included the subject matter in his original call.

For this reason, he said, he had directed the legislators to consider creation of a Missouri Highway Safety Committee to conduct a survey of highway safety needs and report back to the next general session which will convene in January 1955.

T bill establishing such a committee has been passed by the Senate and is pending in the House.

Missouri highway patrol records show that in 1952 there were 15,355 highway accidents in the state in which 834 persons were killed and 11,232, injured, Donnelly said. In 1953 there were 15,554 accidents, 821 deaths and 11,332 persons injured. Statistics for the first two months of 1954 were comparable with the same periods of 1952 and 1953, he said.

These statistics indicate that, while the problem of highway safety is acute, it has not become more so in the last few years, he said.

MEN CAN'T SOLVE H-BOMB PROBLEM, GRAHAM ASSERTS

LONDON, March 30 (INS)—Evangelist Billy Graham warned last night that the hydrogen bomb "would almost destroy civilization" and urged the people of the world to turn to God as their only hope.

Graham told a capacity audience at London's Harringay Arena:

"If there was ever an hour when we need to turn to God it is now. The problems we face have gotten beyond man."

The sermon was carried by special hookup from the arena to a crowded movie house in southeast London.

Lady Churchill Ill at Home.

LONDON, March 30 (UP)—Lady Churchill, wife of the Prime Minister, is confined to her room with an attack of neuritis in her arms, it was announced today.

13 Hurt in Moroccan Blast.

MARRAKECH, French Morocco, March 30 (AP)—Two Britons, a Swiss and 10 Moroccans were injured last night by the explosion of a home-made bomb in a Marrakech cafe. Police blamed independence-seeking nationalists.

GEN. JOHN CANNON RETIRING TOMORROW, AIR PIONEER

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—Gen. John K. Cannon, chief of the Tactical Air Command, will retire tomorrow after 37 years of duty. His is the longest service record of any Air Force officer.

A ceremony marking his retirement will be held at Bolling Air Force Base here, with a flyover salute by more than 40 jet fighters and jet bombers and a parade of about 2000 troops. At the ceremony Cannon will be presented with a third oak leaf cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal.

Cannon, who recently reached the mandatory retirement age of 62, entered military service as a second lieutenant of the infantry reserve in 1917, and started his air career in a pilot school in 1921. He was director of the Berlin air lift operation when Russia tried to stop the flow of supplies to that city.

How much was your first stock purchase?

[ONE-MINUTE INTERVIEWS WITH SHARE OWNERS]

PATRICIA N. BOGLEY, secretary, Chevy Chase, Md. Actually, only half a share. I know it isn't much yet, but I just began buying through the Monthly Investment Plan. I hope, though, to build up a little estate for myself. I always thought it took "big money" to own stock, but it doesn't. Look at me!

OSCAR A. HUNSICKER, Jr., attorney, Akron, O. $1,000 worth. I'd always wanted to own a business, and through stock I now own shares in some of the biggest businesses in the world. Sure, I share the risks, but if I've chosen successful companies, I share the profits, too.

CATHERINE GLUTH, business woman, Baltimore, Md. 100 shares, but that was a long time ago. Since then I've bought more, because I like the income I get from my stocks. When I retire, I hope the dividends will enable me to do some of the things I've always dreamed of doing.

JOHN HOBLACK, maint. worker, Dearborn, Mich. Five shares in a food company. I wanted a good return on my money, and when I learned companies on the New York Stock Exchange pay out half of the nation's dividends, averaging 6%, I put my money in stock.

Would you like to know more about stocks? Then call on a stockbroker. Talk to him. Ask his opinion. Money problems are his specialty, and almost everyone's problem is different. Discuss your goal with him. Tell him how much you have to invest, whether you want to invest primarily for income or to increase your capital, at greater risk.

A good broker is like a good doctor or a good lawyer—someone good to know.

The door is open at every member firm of the New York Stock Exchange. You'll be more than welcome, whether you want to invest or just get information. Come in, write or telephone, as you prefer.

FREE BOOKLET tells you what stocks are, what cash dividends typical stocks pay, how to buy stocks and about the new Monthly Investment Plan. For free copy of Investment Facts, get in touch with your local member firm or write the New York Stock Exchange, P.O. Box 252, New York 5, New York.

Assistant Brewmaster Howard Finke checks hops shipment

From the finest fragrant hops comes the mellow smoothness of this Great Beer

A full forty feet high grow the finer hops that go into today's GB. And as they push upward toward the sun and air, they gain a flavor all their own. A fine rich flavor gained from the fertile earth of the world's finest hop-producing areas. From this subtle flavor comes the mellow taste and smoother body that helps make GB the greatest beer in our history.

Only the finest of the world's hops, carefully selected and skillfully blended, are good enough for the Original Griesedieck Bros. use. Of course they cost more, but they're well worth it. For these more expensive hops make a definite difference. They help create the true beer taste that leaves you light and refreshed. And they are part of the reason why today's GB is kind and mellow to the tongue...

We've heard it said that "brewing great beer demands the finest hops," and because we agree, only the best go into GB. From the warm West Coast come superior Fuggles and selected Seedless Clusters to blend with the best Hallertau.

The cost, well above the national average. We could buy our hops for one-third as much as we do. But there will be no compromise with quality, for it takes the best to brew the best. And the GB of today is brewed with the heart as well as the hands.

We hope you will try GB soon. Look for the distinctive red and black shield wherever you buy or drink beer. Then have some. You'll enjoy its kind and happy taste... its less-filling flavor.

GB–Greatest Beer in Our History Brewed Five Ways Finer for You...

1. Skillful brewing–backed by over 150 years of Griesedieck Bros. tradition and a world-renowned brewmaster–guarantees you a genuine light lager beer.

2. The choicest hops, carefully selected from the world's finest producing areas for top quality, create mellow flavor.

3. The best in barley malt helps give GB its white creamy foam... its clear golden color... its smooth brilliant body.

4. Ageing twice as long as many popular-priced beers, means GB is never hurried. Comes to you smooth as a smile.

5. Never an artificial ingredient, always purest quality, plus GB's exclusive patented pure-culture yeast, means the Greatest Beer in our history.

STEVENSON WORKS ON SPEECH IN HIS HOSPITAL ROOM

DURHAM, N.C., March 30 (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson began work today in his hospital room on a major political speech.

Doctors said the Democratic leader virtually had recovered from a mild kidney attack and probably would be able to leave Duke University Hospital either late today or early tomorrow. Further X-rays were planned first, however, to determine the progress of a small kidney stone which physicians said they did not consider serious.

Stevenson was permitted to begin work on an address he will make to a meeting of Young Democrats in Charlotte, N.C., Friday.

He suffered the kidney attacks Saturday and Sunday at the Southern Pines (N.C.) home of his sister, Mrs. Ernest L. Ives. The attacks were recurrences of kidney trouble for which Stevenson underwent surgery some time ago, doctors said.

EAST GERMANY SERVES DEMAND FOR RECOGNITION

Calls on West to Withdraw Military Missions, Replace Them With Attaches.

BERLIN, March 30 (AP) — East Germany's Moscow-trained strong man, Deputy Premier Walter Ulbricht, demanded today that the United States, Britain and France get their military missions out of East Germany.

In a speech at the first Socialist Unity (Communist) party congress here in four years, he linked this with a bid for the long-denied diplomatic recognition of East Germany by the West.

"The German Democratic Republic is ready to take up normal diplomatic, consular and trade relations with all countries," he said.

Western diplomats took this to mean he wants the military missions in East Germany only as part of regular diplomatic missions. The Allies have refused to recognize the East Zone regime as representative of East Germany's 18,000,000 people. The military missions are on duty at Potsdam under an old four-power agreement. Under the same agreement, Russia maintains three military missions in West Germany. They are in the United States, British and French zones.

Using the sovereignty proclaimed for East Germany by Russia March 25 as a springboard, Ulbricht told the delegates that maintenance of missions in light of this development would be "incompatible."

The West has labeled the East German sovereignty a sham, particularly since Russia will maintain troops in the East and has reserved the right to act in matters of security.

But Ulbricht said his Communist government is ready to put its relations with the three western powers "on a new basis."

"Following the declaration by the Soviet government (on sovereignty) there are a series of questions to be settled in the future directly between the Western states and the government of the German democratic republic," he said.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov tried repeatedly to engineer Western recognition at the recent Berlin four-power conference.

The Western allies rejected all Molotov's moves and Western officials were quick to reject the latest bid by Ulbricht.

VETERAN REFUSING TO SIGN FOR DRAFT GETS THREE YEARS

CHICAGO, March 30 (AP)—John Forbes, 27-year-old World War II veteran, had to be dragged from a federal courtroom yesterday after he was sentenced to three years in prison for refusing to register for the draft.

Forbes sagged to the floor and refused to rise after Judge John P. Barnes sentenced him. Six deputy marshals dragged him to the elevator and to the lockup two floors above the courtroom.

"It's terrible," screamed his mother, Mrs. Russell Forbes. "They let a swindler go but they give my boy three years."

Forbes, convicted by a jury for refusing to register for the draft under the 1948 law, would not have been eligible for the draft by reason of his 21 months' service in the Army.

Forbes, a medical technician at Hines Veterans Hospital, enlisted in the Army's A12 training program in 1944 at the age of 17 and was honorably discharged after serving 21 months.

WILLIAM PLOCH DIES DAY AFTER HIS WIFE SUCCUMBS

William Ploch, a retired machinist, died today at his home, 621 East Pope avenue, 24 hours after the death of his wife, Elizabeth. He was 86 years old, his wife 65. Mr. Ploch had been in poor health five years and bedridden the last two. Mrs. Ploch, who had been in good health until last week, died of pneumonia.

They are survived by four sons, Earl, Chester, George and Raymond Ploch, and two daughters, Mrs. Wanda Miller and Mrs. Willetta Herbst. Also surviving are Mr. Ploch's son by a former marriage, William Ploch, and Mrs. Ploch's daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Marie Anderson.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at Math Hermann & Sons undertaking establishment, Fair and West Florissant avenues, with burial in Laurel Hill Gardens.

2 MEN SEIZED WITH PAPERS SAID TO BE POLICY BETS

Two men were arrested today in the 2700 block of Sutton boulevard, Maplewood in the act of exchanging a bundle of top sheets on which policy bets had been recorded, Capt. Philip K. Moeller of the St. Louis county gambling, vice and liquor squad announced.

The men were booked as Otis Wilbur Lee, 8700 block of Bridgeport avenue, Brentwood, and Otis McErwee, Negro, of the 600 block of North Leffingwell avenue. With a search warrant, the squad then went to Lee's home and confiscated a large quantity of policy slips, top sheets, daily report sheets and a number of records.

Lee said he was owner and operator of the Brooklyn Policy Game with headquarters in his home, Moeller reported. McErwee reportedly said he received the top sheets he was giving to Lee from an unidentified man in the city.

ITALY-JAPAN-INDONESIA TRADE AGREEMENT PROPOSED

TOKYO, March 30 (AP)—Italy has proposed a three-way trade agreement with Japan and Indonesia, Kyodo news service said today.

Indonesia would sell rubber and copra to Italy, Japan would ship textiles to Indonesia, and Italy would supply Japan with "whatever this country wants that Italy has to export."

Austin takes you there and back for the one-way price!

The new low-priced 5-passenger AUSTIN CONVERTIBLE at $1890 stretches a gallon of gas about 35 miles—and cuts your operating costs in half!

Smart 1954 Austin Somerset Convertible with 3-position top, $1890 f.o.b. coastal ports of entry

How would you like to ride free every second mile you drive? Go 350 miles without refueling? Get back real change every time you hand your gasoline dealer a five-dollar bill?

AUSTIN owners do all these things. They begin by saving as much as $1000 the day they buy the luxurious AUSTIN Somerset Convertible at $1890* or the 4-door Sedan at $1695*—instead of a bigger, more expensive car which can't do half the things an AUSTIN can.

They actually save even more, because the AUSTIN comes factory-equipped with a long list of de luxe features that cost you not one penny extra!

De Luxe Features at No Extra Cost

For instance: foam-rubber cushions and tough, worry-free upholstery—you don't need seat covers. A revolutionary jacking system which operates from inside the car. Electric windshield wipers that don't slow down on hills. The latest 12-volt ignition system for instant starts in any weather.

More Fun to Drive

The 1954 AUSTIN is not only thriftier to drive, but much more fun. It handles like a sports car. Accelerates from a standing start to 50 m.p.h. in 19.8 seconds. It cruises at 65, and the maximum speed is in excess of 70 m.p.h. You can park it where other cars wouldn't begin to fit.

No wonder AUSTIN owners drive this lively imported car everywhere. They fill it with kids, dogs, camping equipment. Tow trailers with it. Take it on family picnics. And have twice as much fun for every dollar they spend.

But don't take our word for it. Get a demonstration at your nearest AUSTIN dealer's, below. Also ask about AUSTIN's worldwide delivery plan. Or write to

Why most Americans stand straighter today

Equitable's President tells a story of self-reliance and how it grows as insurance grows

Nearly 90,000,000 Americans are now protected by life insurance...

A tremendous figure?

Yes. But looking at it another way it is pretty strong evidence that there's a whale of a lot of self-reliance in the make-up of the average American.

And he's learned that one of the best ways to do it is through insurance.

The Equitable Society today helps protect over 8,000,000 people—a record number!

To see what lies behind their self-reliance, look at the figures in The Society's Annual Statement shown here.*

While we are the fifth largest corporation in the United States, we're not in business just to publish big figures.

We are in business to help more Americans help themselves to individual security and independence.

To this end we are continually developing new kinds of insurance...using the tool of intensive research to create modern and forward-looking policies.

Recently, for example, we pioneered a new Major Medical Expense Policy. Now we have revised and liberalized it still further. This policy helps protect families against financial disaster resulting from costly or prolonged illness. Its coverage is broadened...its cost is reasonable.

We believe this policy clearly demonstrates how independent citizens, working through a mutual company, can build for themselves the kind of insurance program Americans need.

How to stop smoking

Should you stop all at once, or taper off? How can you pick the easiest time to quit?

April Reader's Digest brings you a condensation from Herbert Brean's step-by-step book.

He tells why you should think it over for a few days before you swear off; why you shouldn't start the experiment the day you have an important meeting or are throwing a party; how to lick the inevitable temptation "just one won't hurt" . . . and other pointers to help you stop smoking.

SYMINGTON SAYS 'NEW LOOK' HAS HURT AIR FORCE

figure might be indicated, he said, the efforts to explain away the gap with various slogans such as "a bigger bang for a buck" do not explain, in spite of the progress made in nuclear weapons.

"It still takes airplanes to deliver bombs on targets," Symington argued, "and that delivery job gets more expensive all the time, primarily because Soviet defenses are getting steadily stronger."

Says Figures Are Juggled.

Symington accused the Administration of juggling figures to try to give the appearance of making about 15 billion dollars available for the Air Force next year. This was done, he said, by including a carryover of $2,600,000,000 of unobligated funds in the money available and by adding in a billion dollars of public works funds.

The Missouri Senator does not like this sort of a "new look." The only reason such a large carryover of unobligated funds is available is on account of "refusal to utilize the obligational authority" provided by the Congress, he said.

"Prior to 1953," the Senator said, "A 10 per cent carryover of unobligated procurement funds might be considered more or less normal." But a 50 per cent carryover simply means that the Administration is refusing to spend money for the purposes for which it was appropriated.

Actually, Symington said, "only one-tenth of one billion has been obligated" since five billion dollars became available last July.

"It is possible," he continued, "that the new management will continue this numbers game to the point where, once more, they will take credit for these same unused funds as representing additional emphasis on air power."

The significance of these large carryovers, Symington said, "is simple. It lies in the two-year postponement of our air power build up—from 1955 to 1957—that has taken place under the so-called new look."

Atomic Secrecy.

Although Symington is a member of the Armed Services Committee of the Senate, the secrecy with which the nuclear weapons program and tests are surrounded is such that he must get much of his information from the press and public statements of members of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

This makes it impossible, he told the Senate, for the Congress to understand whether plans for any possible future war are being undertaken with the weapons of the past war; whether preparations are being based on the traditions of previous habits; and whether current strategic and logistic planning recognizes the changes in military strategy required by atomic fission and hydrogen weapons.

Difficult to Plan.

The lack of information makes it impossible for the Senate Armed Services Committee to assess "the relative value of weapons systems or of strategic and logistic planning until the budget came before the Appropriations Committee."

The questions of broad military policy should be handled before the Armed Services Committee, Symington contended. In the Appropriations Committee, he said, it is figures that are considered primarily, rather than forces and strategy.

Both last year and this, the Missourian said, he had written to the chairman of the Armed Services Committee and had presented the importance of having the committee study and evaluate long-range strategic military planning.

Such a study has become now, he said, "even more important because of the further very rapid development, in sizes and quantities, of nuclear weapons."

In his plea for more atomic information for the Senate, Symington quoted Commissioner Murray of the Atomic Energy Commission. Murray said last December: "My personal thesis is simply this: Clear understanding of the facts and implication of the atomic armaments race between the United States and the U.S.S.R. and first hand experience with the phenomena of full-scale atomic explosions are essential for realistic discussion and actions in this supreme problem."

Problem for Congress.

"Where else except in the Congress," Symington demanded, "can the relative desirability of weapons systems (carriers vs. long-range bombers for strategic bombardment, or eight-engine B-52s vs. six-engine B-47s) along with strategic and logistic planning, the key to tens of billions of dollars now spent on national defense by our citizenry, be analyzed independently by civilians?"

Symington's address is expected to have a great deal of influence in determining the Senate's attitude toward the "new look" strategy and the adoption of military policies without congressional knowledge and understanding. Although a junior Senator, Symington is listened to with great respect by his colleagues on military matters.

Now in his second year, Symington is no longer bound by the unwritten rule of the Senate that freshman Senators should be seen and not heard. It can be expected that he will deliver other major addresses on military problems during the present session of the Senate.

Texas Ranger's Trial Set.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 30 (AP)—Texas Ranger Capt. Alfred Allee will be tried April 19 on a charge he tried to murder south Texas political boss George B. Parr. But at the state's request District Judge Arthur Klein dismissed yesterday a similar charge against Ranger Joe Bridge, who was with Allee at the time of a scuffle with Parr at Alice, Tex., Jan. 18.

BREWING FUND TO SHAW'S GARDEN TO STUDY THE HOP

With a $5000 grant from the Brewing Industries Research Institute, Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Gardens here announced today that it is delving deep into the family history of the beer-drinker's favorite flower—the hop.

Edgar Anderson, assistant director of the gardens, said the research will involve classifying existing varieties of hops with the objective, later, of developing improved types.

"There are three species of hops in the world," Anderson, professor of botany at Washington University, declared. "They are the wild American, the Japanese and the common European. Many varieties exist, and we want to determine the relationship they have to one another."

The work with hops was compared by Anderson to the institution's research on beans. Types of beans were classified in a project financed by the Rockefeller Foundation and the Government of Mexico, where beans are a staple of diet.

CENTRAL FALLS, R.I., March 30 (UP)—Patrolman Armand Aubin volunteered as a drowning "victim." A fellow patrolman practiced artificial respiration so ardently that Aubin was out of service for two days with a wrenched side.

FRANK COLLIER FOUND DEAD IN AUTOMOBILE

Member of Public Service Commission Believed Victim of Heart Attack.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30 (AP)—Frank Collier, 52 years old, a Missouri Public Service commissioner, was found dead in his automobile early this morning.

The car was parked across the street from the new Jefferson building which houses the Public Service Commission and the body apparently had been there all night. Death was believed to have been due to a heart attack.

Mr. Collier, a Republican, lived at Mountain Grove. He was appointed by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly last May 13 to succeed Maurice W. Covert.

Mr. Collier had practiced law at Mountain Grove since 1923 after being graduated from Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn., and Baker University, Baldwin, Kan. He served one term as Mountain Grove city attorney and four terms as Wright county prosecuting attorney.

His wife and a daughter survive.

LAST POLISH CONSULATES IN U.S. CLOSED BY REQUEST

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Polish embassy announced today that consulates in New York, Chicago and Detroit "have been closed as requested by the State Department and . . . have now liquidated their affairs."

The department had ordered the closings Feb. 25, saying the offices "serve no useful purposes in the conduct or relations between the United States and Poland at the present time."

Representative Chiperfield (Rep.), Illinois, has said the consulates apparently have been used as outlets for Communist propaganda. They were the last Iron Curtain diplomatic posts in this country outside of Washington.

Danaher Nomination Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed the nomination of John A. Danaher, former Republican Senator from Connecticut, to be a judge of the United States Circuit Court here.

DEMOCRATS GO TO PRESIDENT'S AID ON HOUSING

Eisenhower Program Virtually Scuttled by 2 G.O.P.-Controlled House Committees.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—House Democrats found themselves today in the odd position of trying to rescue President Eisenhower's public housing program, virtually scuttled by two committees dominated by members of Mr. Eisenhower's own party.

The battle was to be joined when the House considered for amendments a $5,566,118,763 appropriation bill to finance for the coming fiscal year the Public Housing Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Veterans Administration, the Atomic Energy Commission, and a number of other agencies.

Overshadowing the money allotments in the bill is a housing provision written in by the House Appropriations Committee and almost certain to be knocked out on a technicality.

This provision would limit to 20,000 the number of low-rent public housing units to be started in the year beginning July 1, with 15,000 more the following year. This program then would end. The 35,000 units were allowed only because the Government already has contracted for them.

President Asked for 140,000.

Thus, the Appropriations Committee flew in the face of Mr. Eisenhower's request of last January for authorization of 140,000 new units in the next four years.

But the House Rules Committee, composed of eight Republicans and four Democrats, went even further. It refused yesterday to sanction the limited housing action of the Appropriations Committee.

The Rules Committee passes on all major legislation before it goes to the House. In this case, it held the Appropriations Committee had overstepped its authority by writing ligislation into a money bill.

The upshot is that an objection by a single House member may knock out the authority for even 20,000 new starts next year.

If this happens, Chairman Taber (Rep.), New York, of the Appropriations Committee said, "the housing program will be dead. . . ."

Not even contracts already made, Taber claimed, could be carried out. Some Democrats disputed this.

Representatives McCormack of Massachusetts, assistant Democratic leader; and Yates of Illinois, a Democratic member of Appropriations Committee, accused Republicans of having "repudiated" Mr. Eisenhower.

Yates said he would offer an amendment to authorize 35,000 additional housing starts next year "and help the President carry out his program." Mr. Eisenhower asked for 35,000 a year.

'His Own Party Won't Help.'

"It's obvious that his own party won't help," Yates said.

But Yates conceded that a technicality may block his amendment.

Yates accused the Appropriations Committee and the House Banking Committee of "using a double-shift to prevent the building of adequate housing for persons displaced by slum clearance."

He referred to last year's action by the Banking Committee approving an omnibus housing bill without any mention of public housing. The Banking Committee measure aims at a stepped-up slum clearance program and more liberal government mortgage insurance.

"It doesn't make sense to clear the slums and then provide no place for the cleared-out people to live," Yates said.

HOUSE VOTES NEW FUNDS FOR BENDER SUBCOMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The House yesterday voted the investigating subcommittee headed by Representative Bender (Rep.), Ohio, $52,000 to stay in business. A month ago it refused to approve any funds for the subcommittee, which asked for $100,000.

Bender immediately announced that part of the money would be used to continue his investigation of labor racketeering. Minneapolis will be the first stop, he said. His group also has plans to look into labor conditions in Los Angeles, Detroit and Cleveland.

Chairman Lecompte (Rep.), California, of the House Administration Committee, which wrote the legislation for the appropriation, interpreted yesterday's House action differently than Bender. Lecompte said it was his "off hand opinion" that the legislation would prohibit using the funds for investigating labor racketeering.

GLENN RIDER INSTALLED BY MISSOURI PHOTOGRAPHERS

Glenn Rider of Kansas City was installed last night as president of the Missouri Photographers Association, succeeding Lew Carna, owner of Carna Studios, 4601 Virginia avenue. Installation was at the association's annual banquet of its three-day convention, which ends today, at Sheraton Hotel.

Other officers installed included: Ted Markham of Advertisers Photographic Studios here, vice president; Leon Smith of Columbia, treasurer, and Frank Gress of Brookfield, secretary.

Free Booklet Tells How Deaf Hear Again With Startling Clarity, Ease

CHICAGO (Special)—New hope for the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing was voiced by a noted Chicago acoustical scientist.

He reported that through the miracle of modern electronics it is now possible to overcome deafness even if the loss is severe.

He demonstrated how the deaf can hear again with a clarity and ease they never dreamed possible.

According to this electronic engineer, Mr. Sam Posen of Beltone, "the longer a hearing loss is neglected, the harder it is to recapture certain speech sounds and understand them."

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with what may be done to help the deaf hear again with miraculous clarity, full authoritative details about deafness and how to overcome it are described in an informative, new, illustrated booklet, which will be sent in a plain wrapper without any cost or obligation.

To obtain your free copy, simply send your request to: Electronic Research Director, Dept. 0008, Beltone Hearing Aid Co., 2900 W. 36th St., Chicago 32, Ill. A postcard will do.

WILSON TERMS H-BOMB TESTS 'UNBELIEVABLE'

President's desk when reporters were shooed from the room.

Secretary Wilson spoke of the results of the tests as "unbelievable" in his regular weekly news conference.

But he turned aside all questions as to why they were unbelievable, saying reporters would have to put them to Strauss.

Report on Trigger Method.

(The United Press quoted an official source who asked not to be identified as saying one of the recent shots employed a method of triggering and an unidentified material used by the Russians in their test H-bomb explosion last August. This apparently was the March 1 explosion.

(Another anonymous source said the United States has little if any technological lead in the field of hydrogen weapons, the U.P. reported. He asserted that they are relatively easy to make. By 1960, he said, it is possible that nations like France, for example, may possess H-bombs.)

Wilson was pressed especially for his views on the hydrogen weapon as a deterrent to stop Russia from risking war.

He replied that "the whole atomic business has been a deterrent" and added that this has been "the basic policy in defense for a number of years."

Why, a reporter asked, is the H-bomb more of a deterrent than the others.

Wilson said, "the H-bomb is a further expansion of the violence of explosion per pound" of material.

Depending on the Bombs.

He was asked if nerve gas and germ warfare also are considered deterernt weapons.

The hydrogen and atomic bombs "are the things we are depending on as a deterrent against starting a war," Wilson answered.

At another point Wilson said in answer to a question that it would be "awfully foolish" to spend billions on nuclear bombs "if you don't expect to use them under certain conditions of war."

One reporter told Wilson he had heard that in the test of a thermonuclear weapon last Friday "the plane delivering the bomb had difficulty."

Wilson replied that he had "no such report," and in reply to another question said that his answer applied both to the question about using a plane and to the difficulty reported. There has been no authoritative indication that either of the two thermonuclear explosions in this series of tests has involved planes. Both tests apparently were conducted with bombs mounted on steel towers.

Against 'Scaring Everybody.'

Reporters wanted to know how, for the purpose of bolstering interest in civil defense, the public could be told more about the "unbelievable" results of the experiments. Wilson had no ready answer for this but said he didn't think that you should "scare everybody so they can't sleep nights."

In reply to a series of questions about making more information available to the American people, Wilson said "they are informed way beyond all other peoples," and that the Russians "are not telling them (their people) the facts, they are putting out a line of propaganda."

The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed the latest test detonation in a brief announcement. It said "the second test of the present thermonuclear series was successfully carried out on Friday, March 26."

The AEC said "information highly important to national defense is being derived from this test series." It gave no hint of the intensity of this latest blast, touched off in secrecy at the Government's testing ground in the mid-Pacific Marshall islands. Nor did it indicate whether the actual H-bomb was exploded, or another thermonuclear "device" like the first one set off in the Marshalls in October 1953.

Excitement Over Earlier Blast.

The announcement came before the tumult of excitement and protest over the hydrogen explosion of March 1—first in the current series—had died down.

From all indications, that explosion—which involved an actual, usable hydrogen weapon—exceeded scientific expectations. It is reported to have packed a wallop 600 or 700 times greater than the atomic bomb that virtually obliterated Hiroshima and killed 60,000 persons in the waning days of World War II.

Because its effects were not fully anticipated, 379 persons, including Americans, Pacific natives and Japanese fishermen many miles away, were exposed to radioactive rays or dust.

Since details of the March 1 test began coming out demands have been rising in Congress for President Eisenhower to let the public in on the real scope and significance of that explosion.

In Tokyo last night, Japanese health officials condemned as harmfully radioactive an 80,000-pound tuna fish catch brought in by another fishing boat that was 200 miles from the explosion. They hadn't made up their minds whether to condemn the 74,000-pound catch of a third craft that showed signs of radiation, even though it was 780 miles away.

The AEC announcement showed that officials took special pains before Friday's test.

"In preparation for the test," AEC said, "the naval and Air Force units attached to the task force carefully searched the area both visually and by radar. No shipping was discovered in the area."

Dulles Text: Communists Whip Up Asian Spirit of Nationalism To Add Lands to Soviet Orbit

Purpose Is to Dominate Mineral-Rich Southeast Asia 'Rice Bowl'—U.S. 'Feels That Possibility Should Not Be Passively Accepted.'

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Here is the text of the address by Secretary of State Dulles before the Overseas Press Club of America last night:

THIS meeting of the Overseas Press Club provides a timely occasion for outlining the Administration's thinking about two related matters—Indochina and the Chinese Communist regime.

INDOCHINA

Indochina is important for many reasons. First—and always first—are the human values. About 30,000,000 people are seeking for themselves the dignity of self-government. Until a few years ago, they formed merely a French dependency. Now, their three political units—Viet-Nam, Laos and Cambodia—are exercising much political independence within the French Union. Each of the three is now recognized by the United States and by more than 30 other nations. They signed the Japanese peace treaty with us. Their independence is not yet complete. But the French government last July declared its intention to complete that independence, and negotiations to consummate that pledge are actively under way.

The United States is watching this development with close attention and great sympathy. We do not forget that we were a colony that won its freedom. We have sponsored in the Philippines a conspicuously successful development of political independence. We feel a sense of kinship with those everywhere who yearn for freedom.

COMMUNIST IMPERIALISM.

The Communists are attempting to prevent the orderly development of independence and to confuse the issue before the world. The Communists have, in these matters, a regular line which Stalin laid down in 1924.

The scheme is to whip up the spirit of nationalism so that it becomes violent. That is done by professional agitators. Then the violence is enlarged by Communist military and technical leadership and the provision of military supplies. In these ways, international Communism gets a strangle-hold on the people and it uses that power to "amalgamate" the peoples into the Soviet orbit.

"Amalgamation" is Lenin's and Stalin's word to describe their process.

"Amalgamation" is now being attempted in Indiochina under the ostensible leadership of Ho Chi Minh. He was indoctrinated in Moscow. He became an associate of the Russian Borodin when the latter was organizing the Chinese Communist party which was to bring China into the Soviet orbit. Then Ho transferred his activities to Indochina.

Those fighting under the banner of Ho Chi Minh have largely been trained and equipped in Communist China. They are supplied with artillery and ammunition through the Soviet-Chinese Communist bloc. Captured materiel shows that much of it was fabricated by the Skoda munition works in Czechoslovakia and transported across Russia and Siberia and then sent through China into Viet Nam. Military supplies for the Communist armies have been pouring into Viet Nam at a steadily increasing rate.

Military and technical guidance is supplied by an estimated 2000 Communist Chinese. They function with the forces of Ho Chi Minh in key positions—in staff sections of the high command, at the division level and in specialized units such as signal, engineer, artillery and transportation.

In the present stage, the Communists in Indochina use nationalistic anti-French slogans to win local support. But if they achieved military or political success, it is certain that they would subject the people to a cruel Communist dictatorship taking its orders from Peiping and Moscow.

THE SCOPE OF THE DANGER

The tragedy would not stop there. If the Communist forces won uncontested control over Indochina or any substantial part thereof, they would surely resume the same pattern of aggression against other free peoples in the area.

The propagandists of Red China and Russia make it apparent that the purpose is to dominate all of southeast Asia.

Southeast Asia is the so-called "rice bowl" which helps to feed the densely populated region that extends from India to Japan. It is rich in many raw materials, such as tin, oil, rubber and iron ore. It offers industrial Japan potentially important markets and sources of raw materials.

The area has great strategic value. Southeast Asia is astride the most direct and best developed sea and air routes between the Pacific and south Asia. It has major naval and air bases. Communist control of southeast Asia would carry a grave threat to the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand, with whom we have treaties of mutual assistance. The entire western Pacific area, including the so-called "offshore island chain," would be strategically endangered.

President Eisenhower appraised the situation last Wednesday when he said that the area is of "transcendent importance."

UNITED STATES POSITION.

The United States has shown in many ways its sympathy for the gallant struggle being waged in Indochina by French forces and those of the Associated States. Congress has enabled us to provide material aid to the established governments and their peoples. Also, our diplomacy has sought to deter Communist China from open aggression in that area.

President Eisenhower, in his address of April 16, 1953, explained that a Korean armistice would be a fraud if it merely released aggressive armies for attack elsewhere. I said last September that if Red China sent its own army into Indochina, that would result in grave consequences which might not be confined to Indochina.

Recent statements have been designed to impress upon potential aggressors that aggression might lead to action at places and by means of Free World choosing, so that aggression would cost more than it could gain.

The Chinese Communists have, in fact, avoided the direct use of their own Red armies in open aggression against Indochina. They have, however, largely stepped up their support of the aggression in that area. Indeed, they promote that aggression by all means short of open invasion.

Under all the circumstances it seems desirable to clarify further the United States position.

Under the conditions of today, the imposition on southeast Asia of the political system of Communist Russia and its Chinese Communist ally, by whatever means, would be a grave threat to the whole free community. The United States feels that that possibility should not be passively accepted, but should be met by united action. This might involve serious risks. But these risks are far less than those that will face us a few years from now, if we dare not be resolute today.

The free nations want peace. However, peace is not had merely by wanting it. Peace has to be worked for and planned for. Sometimes it is necessary to take risks to win the peace just as it is necessary in war to take risks to win victory. The chances for peace are usually bettered by letting a potential aggressor know in advance where his aggression could lead him.

I hope that these statements which I make here tonight will serve the cause of peace.

II—COMMUNIST CHINA

Let me now discuss our political relations with Red China, taking first the matter of recognition.

The United States does not recognize the Chinese Communist regime. That is well known. But the reasons seem not so well known. Some think that there are no reasons and that we are actuated purely by emotion. Your Government believes that its position is soberly rational.

NON-RECOGNITION.

Let me first recall that diplomatic recognition is a voluntary act. One country has no right to demand recognition by another. Generally, it is useful that there should be diplomatic intercourse between those who exercise de facto governmental authority and it is well established that recognition does not imply moral approval.

President Monroe, in his famous message to Congress, denounced the expansionist and despotic system of Czarist Russia and its allies. He said that it would nevertheless be our policy "to consider the government de facto as the legitimate government for us." That has indeed been the general United States policy, and I believe that it is a sound general policy. However, where it does not serve our interests, we are free to vary from it.

In relation to Communist China, we are forced to take account of the fact that the Chinese Communist regime has been consistently and viciously hostile to the United States.

A typical Chinese Communist pamphlet reads: "We must hate America, because she is the Chinese people's implacable enemy." "We must despise America because it is a corrupt imperialist nation, the world center of reaction and decadency." "We must look down upon America because she is a paper tiger and entirely vulnerable to defeat."

By print, by radio, by drama, by pictures, with all the propaganda skills which Communism has devised, such themes are propagated by the Red rulers. They vent their hatred by barbarous acts, such as seizures and imprisonments of Americans.

Those responsible for United States policy must ask and answer: "Will it help our country if, by recognition, we give increased prestige and influence to a regime that actively attacks our vital interests?" I can find only the answer "No."

ADMISSION TO THE UNITED NATIONS.

Let us turn now to the matter of seating Red China in the United Nations. By the charter, membership is supposed to be limited to "peace-loving" states. Therefore, it is relevant to re-

McCarthyites Making Desperate Efforts to Head Off Army Inquiry

Administration Fully Prepared to Back Charges Against Senator.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

THERE is no longer any doubt about it, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, is in very bad trouble indeed. Moreover, he knows it. McCarthy and his partisans are now making desperate efforts to negotiate some sort of deal to head off the forthcoming hearings on McCarthy's battle with the Army.

Last week, for example, Richard Berlin, a powerful executive in the Hearst newspaper chain, came to Washington on a special mission. Berlin is one of the original McCarthy backers, and he sponsored Roy M. Cohn as counsel of the McCarthy committee. At a carefully prearranged dinner party, Berlin and McCarthy were brought together with Brig. Gen. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, who is personally close to both Gen. Matthew Ridgway and Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens.

Doesn't Rise to Fly.

The pitch was made over the brandy and cigars. Surely, Berlin said, some reasonable way out of the mess could be found. Perhaps both Cohn and Army Counsel John Adams could be fired, and the matter then dropped. Or perhaps an arbitrator of national stature could be found, to adjudicate the whole matter privately. McCarthy said that this would be "okay with him." But Biddle, apparently, did not rise to the fly.

Other attempts to work out a deal have also failed, but they still go on. Since the Berlin visit, there have been hints that Cohn might be fired, and that McCarthy would not even insist that the Army fire Adams in exchange, if only the whole affair could be buried. There have also been not very veiled threats to the effect that there is plenty of material in the McCarthy files to ruin certain highly placed Defense Department officials, if the Administration "really wants to play rough."

Seeks to Withdraw.

At the same time, an attempt to divorce McCarthy completely from the whole affair is also going forward. McCarthy himself always refers to the "Cohn-Adams hassle," and airily implies that he has nothing to do with this minor mix-up. He says that he has "nothing against Bob Stevens or anyone else in the Administration," the whole business is just trouble-making by "left-wingers." This line is being dutifully parroted by all those who still find it the better part of wisdom to sing whatever tune McCarthy calls.

Yet it is difficult to believe that anyone will be fooled. McCarthy has in effect called Stevens (a) a liar, (b) a blackmailer, and (c) so contemptible a poltroon as to offer to supply "dirt" on the other services in order to buy immunity for himself. Stevens, a naive but honorable man, is not so naive as to believe that all this is in the spirit of good clean fun. "This time," he has told friends, "I'm in it to the end."

Administration Prepared.

This time, moreover, the whole Administration has its guard up. The most careful preparation has been made for the forthcoming contest. Complete substantiation has been found for everything in the Army report on the McCarthy-Cohn matter. For example, according to the report, McCarthy told Adams and Stevens that G. David Schine was a "pest" and a "nuisance," and then hastily asked them not to repeat these views to Cohn. At least two other individuals, who have precisely the same experience with McCarthy ("but for God's sakes don't tell Roy Cohn") have been found, and are available to testify.

The Administration forces believe that McCarthy cannot seriously shake the Army's story. They also believe that the McCarthy story can be shaken and shaken hard—there are even serious internal contradictions in the memoranda so hastily released by McCarthy. Moreover, the Administration has weapons in reserve.

Another Army Report.

Some very damning material was not included in the Army report. What is more, the Army has compiled another report, described as "devastating," on the effects on morale at Fort Dix of the special favors for Schine demanded by Cohn and McCarthy.

All in all, it is not surprising that MacCarthy and company are eager to come to terms. It is not impossible, of course, that the still numerous McCarthy appeasers in the Administration will agree to make a deal with McCarthy, "in the interests of party harmony." But at least the opportunity does clearly exist to restore sanity to the country by defeating once and for all McCarthy's bid to seize control of the Republican party.

Depends on President.

The final outcome, of course, depends on one man, as it always has. Here it may be worth recounting an incident which occurred at a recent correspondents' dinner in Washington. Television broadcaster Edward Murrow suddenly felt a strong hand on his back. He turned to recognize a familiar grin.

"Hello, Ed," said the President, "I was just feeling your back to see if there were any knives sticking in it." The reference was obviously to Murrow's brilliant broadcast on McCarthy. Both men laughed and then Murrow said, "From here on out, it's up to you, Mr. President." No truer word was ever spoken. With McCarthy on the run, the President has a golden opportunity to show once and for all who is the real leader of the Republican party, and of the United States.

Pearl Harbor Blame Put On Roosevelt

Adm. Kimmel's Counsel Says F.D.R. Goaded Japan to Attack.

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP).

THE old dispute over responsibility for the Pearl Harbor disaster has been reopened by R. Adm. Robert A. Theobald (ret.), who places the blame squarely on the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Theobald, who commanded a destroyer flotilla at the Hawaiian base when the Japanese struck Dec. 7, 1941, says in a new book that Roosevelt deliberately goaded Japan into war with the United States. He says Roosevelt kept the United States Pacific fleet in Pearl Harbor to lure the Japanese into attacking it.

Theobald absolved military commanders of responsibility because he says they were "obeying orders under circumstances which were professionally most trying to them."

In this connection, Theobald says that the top military command knew for certain two months in advance that Japan planned to strike at Pearl Harbor, but he says they repeatedly failed to alert military chiefs in Hawaii. Theobald traces this to Roosevelt.

Theobald's book, "The Final Secrets of Pearl Harbor," is copyrighted in the weekly magazine "U.S. News and World Report." The magazine got the right to print the entire text in its current issue, prior to publication by the Devin-Adair Co. of New York on April 28.

The late Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, who directed Army forces in Hawaii at the time of the attack, and Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, who was the Navy commander, have drawn most of the official blame for the debacle in the wake of eight separate investigations of the sneak attack. Theobald was Kimmel's counsel.

Both were relieved of duty and retired, but neither was court martialed. Short died in 1949. Kimmel now lives in New London, Conn.

Theobald's book leans heavily on intercepted secret Japanese messages which he says were known to top officials in Washington, but never relayed to Pearl Harbor.

Theobald says Roosevelt "became convinced the United States must fight beside Great Britain while the latter was still an active belligerent, or later sustain the fight alone, as the last democratic stronghold in a Nazi world."

France's Communist Party Shaken To Foundation by Internal Feud Over All-Out Fight to Defeat EDC

Expulsion of Auguste Lecoéur for Not Switching to Moscow's New Line Causes Dissension Which, It Is Believed, Will Speed Up Red Hierarchy's Decline.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1954, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

PARIS, March 30.

THE Communist Party in France has demonstrated once again its complete subservience to Moscow. It has thereby touched off an internal feud that has shaken the party hierarchy to its foundations.

So public has the demonstration been that the party's decline in recent years will, it is believed, be speeded up. It is possible to believe, as many Frenchmen claim, that the Communist vote of today is not so much pro-Communist as the reflection of many discontents and resentments. The Communist voter is not voting for something but against many of the injustices and inequities in present day France.

In a recent election in the suburbs of Paris, to fill a vacant seat in the assembly, most everyone expected the Communist candidate, Andre Stil, editor of the Communist paper Humanite, to win. In a runoff, Stil got nearly 15,000 votes less than Mme. Germaine Peyroles, a lawyer, who had the backing of center and rightwing parties. Stil had been put forward as the party's young go-getting champion with the prospect that Moscow might eventually push him ahead of older leaders.

Stil got nearly 43 per cent of the total votes cast. This compares with 35 per cent of the actual vote cast for the Communist candidate in 1945. But the vote for Stil was only 27 per cent of the total of registered voters while the Communist vote cast in 1945 represented nearly 30 per cent of all voters registered.

Victor for European Army.

Mme. Peyroles, member of the Popular Republican movement, of which Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is the leader, in her campaign speeches advocated ratification of the controversial European army project which has been stymied in the assembly. Stil attacked the European Defense Community in fiery speeches as merely a disguise to rearm Germany against France.

Defeat of EDC is today the single goal of the French Communist party. Everything else has been made subservient to that objective. On orders from Moscow following the death of Stalin the line has been that all good Frenchmen, regardless of class or background, must stand together in opposition to German rearmament through EDC.

The new line, resembling the one which led to the popular front in the years leading up to World War II, has precipitated the expulsion, after a bitter quarrel, of one of the party's most militant leaders. According to one report, Auguste Lecoeur was thrown bodily out of Communist headquarters in Paris and two of his followers were severely beaten.

Lecoeur went on advocating a militant class party, bent on wiping out all vestiges of capitalism, after the line had switched to a postwar version of the popular front, welcoming co-operation not only from the traditionally hated bourgeois but even from those who collaborated during the war with the Germans. For this crime Lecoeur was ordered expelled by party boss Jacques Duclos.

Tried to Fight Back.

Still he might have saved himself by recanting and confessing his sins. Instead Lecoeur tried to fight back. But resistance to such an authoritarian organization was futile.

All the blame was heaped on Lecoeur for the fact that many party cells and sections had broken up after stormy meetings over the new line officially declaring "the fight against EDC is the true proletarian internationalism of the present." As all but the blindest and most fanatical Communists have long since learned, the true proletarian internationalism at any given moment is what will best serve Communist imperialism.

One of the ironies of the present situation is that Lecoeur himself took part two years ago in disciplining and expelling a veteran Communist leader.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Aldermanic Irresponsibility

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I believe it is time that the people of St. Louis awakened to the antics of our Board of Aldermen in recent weeks, the climax coming when it started sniping at the master traffic control ordinance.

So, with true aldermanic courtesy they proceeded to kick out the law that we have been trying to get for many years, mainly to speed up traffic. Unless something is done about this irresponsible bunch we may as well not try to have any zoning laws, master traffic laws, and the rooming houses will take over the entire city.

I note that one of the so-called aldermen is quoted as saying that the Chamber of Commerce could not tell him how to vote. In other words he is against everything the Chamber favors. What an attitude for an alderman, one who is supposed to help shape the destiny of our city!

I believe it is up to the press of our city to try and awaken the citizens. If necessary we may require a new form of city government, say a city manager type. When a group of men such as we have in office now have no apparent regard for what is best for the largest number, it is time something was done about it.

TWENTY-EIGHTH WARD.

Top Priority for '54

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In this country, top priority in Red directives for 1954 is: "Get McCarthy!" No one can quibble much over that.

It follows, then, that those who lambaste him and his investigating committees would do well to consider the extent to which they are thereby helping the Communists achieve their No. 1 goal for this year.

KENNETH D. ROBERTSON JR.

A Fitting Rejoinder

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your military analyst, Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, retired, made a real contribution to public information by his report on the McCarthy-Stevens-Cohn-Schine case. Demands for special treatment for Schine were frequently couched in language unfit for publication, Phillips said.

We should blush when a United States Senator and/or his spokesman, stoops to what Phillips says were obscenities and vituperation of a nature which could not be published in the Congressional Record, nor by any newspaper." McCarthyites' conduct throughout the Schine case has done them no credit. Some of them have stooped so low, they likely would have had to reach upward in order to touch bottom.

The Phillips report is, I think, a fitting rejoinder to letters from readers who have severely berated the Post-Dispatch for criticizing the Mad Man from Wisconsin.

MARTIN A. DILLMON.

Scarcely Noticed by Most

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Congratulations on your excellent coverage of the recent Godkin lectures at Harvard University by Adlai E. Stevenson. These eloquent addresses are reassurance that there is at least one voice of statesmanship left on the American political scene.

They deserved as much prominence in the American press as the obscenities of the Senator from Wisconsin during the same week, but were scarcely noticed in most papers or by the wire services.

Richard Dudman and the Post-Dispatch deserve a vote of thanks for their fine account of a significant public event.

THEODORE R. CRANE.

Stop on Pennsylvania

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am writing in regard to the Pasadale mothers' blockade.

I am a mother of two small children who attend Lincoln School, and am very much interested in this stop sign.

I understand these mothers have tried in every possible way to get this stop sign and even after the approval of the school board, Page-Dale and many others, the State Highway Department refused to approve it.

We pay taxes as well as the next person and our children's lives are in danger every single school day. If one school can have a stop sign, why not ours?

Next year the number of children who cross Pennsylvania avenue will double. Do we have to wait until it's too late?

I think those mothers deserve a lot of credit and I'm all for them.

A READER.

More Like New Dealers?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I don't see why your newspaper should dislike Republicans who are acting more like New Dealers every day. The latest is the "material stockpiling" order, which is no more than an effort to start another spree of consumer buying, just another thinly veiled threat that dire things are about to happen. Objective: help industry get rid of mountainous inventories, halt ever-growing unemployment. Sounds like the same old line and the same old stuff to me. Elections coming up, you know.

ARNOLD J. ATKINSON.
Centralia, Ill.

The Greater Risk

It is no exaggeration to say that Secretary Dulles has now made what is potentially the most important utterance thus far on behalf of the Eisenhower Administration.

Since the Secretary of State chose his words carefully in addressing the nation through the forum of the Overseas Press Club in New York, the best interpretation is in what Mr. Dulles himself said.

Referring to the critical state of the Indochinese war, President Eisenhower's ranking Cabinet officer spoke as follows:

> Under the conditions of today, the imposition on Southeast Asia of the political system of Communist Russia and its Chinese Communist ally, by whatever means, would be a grave threat to the whole free community.
> The United States feels that that possibility should not be passively accepted, but should be met by united action.
> This might involve serious risks. But these risks are far less than those that will face us a few years from now, if we dare not be resolute today.

These words are guarded yet their meaning is perfectly plain. The policy of the Eisenhower Administration is that Southeast Asia, starting with Indochina, cannot fall to the Communists without imposing a grave threat to the free world, including the United States. Consequently the United States Government calls for "united action" to meet this threat.

"United action" is not defined in detail. But since France has been involved in the draining struggle for nearly eight years and since the United States now is largely financing and sustaining the French side with equipment and supplies, "united action" can only mean that Washington wants other free nations, including Great Britain, to join in the effort.

All this is a risk, but the greater risk for the future is to allow a Communist victory at the Indochinese gateway to Burma, Thailand and India.

Although there is much more in the Dulles address, this is its main commitment. Next in importance is what the Secretary of State has to say about Red China. He—and this means President Eisenhower as well—is against either recognition of Communist China by the United States or admission of the Peiping government to the U.N.

He states the case against recognition in terms of the "hatred" of the Red Chinese regime for the United States. As for admission to the U.N., he cites the continuing aggressions of the Chinese Communists as proof that they do not belong in an organization of "peace-loving" states.

There will be time later to analyze this stand in detail and to attempt to determine its probable consequences. Now it is enough to say that this is Washington's unequivocal position and the basis on which this country will go to the Geneva peace conference.

The address contained one very significant G.O.P. "new look"—the new look at Yalta. This time the Yalta conference of 1945 was not described as a deliberate sellout of the interests of the free world, including the United States, by the Roosevelt Administration. Yalta was not again held up to public shame as evidence of how the Democratic Administration was infiltrated by Communists who betrayed American interests to Moscow.

On the contrary, Mr. Dulles based the participation of the United States in the Yalta agreement on the Soviet acceptance of the principle that liberated European peoples would have the right "to choose the form of government under which they will live," as determined by "free and unfettered elections." What was wrong, in Mr. Dulles's own words, was the subsequent demonstration that "those promises we received were vain."

The Truman Administration stood for liberty in Korea and the free world followed its lead. The Eisenhower Administration is taking its stand for liberty in Indochina and to make that stand effective it asks renewed support from free nations. It could do no less.

With Considerable Relief

We woke up with considerable relief—glad to find the bed still under us and everything in the bedroom in its accustomed place. We looked out the window and were relieved to see trees, houses and traffic just about the same as they had been. And we were even more relieved as we came downtown to find the same policemen at the same posts; in fact, to note no strangers or changes at all.

But we may never know how close a shave this old world had last night. While we are proud that we did not slip into an Orson Welles panic, the fact is that Mars was as close to this globe last night as it ever can get. If all those little men in their fantastic space suits and carrying their even more fantastic weapons ever had a chance, it was last night.

But maybe we are sounding the "all clear" too soon. Mars is going to be just a jump beyond our ethereal shores until the latter part of June—just a 40,000,000-mile jump from our altars, our hearths and the graves of our sires. Sky-watchers had better be kept on the alert—if only to spot the winners in the boat races on those canals.

The Cardinals have started north. And so, as the travelogue would say, they leave the purple peninsula of enchantment, the rosy dream world, the misty never-never land where they could beat the Dodgers.

Help for Bi-State

Gov. Donnelly is to be commended for reappointing Leif J. Sverdrup of St. Louis to the Missouri-Illinois Bi-State Development Agency. Mr. Sverdrup has been chairman of the agency since its creation some four years ago. Under his leadership more progress has been made than anyone had a right to expect, considering the handicaps under which the agency has labored.

The difficulty has been in the Missouri Legislature. In direct contrast to the friendly attitude of the Illinois Legislature, the lawmakers at Jefferson City have been completely cold and indifferent to Bi-State's needs, financially and legislatively. Mr. Sverdrup and his colleagues have had to pay their own expenses much of the time.

But he would be the first to point out that that is nowhere near so important as the Missouri Legislature's refusal to clarify Bi-State's authority to issue revenue bonds. By the time the Legislature convenes next January the agency ought to be paying its own way with revenue from its first project, the barge terminal on the Chain of Rocks Canal. But it will still need clearer authority to issue revenue bonds if it is to tackle any really large project.

Legislators from the City of St. Louis and from St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson counties ought to see that the Bi-State gets that authority. And lest they forget, perhaps the Governor will mention it in his message next January.

New Critic of Health Plan

When the United States Chamber of Commerce sent the president of a private health insurance firm before the House Commerce Committee to object to President Eisenhower's health insurance plan, its voice became that of a special interest group rather than of American business in general.

The Chamber's spokesman, Edward J. Faulkner of Lincoln, Nebr., raised the old bogey of "socialized medicine," saying the Eisenhower proposal was a first step toward that goal. Beyond that, he said the plan implied regulations which would "inhibit the keen competition among private firms" and "would add nothing to the present expanding and successful system" of voluntary health insurance.

Mr. Eisenhower himself has repudiated "socialized medicine." His plan and most other proposals in this field have very carefully avoided interference between doctor and patient or rules for medical practice. They are insurance plans concerned with the payment of medical bills. None came closer to medical practice than the private insurance companies do when they say how much they will pay for a specified operation or how long they will pay a policy-holder's hospital bill.

President Eisenhower wants to supplement such private protection so that individuals and families may meet the cost of catastrophic illness. Despite Mr. Faulkner's boast of expansion and success, very few Americans now are insured against that disaster. Government health reinsurance should meet their need. It would destroy competition between insurance companies just about as much as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has killed competition between private banks.

True, the President made his proposal in broad terms, and the $25,000,000 he suggested as a starter for the health fund seems inadequate. But it is up to Congress to hammer out details.

Those in the health insurance field could be helpful in framing specific legislation. All-out opposition, however, will disappoint the public and generate new pressure for an all-Government program, instead of a back-stop for private enterprise.

Curfew for Juveniles

Nearly 15 per cent of the juveniles arrested in St. Louis are picked up between midnight and 5 a.m., a period when no boy or girl under 17 has any business on the streets. This is an astounding statistic as well as a reflection of sadly inadequate parental restraints. It is also a police problem.

That is why the curfew bill now awaiting Mayor Tucker's signature fills an urgent community need. It will help keep young people off the streets and out of trouble after 11 o'clock, except on Fridays and Saturdays when the deadline will be midnight. They will be warned the first time they break curfew; a second infraction would make their parents or guardian liable to a fine of up to $500.

Whether the measure is the best that could be drawn remains to be seen, but it certainly is a step in the right direction. As Alderman Clinton Watson observed in the aldermanic debate preceding passage: "No one wants to regulate someone else's life, but there are children roaming the streets at night, forming gangs and showing no respect for the rights and property of others." The time has come to put an end to that sort of thing.

Deplorable Taste in Puns

"Eggheads of the world unite; you have nothing to lose but your yolks."

Who said that? Why, Adlai E. Stevenson, of course, and there is no record that he blushed in saying it. On the contrary, one can deduce from the man's character and past behavior that in all probability he looked his listeners brazenly in the eye as he uttered this monstrous remark. Undoubtedly he can now think back on it without a trace of remorse.

We do not blame anybody for liking puns, but when perversity reaches the point of liking the worst puns best, as in Adlai E. Stevenson's case, it is time for honest men to speak out. We feel quite sure that the leader of the Democratic party will proceed on his ruthless course, murdering the language at every possible opportunity. And, we suspect, a lot of people would be terribly disappointed if he didn't.

Chicago's Big Plans

Chicagoans have a new downtown redevelopment proposal to think about, and it is a breathtaking one in several respects. The plan is to build $400,000,000 worth of new buildings in a warehouse and near-slum area just north of the city's famous Loop. A city campus for the University of Illinois, a Government center, private office buildings and skyscraper apartments would be created on 151 acres of the near North Side.

Not the least remarkable aspect of the plan is that it has the hearty support of some of Chicago's most important downtown business men. In short, it is not a mere architect's dream. It is a blueprint for action which in one form or another, wholly or in part, has an excellent chance of being realized. Chicago already has a vast redevelopment project under way south of the Loop. The dirt is actually flying there, just as it is in the building of a great modern expressway system for Chicago.

And St. Louis? As other cities mark new milestones in redevelopment planning — and scarcely a week goes by without some such news—the St. Louisan must look with dismay on the snail-like progress here. Plans? Yes, St. Louis has plans. But the plans are rather small, rather tentative. Not very many people are excited about them; and somehow things move oh, so slowly.

Paul Crouch's Offense

A dispatch of the United Press from New Orleans March 20 erroneously reported that former Communist Paul Crouch had been convicted of treason. In a correction, the United Press says that Mr. Crouch was convicted by an Army court martial on a charge of violating the ninety-sixth article of war in that he had formed a Communist group within the Army. The Post-Dispatch news columns, which printed the original dispatch with the error, have printed the correcting item. Since the editorial page repeated the error in an editorial, "Cause for Anger—and Shame," last Saturday, we take this occasion to correct our record and to inform those readers who may have missed the United Press's correction. In our opinion a charge of treason is mighty serious and so is conviction by an Army court martial for having formed a Communist group in the nation's defense forces.

A NEW CHAPTER IN ASIA

The President Misses the Point

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Pro-Eisenhower newspaper says Chief Executive did not meet real issue in comment on McCarthy-Army feud; question is not whether Senator sits in judgment on himself, but whether he should have right to cross-examine he has denied others.

From the Chicago Daily Sun-Times

In discussing the latest aspect of the McCarthy-Army feud, President Eisenhower delivered a homily. He said that no man involved directly or indirectly in a dispute should "sit in judgment on his own case."

That is an admirable sentiment. But it misses the heart of the issue. Newspaper stories which indicated the President had taken a firm stand against Joe McCarthy were being kinder to Ike than he deserved.

President Eisenhower

The central issue is not whether McCarthy is to sit as a judge in a Senate committee investigation involving him and his counsel, Roy Cohn, as against the Army. McCarthy already has agreed not to act in the capacity of judge.

What is at issue is McCarthy's insistence that he have the privilege of cross-examining Army witnesses appearing against him and Cohn. That is a privilege that McCarthy vehemently has denied to other persons appearing before his committee.

Now that he and Cohn are under investigation, McCarthy wants to change the rules. He has magnanimously offered to let the Army, as well as himself, cross-examine witnesses. The exception, which applies only to this case, obviously is being sought by McCarthy because he and Cohn are involved. Because he is a Senator he wants to exercise prerogatives that he always denied other Americans.

When the President was first questioned on that point at a news conference, he proceeded to utter his admonition against a man's sitting in judgment on his own case. When it was pointed out a second time that the privilege of cross-examination was the only issue, President Eisenhower vaguely replied he didn't know enough about the case to comment on it. But he ought to know.

In admitting his ignorance of the basic principle at issue—whether a Senator shall have princely privileges not enjoyed by other citizens—the President undoubtedly disappointed many Americans. For he failed to measure up to the responsibilities of political leadership that he is always talking about but which he seems most reluctant to exercise even when vital principles are at stake.

In this case, not only are such principles at stake but also the honor and integrity of the Army which nurtured Ike and through which he became a popular hero. Likewise at stake are the integrity and self-respect of men he has appointed to high Army posts.

If only in the interest of being loyal to his friends and to the Army, of which he is Commander in Chief, Ike should have kept himself informed on the developments in the McCarthy-Army feud. Even the pressure of keeping up with other onerous duties offers only the lamest excuse for his not being familiar with the details of the case.

Senator McCarthy

McCarthy was quick to seize upon the President's ignorance of the central issue and to turn it to his own advantage. McCarthy and his like-minded colleagues have won another skirmish in their attempt to dominate the executive departments.

The President should not stand ineffectually by while members of Congress try to chip away the authority of the Chief Executive. Spouting "copy-book maxims," as James Reston of The New York Times recently described the Eisenhower Administration homilies, will not stem the tide.

The President has a sworn duty to uphold our tri-partite form of government, including the constitutional sanctity of his own office. And it is later than he thinks.

To Those Who Want Censorship

From the Duluth Herald

To some people of little faith censorship by law seems necessary to the welfare of this land of the free. This is true in Duluth as well as in some more remote sections of the nation. Even today there are individuals and groups of individuals here who would determine for the rest of us what is proper in the way of reading matter, movies and in other educational and entertainment fields—each in his own narrow way.

There are some who would forbid the publishing of anything on the theory of evolution as being immoral. Others who would forbid any book, scientific or otherwise, which mentioned the word sex. Others who would forbid any book critical of their specific sphere of influence, religious or political.

Most of these would-be censors put the blame for their inadequacies as parents and adults on the literature of the day, whether it be Hemingway, Steinbeck or Mickey Spillane. Age seems to make a gorier, more obscene literature presently acceptable—probably because it was published in the "good old days."

To almost a man, whether he be a judge, an educator, a cleric or just plain do-gooder the world is steadily digressing. We are in a much more perilous state, they claim, than when a man could be jailed for an unorthodox faith, run out of town for publishing something contrary to the current moral view of the "town fathers." Because a minister in Minneapolis made public confession that he had neglected to guide the literary tastes of his son, and woke up to find him reading something that, the minister thought, was objectionable, is no reason to take from the nation all literature deemed undesirable for his son.

Because a parent has failed, because a judge feels too strongly the weight of his position, because an educator is frustrated in his teaching efforts—these individual shortcomings are not to be considered as basis for outlawing literature, or movies, or sex, or the teaching of evolution.

Let the educator so teach that students learn to read, learn to appreciate the better literature, learn to think and reason things out. Let the parent do the same, fulfill his responsibility by active guidance to the children he has brought into the world. Let the judge continue to seek wisdom which will benefit those who come before him, which will get beyond a symptom, to cure the cause.

The nation is fortunate to have Supreme Court Justices like Douglas and Black who, in the spirit of free men everywhere, recommended freedom from censorship for "every writer, actor, producer, no matter what the medium of expression he may use."

For those who want to be permitted to read and see and hear only the "good and worthwhile," Russia has such a program in effect.

AMAZON TOWN, A STUDY OF MAN IN THE TROPICS, by Chas. Wagley. (Macmillan, 304 pgs., $5.00.)

On the south bank of the Amazon, about 1000 miles inland from the delta, stands the town of Ita. Its 500 people, who are growers and processors of manioc, collectors of rubber and other forest products, traders and storekeepers, are the subjects of Dr. Wagley's anthropological investigation of life in the depressed Amazon valley. The study is an excellent illustration of the scientific method as applied to the problems of society, and it is as such that it will perhaps be most interesting to the non-specialist.

Dr. Wagley, who is a professor of anthropology at Columbia University, spent a summer with three co-workers at Ita, making "case studies of 113 families, which covered details of their diet, expenditures, income, personal possessions." How richly detailed these studies were is shown in the chapters devoted to ways of making a living, to family affairs and social relations and to worship and play. An important section describes the maze of superstition in which every Amazonian native is entangled, and which creates considerable resistance to the introduction of modern concepts of diet, sanitation, and medical treatment.

Although the data are presented in terms of real people (with fictitious names), "Amazon Town" is essentially a dissection rather than a synthesis of life. The same people appear again and again, each time with little portions of their lives laid out to illustrate the problem in hand. So we learn that storekeeper Francisco Firmi has but 21 customers, that 10-year-old Liberato must spend his time baby-sitting, that Dona Branquinha is a bit over-zealous in her church work. There are thousands of such neatly catalogued facts, readably presented to be sure, but nowhere adding up to a sympathetic portrayal of even one human life.

As a source book of information for those interested in promoting technological developments in tropical Brazil, "Amazon Town" should prove invaluable. As a means of enlightening the general reader and promoting understanding, however (the apparent purpose of presenting the material in a handsome illustrated volume), the book reveals the shortcomings of the scientific method as presently applied. The realm of the novelist is not threatened yet. Conjure up Shokolov's magnificent Cossacks in the mind's eye, or Reymont's memorable Poles, and Wagley's feebly animated statistics are lost in the blaze of light.

The Mysterious Sex

IF YOU ARE A WOMAN, by Lee Graham. (Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 280 pgs., $3.50.)

Another title for this might have been: "The Mysterious Sex," for in it Lee Graham has turned the bright light of revelation on that loveliest and most enigmatic of God's creatures, woman. Since woman should at all times be man's principal concern, both sexes can read this book with profit.

What distinguishes "If You Are a Woman" from the many other books in its field is its blend of realism and idealism. Mrs. Graham is obviously blessed with an inseeing eye, an understanding mind, and a gift for lucid exposition. She realizes that this is a man's world, and the best way for women to make their way in it is to recognize that elementary fact. Hence the counsel in her book is such that, if correctly applied, it should presumably make women irresistible as sweethearts, wives and mothers.

Of course, in real life things seldom work out that way, but, this being a happy-ending nation, the effort should at least be made, and Mrs. Graham has some very cogent advice for her readers. It should be explained that for the past three years she has conducted a daily television program in New York, one of the most literate of its kind on the air. In print she is a great deal more forthright.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Just a Holding War in Indochina?

WASHINGTON.

THE BRITISH TOO have just been having a discussion about "the long haul" and "the new look" in military preparedness. These are subjects about which the British authorities are very well informed since, as it happens, they originated both conceptions and have led the way to their adoption in this country and by the other NATO powers.

After reading the report of their discussion in Parliament it seems to me more than ever plain that there is no serious dispute of substance among informed and responsible men on either side of the ocean. There would have been no serious public dispute, and none of the anxious commotion, but for the exaggeration of the language in which a rational development was blown up to sound as if there had been a spectacular change in policy.

Dulles

Not Our Kind of War.

It is not the nouns, so to speak, of the Eisenhower military policy but the political adjectives that have churned up the dispute. But for the adjectives used by Mr. Dulles in January it would not have seemed so important to Mr. Stevenson to challenge them, or for Mr. Nixon to rush to the defense of the adjectives.

Then we could have been spared the attacks by the British opposition on the United States because we adopted the basic military ideas of the British.

The hardest of our immediate military problems has figured very little in the debate. To be sure there have been critics to point out that you cannot win the war in Indochina by massive retaliation with atomic bombs. But none of these critics has come forward with any plan for winning that war with the more conventional weapons.

Limited Solution Only.

The war in Indochina is, as a matter of fact, not the kind of war for which we have armed ourselves. Yet we have played an important part in that war, above and beyond the supplies and the money we have contributed.

The threat of retaliation has thus far been an effective deterrent against the open intervention of the Chinese army and it will, we may hope, be no less a deterrent against intervention of the Chinese Air Force.

But while we are well armed against open intervention by the Chinese, it cannot be said that we possess the kind of military power which could itself be counted upon to be decisive against the Viet Minh.

This applies almost as much to the conventional weapons, which are also getting to be very new, as to the atomic weapons. They are designed to maintain the balance of power among the great military powers, and not for a civil war fought by guerrilla tactics in a primitive country.

In respect to the war in Indochina our power is rather like that which a giant can exert on a pygmy whom he can reach only with the tips of his fingers. That is why—when we examine the matter—we find ourselves thinking seriously only of a limited, not of a total, military solution.

An Orderly Withdrawal.

Our objective then is to help the French to go on fighting long enough and hard enough to prove that they cannot be defeated and driven into the sea.

I do not see how anyone can quarrel with this objective. For no one can, I believe, promise a decisive victory even if we were willing, which we are not, to intervene all out ourselves, and thus to let a very large part of our forces become engaged in a war against the junior partner of a junior partner of the Soviet Union.

On the other hand, though the French will eventually have to withdraw from Indochina, they must not be driven out by Ho Chi Minh or made to surrender. Their withdrawal must be based on an honorably negotiated settlement which can be guaranteed by all the great powers.

When the withdrawal comes, it must be orderly, it must be done slowly and in phases, and only if and when and as the necessary conditions laid down in the treaty are observed and carried out.

The Gibraltar Theory.

The question which we and our partners in the Atlantic alliance might well begin to examine is whether a military strategy cannot be devised which is better adapted to this limited objective.

It would be a strategy which recognized the reality, particularly the political reality, and was not designed for a total victory.

Could its military objective be to take a firm grip on a few strongholds — combining certain of the features of a Gibraltar and a Hong Kong—for the purpose of removing all doubt of the capacity of the French and the allies and their will to stay as long as may be necessary and desirable?

It might be worth thinking about. From these strongholds there could radiate a continuing influence, which could include some trade, and they would be a means of denying to the Viet Minh the consolidation of its power.

Since the strongholds could be organized and defended from the sea, they might be built up into genuine positions of strength from which to negotiate, and to supervise the results of a political settlement if one can ever be negotiated.

MAJOR FUND DRIVE PLANNED BY Y.M.C.A.

President of Organization Says $4,000,000 Is Needed for Projects.

Plans for the largest fund drive for the Young Men's Christian Association here since 1924 were announced last night by James P. Hickok, president of the Y.M.C.A. of St. Louis and St. Louis county, who said the organization needs $4,000,000 for rehabilitation, capital improvements and expansion.

Hickok, speaking to more than 700 guests at the annual Y.M.C.A banquet at Hotel Jefferson, said a committee has been set up to determine the exact amount of the goal of the campaign, which probably will be held late this year.

The last major fund drive was seven years ago, when $560,000 was raised "to finance some of our most urgent needs," he said. "We made that money go just as far as possible but it was woefully inadequate."

Some of the Y.M.C.A.'s present needs he listed as a new building for Negro youths in the area now served by a small center at Sarah street and Page boulevard, more adequate facilities in the central part of the county and expanded camp grounds.

In an address to the dinner guests, George C. McGhee, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, declared that the struggle to align youth of undeveloped nations with the forces of democracy is the "real challenge" facing the free countries of the world.

McGhee, who also has served as Assistant Secretary of State for the Middle East, said that young intellectuals in such formerly colonial nations as India and Pakistan "are participating for the first time in the political life of their countries." Their minds "will acquire a polarity," he said, asking:

"Will it be a polarity aligned with our own, or with the forces of world Communism? This is the real struggle in these countries—the struggle for the mind of youth."

McGhee warned that leaders of the Soviet Union are now making "their major effort" to draw the youth of newly-established states into the pattern of Communist beliefs. Counter-efforts by the United States through the Point IV technical assistance program and other methods should include the approach of a common religious creed, he said.

HOUSTON SYMPHONY TO END CIVIC MUSIC LEAGUE SEASON

The Houston Symphony Orchestra, with Efrem Kurtz conducting, will present the final Civic Music League concert of the season at 8:30 p.m. tonight in Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

The program will include Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony No. 3, the Second Suite from the ballet "Bacchus and Ariadne" by Albert Roussel and the overture to Verdi's opera "La Forza del Destino."

First performance by the orchestra here was at a concert sponsored by the Civic Music League three years ago.

WASHINGTON U. INCREASES TUITION IN MEDICAL SCHOOL

An increase of $50 a semester will go into effect at the Washington University School of Medicine, the only division of the university in which fees are expected to be raised, Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley announced today.

With the increase, tuition at the School of Medicine will be $432 a semester, he said. Rates in undergraduate divisions of the university will remain at $300 a semester.

SCIENCE FAIR EXHIBIT DIVISIONAL TOTALS

35 Applications Received for Entries in College Scholarship Contest.

A breakdown of the 1827 applications made by students for exhibit space in the 1954 Greater St. Louis Science Fair was announced today by Norman R. D. Jones, general chairman of the fair committee.

He said 35 applications were received for the scholarship division by senior high school students whose academic grades are high enough to qualify them to compete for the 21 college scholarships being offered this year.

Applications for the six remaining divisions are as follows:

For the special division, set up for the more elaborate exhibits, 66 applications; for the senior division (tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades), 767; for the ninth grade division, 326; for the junior division (seventh and eighth grades), 328; for the intermediate division (fifth and sixth grades), 224, and for the primary division (kindergarten through fourth grade), 81.

Exhibits are entered by both groups and individual students except in the primary division, where entries are by groups of pupils only.

Jones reminded applicants that time for completing their projects is growing short and said the committee hoped that all exhibits would be ready when the four-day fair opens on April 19 at the Washington University field house on Big Bend Boulevard.

Because of the record number of applications, space at the field house is at a premium, Jones said, adding that students who can reduce their exhibits by three to six inches in size will help others by doing so.

The total of applications this year is more than 100 higher than the 1726 last year. The fair is sponsored by the Post-Dispatch in co-operation with Washington University.

DARTMOUTH GROUP CONCERT

The Dartmouth College Glee Club will appear in a concert Sunday at 8:30 p.m. at the American Theater, it was announced today. The musical group will be sponsored here by the Dartmouth Club of St. Louis.

The performance will be given for the benefit of the Clark Schmidt Memorial Scholarship Fund.

BEVERLEY T. NELSON DIES, FORMER ST. LOUIS ARCHITECT

Beverly T. Nelson, former St. Louis architect in the American Embassy in London, died there Sunday, his aunt, Mrs. William M. Jenkins, 41 Plant avenue, Webster Groves, was informed. He was 61 years old and died of coronary thrombosis.

Mr. Nelson designed many of the buildings in the Clayton shopping center prior to World War II. He left St. Louis about eight years ago to serve as an American consultant in the restoration of buildings destroyed in bombings during the war. He received citations from two governments for distinguished service in architecture.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Carter Randolph of Millwood, Va., who was with him at the time of his death; two sons, Beverly Jr., Tulsa, Okla., Thomas Nelson, and two daughters, Misses Carter and Page Nelson. Funeral services will be in Millwood.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR DR. RAY L. DILLINGER

Private funeral services for Dr. Ray L. Dillinger, dentist and amateur golfer, were held yesterday at Friedens Cemetery. Dr. Dillinger, 54 years old, died Sunday at Barnes Hospital of heart disease.

A graduate of Northeast State Teachers College at Kirksville, Mo., Dr. Dillinger received his dental degree at St. Louis University in 1925. He had practiced in St. Louis since then, and at the time of his death had offices at 8201 North Broadway. For several years he held the golf championship of the St. Louis Dental Society, and also won trophies in a number of other tournaments.

Tax Appraisal Filed on Holdings, Which Eventually Go to 12 Institutions.

The estate left by Tobias Polster, cabinetmaker, under whose will it will go ultimately to 12 eleemosynary institutions, was valued at $372,236 in an inheritance tax appraisal filed yesterday in Probate Court.

Principal items in the estate, which was amassed through trading in old homes refurbished by his woodworking skill, were corporate stocks worth $258,688, cash of $54,853 and real estate valued at $51,600.

After some minor bequests, his will leaves the income from the estate to a niece, Mrs. Ottilie Gross, 4533 Adelaide avenue, for life. On her death, the estate will be divided equally among the following institutions:

Bethesda General Hospital, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Salvation Army, Humane Society of Missouri, Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, Father Dempsey's Charities, St. Joseph's Institute for the Deaf, German General Protestant Orphans Home, Blind Girls' Home, German St. Vincent Orphans Home, Mother of Good Counsel Home and Lutheran Altenheim.

Polster, who was 98 years old when he died May 27, 1952, lived at 3640 Arsenal street. Born in Germany, he was brought to the United States at the age of 4 years. He never married.

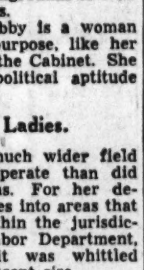
THOMAS L. STOKES

How a Woman Could Help the G.O.P.

WASHINGTON.

OBSERVERS OF THE WASHINGTON SCENE have felt a lack in the Eisenhower Administration of sparkle, oomph and zip which can be helpful in dramatizing and putting over a program. That has provoked the thought that nothing might be so good for that as a woman, a woman combined with a program.

There was one around here once, back in the days before yesterday in the Roosevelt regime, who became a symbol. That was the redoubtable Frances M. Perkins, Secretary of Labor, our first woman Cabinet member. She pushed about resolutely under the full-sail of her famous tri-cornered hats and helped to get things done for folks who, in her early days around here, weren't all doing too well, especially in our big cities. There was a depression, you know.



Miss Perkins

Woman With Drive, Talent.

She came to stand for social justice. She had worked long and valiantly for that ideal in her own New York in an era of awakening there identified with the names of Alfred E. Smith and Robert S. Wagner, father of the present Mayor, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. As Senator later, Bob Wagner was a leading figure in the Roosevelt New Deal.

So, too, was Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

She has a counterpart in the Eisenhower Administration, potentially, that is, as a symbol in the field of social welfare. This is not to say that there is much similarity between Frances Perkins and Oveta Culp Hobby, our second woman Cabinet member, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, for there is little except in devotion to the job in hand. They come from entirely different backgrounds in New York and Texas.

But Mrs. Hobby is a woman of drive and purpose, like her predecessor in the Cabinet. She has, as well, political aptitude and ability.

A Bow to the Ladies.

She has a much wider field in which to operate than did Frances Perkins. For her department reaches into areas that never were within the jurisdiction of the Labor Department, even before it was whittled down to its present size.

It was generally accepted when the new Department of Health, Education and Welfare was created early in the Eisenhower Administration out of the former Federal Security Agency that there was political design in that move.

This recognition of social welfare by giving its Federal Government functions Cabinet status clearly represented a gesture to former Roosevelt-Truman followers who had switched in the 1952 election to Gen. Eisenhower.

The aim was to hold as many of them as possible. The women who had flocked to the Eisenhower standard in such a multitude also were recognized in the new Cabinet member, as were ex-Democrats, for she was one of the latter.

Mrs. Hobby was, in fact, handed a most important assignment that offered great opportunity. It falls upon her chiefly, though not entirely of course, to dramatize social welfare aims of the Administration upon which the President, at least, seems to set much store for the critical congressional elections this fall.

Started Under Truman.

She has, in fact, the only really new issue in this whole field. That is the President's recommendation for government re-insurance of group health insurance plans so that they can expand and take care of many more people and also handle types of illness into which most of them have not ventured thus far because of the financial risk.

This proposal originated with the special commission appointed by President Truman on the nation's health needs, but it never got into Congress.

Now it has. In fact, it is being explored daily by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, before which Mrs. Hobby appeared as the first witness last week.

How great public interest there is in this health insurance expansion program was indicated by Representative Wolverton (Rep.), New Jersey, committee chairman, who said he had received more letters about it than about any issue during his whole career in Congress. That has been a quarter of a century.

Republicans Are Skeptical.

So Mrs. Hobby seems to have something here that could put a spark into the Eisenhower legislative program if properly capitalized.

Mrs. Hobby has one handicap that becomes apparent very quickly to an observer of these hearings on this "pioneering" project in the field of health. That is the skepticism among most Republican committee members which is not, however, shared by the chairman.

That dubious attitude is symptomatic, in fact, of many Republican members of Congress on other Administration legislative objectives in related fields.

It is in contrast to the way, in the early days of the Roosevelt regime, Democrats pitched in to help put their program across.

SISTER MARY JEROME LOCKE DIES; NUN FOR 43 YEARS

Sister Mary Jerome Locke, a member of the Sisters of Mercy for 43 years, died today at St. John's Hospital of heart disease. She was 63 years old.

A native of Limerick, Ireland, she came to the United States in 1911 and a few months later entered the novitiate of the order in St. Louis. She was professed as a Sister of Mercy in December 1913 at St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy, then at Eureka. She subsequently served as pharmacist at the old St. John's Hospital Clinic, Twenty-third and Locust streets; mistress of novices at St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy in Webster Groves, and, starting in 1930, as pharmacist and later as bookkeeper at St. John's Hospital.

She was one of 18 brothers and sisters, a number of whom still survive in Ireland. Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Thursday at St. John's Hospital chapel, followed by burial in the St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy Cemetery.

MRS. ALICE BECKER CLAPPER DIES, FUNERAL TOMORROW

Mrs. Alice Becker Clapper, wife of the late Dr. William L. Clapper, physician and surgeon, died today of heart disease at St. Luke's Hospital. She was 67 years old.

Mrs. Clapper, who lived with a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Clapper, at 9103 Pine avenue, Brentwood, was an active member of the First Congregational Church of St. Louis. Dr. Clapper, who was a member of the staffs of St. Luke's and St. Mary's hospitals and St. Louis University school of medicine, died in 1939.

In addition to Miss Clapper, another daughter, Mrs. Bryant Mackey of Clarksville, Mo., survives. Funeral services will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at C. R. Lupton & Sons undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard. Cremation will follow.

MRS. LENA ALBRECHT DIES AT 101, FUNERAL TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Lena Albrecht, who celebrated her 101st birthday last Feb. 10, will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at St. Henry's Roman Catholic Church, Sixth street and Broadway, East St. Louis, with burial in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Mrs. Albrecht died yesterday at the Rest Haven Nursing Home in Belleville. She was a native of Belleville and moved to East St. Louis in 1896. At the time of her death, she was believed to be the oldest resident of East St. Louis. Her home there was 1218 St. Louis avenue.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Joseph Beeson, Mrs. Walter Greenfield and Mrs. Joseph Dorris, and a son, John Albrecht.

FUNERAL OF BEN FRIEDMAN, OFFICER OF PRODUCE FIRM

Funeral services for Ben Friedman, secretary-treasurer of A. B. Friedman Co., wholesale fruit and produce firm, were held today at Rindskopf undertaking establishment, 5216 Delmar boulevard. Burial was in B'nai Amoona cemetery.

Mr. Friedman, who was 53 years old, died of a heart attack yesterday at City Hospital. He lived at 7532 Oxford drive, Clayton.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Doris K. Friedman; a daughter, Sharon; a brother, I. H. Friedman; three sisters, Mrs. Sadie Schwartz, Mrs. Etta Waton and Mrs. Anna Fuchs, and his mother, Mrs. A. B. Friedman.

AIRCRAFT STOCKS IN FLIGHT; CARRY LIST

Some Gains of Between 3 and 4 Points at Times —Losses Scattered.

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—The stock market was higher today with aircrafts leading and at their highest prices at the close.

Aircrafts were the best gainers, but all sections of the market joined in the advance.

Some gains went to between 3 and 4 points at times, and many leaders were up between 1 and 2 points. Losses were scattered and small.

The market started mixed, carrying through with something of the irregularity found yesterday, but it soon shook this drawback off and marched ahead into the late afternoon.

The market broadened to 1172 issues from 1154 yesterday. There were 557 gainers, 236 losers, 279 unchanged on day. There were 100 new 1954 highs and 12 new lows.

Dow - Jones industrial stock average rose .83 of a point to 300.89 and the rail gained .37 at 98.59, while utility lost .16 at 99.85.)

Trading was at aggregate 2,130,000 shares. That compares with 1,870,000 shares traded yesterday.

With the aircrafts well out in front, other major divisions going higher included nonferrous metals, steels, radio-televisions, chemicals, electrical equipments, railroads, oils, motion pictures, building materials, and utilities.

Among higher stocks were Bethlehem Steel, Boeing, Republic Aviation, Glenn Martin (following an excellent earnings report), Zenith Radio, Consolidated Natural Gas, Allied Chemical, American Woolen, Southern Railway, and U.S. Gypsum. A block of 11,000 shares of Alleghany Corp traded up ⅛ at 4.

RKO Pictures hit the tape time and again with large blocks, some as large as 32,100 shares. Most of the business was transacted as 6½. Stockholders of the company had agreed to sell the company to Howard Hughes at $6 a share, and today's business represented a slight premium over that figure.

Business World

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP) —The armed services entered the market today for 4,635,000 linear yards of cotton webbing. Bids will be opened at the office of the New York Quartermaster Purchasing Agency April 19.

Text of Dulles's Speech on Asia

call that the Chinese Communist regime became an aggressor in the latter part of 1950. Its armies invaded Korea and waged war against the United Nations Command. They contributed largely to the killing, wounding or losing in action of about 500,000 soldiers of the United Nations Command, including over 100,000 Americans.

The United Nations General Assembly on Feb. 1, 1951, voted, 44 to 7, that the Chinese People's Republic was guilty of aggression in Korea. It called upon it to withdraw its forces from Korea. But they still remain.

It is true that the Chinese Communist command concluded a Korean armistice. But that was not a Chinese Communist goodwill offering. It was something that the United Nations Command won. The Communists signed only after desperate and bloody final efforts had failed to break the Allied line, and only after the United Nations Command had made it apparent that conflict, if continued, would bring into jeopardy valuable Communist military and industrial assets in nearby Manchuria.

The Chinese Communists' continuing lack of genuine will for peace is being demonstrated in Indochina.

As one of the United Nations members who must pass on representation, we must ask "will it serve the interests of world order to bring into the United Nations a regime which is a convicted aggressor, which has not purged itself from that aggression, and which continues to promote the use of force in violation of the principles of the United Nations?" I can find only the answer "no."

FREE CHINA ON FORMOSA

There is still another aspect of this China matter. We must not forget that the National Government of China continues to function in Formosa and millions of free Chinese are gathered there under its jurisdiction. It has the loyalty of many more. They have been loyal friends and allies when, during World War II, we needed each other.

Should the free nations facilitate and encourage the bloody liquidation by the Chinese Communists of these free Chinese on Formosa? To me that is unthinkable.

EXPERIENCE WITH COMMUNIST PROMISES

Some say that the United States should recognize the Chinese Communist regime and welcome it to the United Nations, in reliance of promises in relation to Korea and Indochina.

The United States must judge that proposal on the basis of past experience.

The United States agreed to recognize the Soviet regime in 1933 relying on its promise, in the so-called Litvinov agreement, to avoid and prevent political action from Russia against our political or social order. We performed and granted recognition. But the promises we received were vain.

At Yalta, in February 1945, Britain and the United States gave sanction to the fact of dominant Soviet influence in central Europe. They did so on the basis of a Soviet agreement that the peoples of liberated Europe would have the right "to choose the form of government under which they will live," and that in Poland there would be "free and unfettered elections as soon as possible." But those promises we received were vain.

There was also a Yalta agreement with reference to the Far East. The United States agreed to obtain for the Soviet Union control of Port Arthur, Dairen and the Manchurian railroad. In exchange, the Soviet Union promised to support the national government of China. This arrangement was consummated at Moscow in August 1945. Then the Soviet Government acquired from China the Manchurian assets that had been promised it. In return it gave a 30-year engagement "to render to China moral support and aid in military supplies and other material resources, such support and aid to be entirely given to the National Government as the central government of China."

Having gained what it wanted the Soviet Government then moved promptly to assist the Chinese Communist regime in its efforts to overthrow the National Government. It gave to the Chinese Communist forces vast stocks of military supplies and other material resources which it had promised to give entirely to the National Government.

In this matter again we gave performance. But the corresponding Communist promises proved vain.

Our experience with Chinese Communist promises is limited because we have with them only one agreement. That is the Korean armistice. The United Nations Command has reported that the Communists have violated it 40 times. That only tells part of the story, for the basic violation is that the Swedish and Swiss members of the supervisory commission are denied any adequate opportunity to supervise the north and to detect Communist violations.

The United States recognizes that few nations have a record which is not marred by some violations of agreements. Also, we recognize that nothing human is immutable. Surely, there is nothing vindictive or implacable about the American people. Indeed, few people are as ready as we to forgive and forget. But it would be reckless for us to ignore the events of recent years which have filled our archives with vain promises. We are not in the market for more.

It is now the policy of the United States not to exchange United States performance for Communist promises.

That United States position was made clear at the recent Berlin conference. There, by standing firm, I finally obtained the reluctant agreement by Mr. Molotov that the Geneva conference would not be a "Big Five conference" and that the invitation to Geneva would itself specify that neither the invitation to, nor the holding of that conference, should be deemed to imply diplomatic recognition where it had not already been accorded.

The Chinese Communist regime has been invited only to discuss Korea and Indochina, where it is in fact a force of aggression which we cannot ignore. It gets no diplomatic recognition from us by the fact of its presence at Geneva. I said at Berlin: "It is one thing to recognize evil as a fact. It is another thing to take evil to one's breast and call it good." That we shall not do.

THE DANGERS AHEAD

The United States delegation will go to Geneva in an effort to bring about a united and independent Korea, from which Communist China will have withdrawn its army of invasion. Also, we hope that any Indochina discussion will serve to bring the Chinese Communists to see the danger of their apparent design for the conquest of southeast Asia, so that they will cease and desist. We shall not, however, be disposed to give Communist China what it wants from us, merely to buy its promises of future good behavior.

Some, perhaps, would have it otherwise. But we dare not forget that during the period when we accepted Communist promises at their face value, and took for granted their peaceful intentions, the danger steadily grew.

We can, I think, take a lesson from Dien Bien Phu. For some days there has seemed to be a lull. But in fact the danger has steadily mounted. The enemy sappers have never ceased their work. They have burrowed and tunneled to gain forward positions so that the inner citadels can be subjected to mass assault from close positions.

Today the Free World also feels a sense of lull. The danger of general war seems to have receded. I hope that that is so. If it is so, it is because the free nations saw the danger and moved unitedly, with courage and decision, to meet it.

There is, however, no reason for assuming that the danger has permanently passed. There is nothing to prove that the Soviet Communist rulers accept peace as permanent, if permanent peace would block their ambitions. They continue unceasingly to burrow and tunnel to advance their positions against the citadels of freedom.

In Europe, Soviet Russia holds its grip on Eastern Germany and Austria and maneuvers recklessly to prevent reconciliation between France and Germany. In Asia, the whole area from Japan and Korea to southeast Asia is troubled by Communist efforts at penetration.

As against such efforts, there is only one defense—eternal vigilance, sound policies and high courage.

The United States is a member of a goodly company who in the past have stood togther in the face of great peril and have overcome it. If we are true to that past, we can face the future with hope and confidence.

AILING MAN FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE; NOTE LEFT

James S. Stokes was found dead yesterday in an automobile parked in the garage of his home at 7179 Washington avenue, University City, with the motor running and the garage doors closed. A rubber hose ran from the exhaust pipe through the window of the machine, police said.

Stokes, 36 years old, left a note in a second story bedroom indicating he had taken his life because of ill health, police said. Since his discharge from the Army as a first lieutenant in World War II he had been in poor health and unable to work, officers said. Stokes was unmarried.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stokes of the Washington avenue address. His father is a vice president of Union Electric Co.

COMMUNIST PARTY OF FRANCE JOLTED BY INTERNAL FEUD

When Andre Marty was accused of high crimes against the party, Lecoeur demanded that he make a public confession. Marty was thrown out when he refused.

Shortly after Lecoeur was expelled, his chief lieutenant, Rene Comphin, committed suicide. He did so, it is believed, rather than join the cry of denunciation against his long-time friend and associate. The Communist hierarchy tried to cover up the Comphin tragedy and gave him an elaborate funeral which Lecoeur did not attend. It was reported that Duclos had sent word warning him not to attend on pain of being forcibly ejected.

'Labor Trouble Suppressed'

According to non-Communist trade union leaders, the Communists in the unions they dominate are anxious to keep down any possible labor trouble so long as the present government continues to delay ratification of EDC. Although there is widespread dissatisfaction over wage levels, Communist leaders in the General Confederation of Workers are determined to suppress it. If, however, EDC should be ratified, they have their plans ready to cause as much trouble as possible.

Part of the plan is an immediate protest strike. Whether they could get away with such a strike is doubtful since their leadership has been so weakened. Nevertheless they are prepared to exploit French fears of Germany which already divide party, class and even family.

There can be no doubt that the French Communist party is in the midst of a violent upheaval. Since last October 50 public censures have been directed against regional groups for slowness in renewing membership cards, insufficient ideological study and violation of principles of organization. A remarkable letter appeared in a Socialist paper in which Communist workers declared that they had finally come to understand that there was no democracy in the Communist party and that it was in opposition to the liberty, equality and fraternity in which Frenchmen believe.

This may seem to Americans a belated discovery. But it should be remembered that the Communist party once claimed nearly a million members, and high ranking Communists were put in Government office by Gen. Charles De Gaulle when he became premier at the end of the war. Russia's contribution to the victory over the Germans made a proud impression in France, one evidence of which is seen in the squares and streets in every city named Stalingrad and Stalin.

How far the party has actually declined cannot be known with accuracy but it has dwindled to a fraction of its former strength. Knowledgeable observers are convinced that this is the moment in which a truly disruptive splitting movement could be carried out along the lines of the Titoist split with emphasis on national Communism independent of any control from Moscow. But that would require some positive force and some imperative social changes on the part of the center and the right. And that force is not now apparent. In fact if EDC is not ratified, thanks largely to political fear and inertia rather than to any positive efforts by the Communists, Communism can claim still another of those victories by default that have been the tragedy of this postwar era.

BRITON CONFIRMS SIX CHARGES ON HONDURAS PARTY

Group Accused of Link With Guatemala Leftists, Cleared on Three Counts.

BELIZE, March 30 (AP) — A special British investigator announced last night he had confirmed six changes linking the British Honduras Peoples United Party with neighboring Guatemala's leftist rule.

Sir Reginald Sharpe, sent here by the Colonial Office, said a week-long inquiry had not proved three allegations made by Gov. Patrick Renison's colonial government against the party.

A crowd of 1500 P.U.P. members outside the courtroom in which Sharpe announced his findings treated the announcement as a victory. They cheered, waved the faction's blue and white flags, and hoisted P.U.P. Secretary George Price in the air.

Renison had asked the Colonial Office to investigate the party's alleged connections with Guatemala in advance of elections scheduled for next month.

Sharpe said he was satisfied Price had received $500 from the Guatemalan consul in Belize to help defend P.U.P leaders in a sedition trial in 1951.

He said he also found that P.U.P Assistant Secretary Philip Goldson had an interview in September that same year with Guatemala's President Jacobo Arbenz, whose government the United States State Department says is Communist-dominated. Goldson also discussed with a Guatemalan minister the question of getting newsprint for his party's official newspaper, Sharpe reported.

Sharpe said his investigation also had disclosed that the P.U.P. supplied material for radio broadcasts from Guatemala in 1951 and that P.U.P leaders had asked the Guatemalan foreign minister to refuse a British request for recall of the Guatemalan consul in Belize, or to replace the consul only by a man the P.U.P. could trust.

However, Sharpe said his inquiry had not proved three charges the government had made:

1. That Price in 1950 had submitted his speeches to the Guatemalan consul in Belize for approval;

2. That the party flags used in celebrations in 1951 had been sent from Guatemala, and

3. That Price had met secretly late in October 1951, with the Guatemalan consul or had sought such a meeting.

KANSAS CITY EX-UNION CHIEF FREED OF ROBBERY CHARGE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30 (UP)—A directed verdict of acquittal today freed former Teamsters Union Boss Orville L. Ring from a charge of second-degree robbery.

Circuit Judge John F. Cook sustained a defense motion which he ordered prepared at the conclusion of oral arguments late yesterday. Cook said he did not "think there was any robbery in any degree."

Ring, who resigned recently as president of a Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union local, was accused of forcing a sand company to contribute $200 to a children's hospital under threat of a work stoppage.

Defense attorneys argued that evidence "lacked the essential characteristics of robbery," since there "can be no conviction without a gain for the person accused."

UNIVERSITY CITY COUNCIL IN FAVOR OF FLUORIDATION

A resolution approving fluoridation of the public water supply was adopted last night by the University City city council.

Adopted on the recommendation of the city's board of health, the resolution will have no effect beynod putting the council on record as favoring this method of reducing dental decay in children because the city gets its water from the St. Louis County Water Co. which serves other areas in the county.

Copies of the resolution were ordered snt to the water company and the County Council.

For The Tormenting Twins Dandruff—Scalp Discomfort

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Mrs. R. M. Tucker, 4902 E. 22nd, says: "I had tried so many things without benefit, I was doubtful about the merit of Baker's Hair Tonic. It surprised me, and brought relief from the torment and embarrassment caused by dandruff and itchy scalp. Since it gave me relief several years ago, I have used Baker's Hair Tonic about once a week and keep my scalp in good condition."

For dandruff and itchy scalp, use Baker's Hair Tonic. For clean scalp and lustrous hair, use Baker's Shampoo. Buy them where you trade. You will like both, or the makers will refund your money.

22 ARE REPORTED KILLED AS TRAIN HITS ARGENTINE BUS

BUENOS AIRES, March 30 (UP)—Twenty-two persons were reported killed yesterday and four others injured seriously when a train struck a passenger bus at Coronel Suarez, 300 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

Police said all casualties were aboard the bus. The accident occurred at a grade crossing near Primavera station.

4-door sedan with immaculate green finish, radio, heater and automatic transmission; previous owner traded for a new one. The motor is better than when new because it's been broken in. Spotless interior attests the discriminating care taken. It's today's buy.

'53 DODGE, $1420

Don't buy any car, new or used, 'til you see this one; Red Ram V-8 engine with Gyromatic drive, 2-door, 2-tone blue and cream, radio, heater and other accessories. Very, very low mileage. IT'S PERFECT.

Mrs. Beth Sims left this spot (Greyhound Bus Terminal) at 1:00 a.m. for LOUISVILLE.
Mrs. Sims is very pleased.
Why?
Because her fare was only $5.15 (plus tax).
Because she had her choice of 4 convenient schedules.

PART OF NEW FRENCH DICTIONARY ISSUED

1000-Page Volume Goes From AAA to CCC, Sells for $22.

PARIS, March 30 (UP)—Precise Frenchmen, who boast that they have the world's most subtly accurate language, have a new dictionary to help them out of verbal quandaries.

But wordy arguments will have to be confined for the present to the letters AAA to CCC because that is the limited extent of the first 1000-page volume which retails for $22.

The complete set, which should carry enough sheer weight to stun any expert, will retail for $52.

With the complete French vocabulary running between 40,000 and 50,000 words—covering everything from the most exquisitely delicate compliments to the most annoyingly precise insults—French scholars have long lacked a dictionary comprehensively comparable to the American Webster or the British Oxford.

Emile Littre, the French equivalent of America's Noah Webster and Britain's Dr. Samuel ohnson, gave Frenchmen a monstrously great dictionary between 1848 and 1872 which has long since fallen behind the verbal times.

The new work, which has kept scholar Paul Robert's nose to the semantic grindstone for several years, updates Littre's efforts with a precision that should help keep combative experts out of future cafe scuffles over finite and infinite word definitions.

The irate Gaul who wants to tell a woman to get out of his life will be able to do so quite authoritatively with the aid of three pages—illustrated by 116 pertinent quotations—devoted to the verb aller (to go).

Should he, however, be seeking happily felicitous phrases of praise, he will find that Robert has provided him with three pages—using 120 flattering quotations—on the adjective beau (fine, pretty, beautiful).

'HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 30 (AP)—A Knoxville driver, who had .38 per cent alcohol in his blood by "drunkometer" test, was freed on a drunken driving charge because he was stuck in the mud.

Judge Charles Kelly said the law requires a car to be in operation on a public street for a drunk-driving charge to stick.

340,000 Telephone Numbers Change April 4

New Blue Directory Lists All The New 2-5 Numbers

At 12:01 a.m. April 4, some 340,000 telephone numbers in St. Louis, nearby Illinois cities and St. Charles will change to the modern 2-5 numbering system.

All numbers in the metropolitan area will then consist of two letters and five figures—an arrangement that provides for future telephone growth and paves the way for faster long distance service as well.

The 2-5 numbering system is a change in numbers only, and does not mean a change in calling areas.

All these new numbers are listed in the blue directory which will be delivered to you before the changeover. On and after April 4, the surest way to get the correct number will be to look it up in the directory.

If you already know the old number, you can tell how it will change by consulting the list below. The last four figures stay the same in practically all cases.

For example: suppose the present number is CAbany 2199. The list shows that CAbany changes to PArkview 1; so the new number will be PArkview 1-2199. On and after April 4, you dial PA 1 2199, or ask the operator for "PArkview one . . . two-one . . . nine-nine."

Remember—on and after April 4, every telephone number in the Greater St. Louis metropolitan area will consist of two letters and five figures. Use of the old numbers will interfere with your telephone service. If you dial an old number, your call will not go through.

PART THREE PAGES 1—4C
ST. LOUIS, TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1954

WRAY'S COLUMN

Are Players Too Earnest About Spring Training?

MAYBE the players are getting too serious about this spring training business . . . The number of training camp mishaps suffered by important stars, we're told, is sounding a danger signal . . . Why this should be is nearing the investigation point, you might be led to believe by headlines.

Well, if the situation really is dangerous, maybe it's because winning training camp games has become important . . . Publicists keep track of the standings of the teams and percentages . . . And we'll wind up with Grapefruit League champions . . . Club managers are anxious to make a good spring showing, as an indication of what their clubs may do in the real business to come. Players go all out to retain or win jobs . . . Fans paying to see spring games, expect mid-season efforts.

Perhaps the keen interest of fans and the rivalry of teams combine to step up the action in spring practice and games beyond their original purpose, namely to build up a solid physical foundation that will enable the players to stand up under the 154-game schedules and remain at their best to the finish.

* * *

As to the season's injuries, about a score of more or less serious ones were reported . . . In major league camps more than 800 players were involved, some on club rosters, many brought in for observation; so the percentage of mishaps both in practice and in games is, after all not high (0.025) enough to cause all the comment.

* * *

If players, on their own account, made it a point to report in condition, ready for hard effort, accidents might diminish.

Do Spring Training Games Mean Anything?

FANS, and perhaps the club owners, think spring training success means a lot . . . perhaps it does—to the box office. . . . As an indication of the outcome of the major league season, the standings, up to this week, may be discounted.

For example, as of Monday spring training results between major league clubs showed that the Baltimore Club was leading the American League, whereas pre-season estimates of its final standing figured the club to finish in seventh place or lower. The Athletics were runners up while the popularly favored Yanks ranked sixth and the second high team in the future ratings, Cleveland, was fifth.

In the National League, look who topped the spring training race as of yesterday —the Pirates, who again are a popular choice to finish last . . . Milwaukee, second place team, last year, was sixth having lost four more games to big league foes than it had won . . . Brooklyn and the Cards were doing all right, in second and third positions respectively and the White Sox in the American League, were placed about where they may finish—in third place.

You wonder if, at the risk of injury, it pays to put the heat on in playing games meant only to build up physical condition, get the winter rust out of systems rusty from months of idleness and limber up leg muscles that have grown soft from riding in automobiles.

Ty Cobb, some time ago, was credited with the statement that spring training involved a risk of injury and was more or less a waste of time. . . . In these days that seems foolish. . . . It seems incredible that Ty could have made the remark because in his day the players were sent to spas to "boil out" first, and to spring training camps afterwards. . . . They received plenty of conditioning but not too much competitive play against other big league groups.

Spring training of baseball athletes might take a leaf from the horse trainer's book. . . . Ben Jones, famous Calumet trainer of thoroughbreds, begins training his aces by giving them three-mile gallops to strengthen their muscles, and continues that for weeks. . . . When they are sent into competitive tests, they are raced only in sprints, with the distance gradually increased later.

A gradual approach to severe tests, whether by horse or man, would seem preferable to hard competition, early in the season, such as sometimes happens in pre-season baseball rivalry.

Old But True: "Least Said, Soonest Mended."

ART ARAGON, Pacific Coast boxer, who has had great difficulty in keeping his mouth shut, in and out of the ring, told a Pacific Coast audience that the fight game is a crooked, stinking racket, with elaborations. . . . Now he wishes he hadn't. . . . Birds that foul their own nests have a hard time remaining in them. . . . Aragon's popoff makes one wonder if that was the only side of the fight game Art ever contacted.

* * *

"There's nothing wrong with the fight game," commented a fight character who has been in the picture for a long time. . . . "It's the people in it." A wise-crack never convicted anybody. . . . Boxing has been motivated by some fine persons since the Marquis of Queensberry first took over.

PILOT FEELS BETTER ABOUT HURLING AND CLUB DEPTH

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 30 — Manager Eddie Stanky today viewed the Cardinals' pennant chances with "increased optimism" on the strength of the Florida phase of spring training.

Picking his words as carefully as some of his pitchers recently have picked the corners of the plate, Stanky emphasized that he still regarded the Redbirds as having only "an outside chance, but I feel better now about that chance than when we began training."

Explaining, the manager went on, "If our pitching was as certain to look as good during the regular season as it has down here, I'd make it even stronger—our chances of winning—but I do have increased optimism."

It was, Stanky emphasized, his pitching staff that had been most responsible for the enthusiastic review of Florida training which, counting the unprecedented side trip to California, produced an unusually bright won-and-lost Grapefruit League record for a Redbird team. The Cards won 13 out of 21 while headquartering at the Bainbridge Hotel.

Squad in Good Condition.

Stanky was pleased with the physical condition of a squad that, given mid-summer weather its last 10 days here, contributed only $13 to the club's kitty on the basis of the field foreman's unrelenting demand for meeting prescribed weight or paying at the rate of $2 a pound.

Royce Lint, two and one-half pounds over Dr. Stanky's figures, paid $5, Red Schoendienst $4, Jim Walsh $3 and Capt. Enos Slaughter $1. Stanky, though a bench manager now, also kicked in $3 for failing to meet the weight he had set for himself.

"It's been a great training trip and we're starting north with the most talent, the greatest depth of any Cardinal club I've had," Stanky said. "My only concern now has to be pitching, but that's only because the staff must do next month and the months that follow what it did down here."

Stanky pointed out that he had been glum about his pitching at the opening of training, which began as long ago as Feb. 12 at DeLand for some players, because Vinegar Bend Mizell had been taken from a staff that was inadequate a year ago.

"But then, we got Vic Raschi," Eddie said brightly. "Joe Presko has looked good, Stu Miller like the Magician of 1952 and Tom Poholsky most promising."

Only 3 Set as Starters.

On the barnstorming trip with the Chicago White Sox, who will be met in eight of nine games, Stanky said he would attempt to decide his fourth and fifth starters from among Presko, Miller and Poholsky.

It was Poholsky who went six smooth innings yesterday, hurling three-hit, one-run ball as the Cardinals, making the most of their own four blows, defeated Paul Richards's White Sox, 4 to 3.

In the same game Bobby Tiefenauer, the tall knuckleball bullpen candidate, pitched one sloppy inning of two, but then hurled handsomely out of trouble. With the potential tying run on third base in the eighth inning, another Chicago man on first and one out, Tiefenauer retired Nelson Fox on a short outfield fly and got dangerous Minnie Minoso on a double-play grounder.

Lint breezed through the ninth, and Stanky noted that he hoped either the prematurely-gray draftee from Portland or Memo Luna, the expensive Mexican, could make good to give the staff another lefthander to go with ace Harvey Haddix and veteran relief artist Al Brazle.

"But Lint and Luna will have to show me enough to stay," Stanky declared. "I wouldn't keep them just to have another lefthander if they couldn't do the job."

Bullpen Jobs Still Open.

"They'll be filled from among Hal White, Cot Deal, Jim Walsh and Tiefenauer," the little boss said.

Following the release yesterday of Lefty Niles Jordan to Rochester, the pitching staff already has been trimmed to 14, only four more than the number Stanky intends to carry. And that 14 includes injured Floyd Wooldridge, who is almost certain to be optioned.

Not counting outfielder Wally Moon, who still is on the Rochester list, the Cards will leave town this evening with only 30 roster men.

"Sure," said Stanky, "we're trying to help the farm clubs early, but we're down in numbers early chiefly because the talent stood out. It was that kind of camp."

Redbird Notes.

Gerry Staley will pitch against Chicago tomorrow at Columbus, Ga., Raschi Thursday at Birmingham, Haddix Friday at New Orleans and Luna will oppose Houston there Saturday, Stanky said. . . . The manager has offered a suit of clothes to any and all Cardinals who steal 10 or more bases this year.

Joe Frazier, bidding for an outfield job, drove in two of the four runs yielded by Bob Keegan, White Sox righthander. . . . Poholsky made Minoso look sick, striking him out twice. . . . Because Tom wasn't with the Cards last year, he'll get a suit of clothes any time he doesn't walk a batter in 1954.

Blackwell, Not Sure Arm Is Dead, Works Out With Cincinnati

TAMPA, Fla., March 30 (UP)—The New York Yankees were surprised to learn today that Ewell Blackwell still hasn't given up his hopes of making a comeback.

Blackwell, once one of the best pitchers in baseball, announced his retirement on March 5, but was found working when the Yankees came here to play the Cincinnati Redlegs yesterday.

Blackwell, who lives here, explained he had received permission to work out with the Redlegs "on fresh evidence of life in his arm."

Rochester Basketball Coach Fined $500

NEW YORK, March 30 (UP)—Coach Les Harrison of the Rochester Royals was fined $500 by President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball Association for his "unbecoming conduct" in Sunday's playoff game against the Minneapolis Lakers. Harrison also was held accountable for the conduct of his players, who used "vile and obscene language" in berating referee Arnold Hoeft after the game.

Cy Young Celebrates His 87th Birthday With Turkey Dinner

NEWCOMERSTOWN, O., March 30 (AP)—Cy Young, waiting for "this storm to get over," spent his eighty-seventh birthday reading cards and letters of congratulation yesterday.

Young, whose 510 pitching victories are the most ever turned in by a major leaguer, explained the "big celebration" was Sunday when he and Mr. and Mrs. John Benedum with whom he lives had a turkey dinner at the Carrollton home of friends.

Young said he was "feeling good," although he goes outside only to help with the chores.

Pointing out he still is active despite a "bad leg," Young said "we went over to Canton Saturday night for a big Masonic doings."

During five of the 22 years he pitched, Young won 30 or more games. And he won three no-hitters—for Boston against Philadelphia May 5, 1904, in the American League; for Cleveland against Cincinnati Sept. 18, 1897; and for Boston against New York June 30, 1908, in the American League.

Former President of Trolley League Dies

PARIS, Ill., March 30 (AP)—John Harvey Roberts, 82, who was active in professional and semipro baseball for more than 50 years, died Sunday in Paris.

Roberts played baseball until a hunting accident cost him the sight of an eye. Later he was president of the old Trolley League, composed of six eastern Illinois and western Indiana teams.

Roberts operated a restaurant and tavern in Paris for several years.

Survivors include his widow, a son and a daughter.

Davidson New Benton High School Coach

BENTON, Ill., March 30 (AP)—Ralph Davidson, former Harrisburg High School coach, has been named to head Benton High School's athletic teams this fall.

Davidson's apopintment and the selection of Glenn Truelove of Johnston City as his assistant was announced yesterday.

La Starza and Cockell Battle

LONDON, March 30 (UP)—In a baffling fluctuation of odds, Don Cockell, British heavyweight champion, may enter the ring at Earls Court Arena tonight an 11 to 10 favorite to beat Roland La Starza of New York in their 10-round "world heavyweight title elimination" bout.

The Britisher, who often is referred to as Britain's "Mr. Five-by-Five," expects to weigh in at 210 pounds compared to the 193 pounds for which La Starza has been pointing.

The Bronx battler started out as a heavy favorite but took his training so "casually" that the odds dipped until some bookies were quoting even money.

Solomons revealed he had a sell out and predicted the gate would reach 27,000 pounds ($75,600).

The Smiths Have It

LINCOLN, Nebr., March 30 (AP).

NEBRASKA probably will, on occasion, field a football team next fall that has:

Chuck Smith, Franklin, N.H., at quarterback; Bob Smith, Grand Island, Nebr., at fullback; Howard Smith, Lewiston, Ill., at one end, and Don Schmid, Columbus, Nebr., at the other end.

Coach Bill Glassford is mulling over a play in which Quarterback Smith laterals to Fullback Smith who passes to End Smith who laterals to End Schmid.

'I'll Do My Best,' Stan Hack Says After Replacing Cavarretta as Cub Manager

LOS ANGELES, March 30 (AP)—Stanley Hack, for 15 years a playing idol of the Chicago Cubs, is flying today to join the club at Shreveport, La., as its new manager.

Hack, relinquishing his job as manager of the Cubs' Pacific Coast League affiliated Los Angeles Angels, was named successor to Phil Cavarretta, in a surprising move last night.

Hack said he learned of his appointment from Wid Matthews, director of personnel for the Cubs, by long distance call after a lengthy conference out here last Saturday.

"I liked to have dropped out of my chair," Hack said when the official call came through.

Asked if Matthews gave any reason for the sudden decision to replace Cavarretta at this early date in the spring, Hack said he had no comment. He implied that Matthews himself had given no explicit reason, although it is general knowledge that the Cubs haven't looked good in exhibition games.

'I'll Do My Best.'

Hack was asked the direct question: "Do you think you can help the Cubs?" and he almost choked on a bite of steak.

With a grin that is familiar to the Chicago fans, Stan answered: "I'll do my best."

Hack was asked if it were not true that he had always hoped eventually to manage the Cubs, where he starred at third base without interruption from 1934 through 1947.

"Naturally, Chicago has always been my ideal ball club," he said. "I have many friends there over all these years and when I began managing, naturally my goal was to get back to Chicago."

Hack started in the Cub farm system in 1948 with Des Moines, where his team won the pennant. He finished fourth there in 1949, almost getting into a tie for first in the tight windup. In 1950 he managed the Cubs' farm at Springfield, Mass., in the International League. He came to Los Angeles in 1951, and with little or no help from the parent organization, finished third, sixth and third in the Pacific Coast League.

STANLEY HACK

Familiar With Players.

Stan said he is familiar with many of the present Cubs. Included were Dee Fondy, Gene Baker, Warren Hacker, Bill Moisan, Ransom Jackson, Bob Talbot, Bob Zick and Elvin Tappe, all of whom played under him.

With Club 20 Years.

DALLAS, March 30 (AP)—Phil Cavarretta and the Chicago Cubs parted company after 20 years today and another former Chicago baseball idol — Stan Hack—stepped in as manager.

Cavarretta, a star player for 17 years but unable to win as manager in two full seasons, was relieved of his post here yesterday after the Cubs had dropped their fifteenth spring exhibition game in 20 starts. It was the first managerial change in the major leagues this year.

Wid Matthews, director of playing personnel of the Chicago organization, told Cavarretta he was to change places with Hack, who has been manager of the Los Angeles club in the Pacific Coast League. Cavarretta balked and said he would seek a major league connection elsewhere.

Cavarretta said he had applied to the Milwaukee Braves for a job as either a coach or reserve first baseman. He said he also would talk with the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians when they swing through Dallas Saturday and Sunday on an exhibition tour.

Matthews insisted that Phil wasn't fired but Cavarretta had a different view. "I come home and get fired," he said sadly. Cavarretta now lives in Dallas and operates a children's amusement park here.

Matthews gave no reason for the action other than that it was "for the good of all concerned." But at Phoenix, Ariz., Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, said "this year when he picked everyone but us to finish in the first division, he was licked before he started. He said he did not have the kind of ball players he wanted. He had sort of given up on the boys, so to speak, feeling that they were not pennant material. Well, maybe not, but they could be with the will to win."

"I was really shocked," Cavarretta said at his home here. "Matthews told me right after the ball game. He just said Stan was coming in to take over the ball club. And if I wanted to stay with the Cub organization, I could take over Los Angeles. I just couldn't see going out to Los Angeles. I thought I had done a good job with the material I had. So I get fired in spring training."

Cavarretta, 37, became manager of the Cubs in mid-season of 1951, replacing Frank Frisch. His club was fifth in 1952 and seventh last year. Cavarretta played in three world series and was voted most valuable player in the National League in 1945.

ON THE WHISKEY YOU BUY!

Next time you ask for a straight whiskey, take a long look at the label. If the words Distilled and Bottled by are on it you know who made it, where it was made and who bottled it. And if the name Glenmore is on the label, too, you know you are getting a uniform product of one of the most respected distilleries in Kentucky. You see, we do not use other whiskies to bottle under the Glenmore label. If we did, the label could not read Distilled and Bottled by. We urge you to remember these important facts and try Glenmore next time!

Jackson Eyes Marciano's Crown After Stopping Bucceroni

BETWEEN ROUNDS

by W. J. McGoogan

A Heavyweight Star Is Born.

FIGHT fans who witnessed the victory of Tommy Jackson over Dan Bucceroni at Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn last night were dumbfounded.

Here was a 22-year-old boy with only 17 fights defeating the third-ranking heavyweight in the world. And a good heavyweight with a terrific punch in either hand.

Jackson's recuperative powers were almost beyond belief. He took everything Bucceroni threw at him—and Dan really turned loose some bombs—and came back fighting, fresh as a daisy.

Tommy started each round as though it were the first. The minute rest between rounds seemed to restore all the energy he had used in the three minutes of fighting.

He kept his left hand going into Bucceroni's face throughout, pumping it in like a piston, causing Dan's head to bob about from side to side like a rubber ball in rough water.

The cut which was opened over Bucceroni's right eye in the second round was, of course, decisive. The injury hampered Bucceroni for the rest of the way and Jackson gave him no chance to rest and recuperate.

There wasn't a clinch in the fight. Jackson made no effort to clinch and if Bucceroni had any ideas in that direction, Jackson wouldn't let him carry them out.

Bucceroni, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighed 192 pounds. Jackson, the same height, was just a half-pound lighter, so it was a perfect match, physically, and developed into one of the greatest fights you could ever hope to see.

That was the way it looked on the TV screen and the reaction of the crowd seemed to indicate that it was equally thrilling at ringside. The bout was televised here by WTVI.

After it was over there was speculation as to where Jackson would go from here. And there were, of course, many extravagant claims made by his supporters. Even to saying that he could take Rocky Marciano, the present champion, tomorrow.

And Now Marciano?

THAT may be a little far fetched but surely, after seeing Jackson in action several times, watching him stop Rex Layne, then defeat Clarence Henry, then stop Bucceroni, you wouldn't want to bet your week's salary on Marciano against Tommy.

Unless the unforeseen happens, it would appear that Jackson will be the opponent for Marciano following Rocky's June engagement with Ezzard Charles. That's assuming, of course, that Marciano gets past Charles.

The man is a physical marvel. He seems to be completely tireless and oblivious to punishment. He took punches from Bucceroni which would have felled a horse. He was hurt, all right, but he came back fighting as though nothing had happened.

He still has a number of crude maneuvers. He swings his arms around his head and he uses a DOUBLE UPPERCUT. That's the first time you've ever seen that.

Tommy also has copied the shuffle which Jersey Joe Walcott used.

Looked Like Bad Match.

Truly, the very awkward things he does makes it that much tougher on his opponent.

It seemed when the match was made that his handlers had pulled a real boner, pitting a virtually unproved youngster against the experienced and hard-hitting Bucceroni. One really bad beating in that spot might have ended his career, so far as championship hopes went, at least. But, they must have known what they were doing for he certainly proved himself as an unusual heavyweight, who will be mighty hard for anybody to beat, and that includes the champion.

Victory Is No. 16 for Hurricane

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—A national unknown until two months ago, Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson today sought a shot at heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and dared any other leading contender to fight him. And nobody laughed.

The tireless, non-stop punching, 22-year-old New York Negro became an outstanding challenger last night by stopping Dangerous Dan Bucceroni, third-ranking heavyweight contender, in 1:58 of the sixth round at Eastern Parkway Arena.

Referee Al Berl halted the massacre as the lanky, 2-1 favored Philadelphian reeled around the ring with his right eye almost shut and with blood oozing from a cut over the same orb. The 192-pound Bucceroni, stopped for the second time in his career, never fell but he was close to exhaustion when Berl intervened.

Bucceroni punched himself out against the relentless 191½-pound Jackson who kept coming without regard for Dan's vaunted wallop. The Sunday punch that had flattened 30 of Buccy's previous 49 opponents (46 wins, three losses) meant nothing to the unorthodox, superbly conditioned Jackson.

Gamble Backfires.

Bucceroni risked an almost certain September title shot for a $10,000 guarantee against Jackson. The gamble backfired disastrously.

Hard-hitting Dan was the third "name" fighter in two months to bow before the buzz-saw attack of the unschooled, unlettered youngster who learned to fight by fighting. He said he never went to school but "my mother taught me to read."

A pro fighter only 20 months, the 6-2½ bundle of energy earned a No. 7 ranking by stopping Rex Layne in six in January and by trouncing Clarence Henry in ten (Jackson's first ten) March 1.

Ahead of him are Marciano, Ezzard Charles, Nino Valdes, Roland LaStarza, Don Cockell and Tommy Harrison. Competent observers, including Jack Dempsey among the 4200 crowd for the telecast brawl, give the amazing newcomer at least an even chance against any of them except Rocky.

Who he will fight next, or who will fight him at all, is the big problem now facing Tommy and co-managers Sam Golden and Lippy Breitbart.

"I'd like another try," said the battered Bucceroni. "I'd fight him different. I hit him three times hard enough to put him away."

"He's inhuman," said Don Battles, Bucceroni's manager.

Bring On Rocky.

"He hit me hard," said Jackson. "Jarred me a few times. But every time I came back. Now I want Rocky Marciano. I'll do a better job on him than I did on Bucceroni. If I can't get Rocky, I'll be happy to fight anyone—one a week."

"Man, he has a world of endurance," said Dempsey. "He's a hard man to lick but he doesn't punch hard enough yet. He'll improve. With experience he'll be a great fighter."

It was only Jackson's eighteenth pro fight. He earned his biggest purse, about $4500. The gross gate was $11,246 but TV added another $9500.

Jackson, who trains so often and so vigorously that his managers have to chase him from the gym, has a 16-1-1 record with six kayos. He was outpointed in a six by Bert Whitehurst and drew with Shirley Pembleton in another six.

Battered, Bewildered Bucceroni

TOMMY JACKSON bores in to inflict further punishment on a bloodied DAN BUCCERONI as the two heavyweights fought at Brooklyn Parkway Arena. The bout was stopped by the referee in the sixth round, Jackson winning on a technical knockout, a result which surprised the fight world. Jackson had engaged in only 17 professional bouts.

Savoie and Persley Ready For Arena Bout, Will Do Only Light Work Today

By W. J. McGoogan

Armand Savoie, Montreal, and Arthur Persley, Red Cross, La., are ready for their 10-round lightweight match at The Arena tomorrow night and neither will do more than limber up today.

The bout will be telecast nationally and locally (KSD-TV, 9 o'clock), which means that the main event will go on promptly at that time.

Both are ranked among the top contenders in the 135-pound division although Savoie failed in his effort to gain the championship last November when he was knocked out by Jimmy Carter, then champion, in Montreal in the fifth round. Previously Savoie had gained a 10-round verdict over Carter.

Savoie has a better slugging record than Persley. In 63 bouts, Savoie has scored 23 knockouts in 51 victories for a percentage of .308. The Canadian has lost 12 decisions, has drawn in five bouts and has been knocked out twice, the other time by Noel Gagnon, whom he later kayoed.

Persley in 46 contests has scored 11 knockouts in 41 victories. His percentage is .238. He has lost two decisions, has two draws and has been knocked out by Luther Rawlings.

The Louisiana boxer says he has fought a number of other bouts, but the 46 are all that show in the record book.

It will be the first start for Savoie since his knockout by Carter and will be Persley's first start this season.

Nate Brooks, fancy Chicago bantamweight who recently won the North American title by stopping Billy Peacock, will battle Teddy Roberts, St. Louis, in the 10-round co-feature. Brooks created something of a sensation by defeating Peacock and followed that with a triumph over Pappy Gault from whom Peacock won the championship.

Roberts lost to Gault at The Arena but made a good fight of it, so he should be able to extend Brooks.

In a local match of more than usual interest, Sonny Liston and Stan Howlett are down for six rounds in a heavyweight bout. Neither has been defeated in the professional ranks.

Final Tonight in Parochial Tourney

Notre Dame will oppose St. Mary Magdalen at 8:30 tonight in the title game of the C.B.C. parochial school basketball tournament. St. Paul and St. Rose will meet in the third place game at 7:30.

Notre Dame won from St. Paul in overtime, 27-23, and St. Mary Magdalen defeated St. Rose, 34-21, in last night's semi-finals. Jim Guimbarda of St. Mary Magdalen paced all scorers with 23 points.

Cards, Eagles Will Play Pro Grid Game Here

St. Louis football fans will see National League teams in another pre-season exhibition game here late this summer. Game sponsors said the Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles would play at Oakland Stadium Saturday night, Sept. 11.

Last year the New York Giants defeated the Baltimore Colts, 10-6, in a benefit game for the scholarship fund of Fontbonne College and St. Joseph's Academy. Joseph P. Holloran and Edward G. Marsh again will act as co-chairmen of the game committee.

Holloran, acting as spokesman, said the Giants and Colts wanted to return which was a tribute to the fine reception accorded them, but the sponsors wanted to get a Chicago team because Midwest fans have been following the Windy City entries on television. Philadelphia was selected largely because the Eagles were the only team in the league to defeat both Detroit, the Western champion, and Cleveland, the Eastern division winner.

Olson May Have 10-Lb. Weight Edge Over Gavilan in Title Bout

CHICAGO, March 30 (AP)—Advantages in weight and record apparently are the main factors that have tipped the betting odds in favor of Bobo Olson in his title battle Friday with Kid Gavilan.

The middleweight champion is an 8-5 favorite, in man-to-man betting, to retain his crown against the welter titlist.

The Gavilan camp scoffs at the odds, saying the differences in weight and performance against mutual opponents—both in Olson's favor—are mere "paper fighting."

The feeling there is that Gavilan is the best fighter in the world—up to and even possibly including heavyweights — and that he'll prove it at Chicago Stadium Friday, starting at 9 p.m. (St. Louis time).

As for the weight question, there's no doubt that Olson is going to have a distinct edge. He's a steady 160-pounder, at the most may drop a pound below. Gavilan, of course, won his welterweight championship at the 147-pound limit and doesn't figure to be more than five or six pounds heavier against Olson.

"We don't expect it to be an easy fight for Bobo," says his manager, Sid Flaherty. "But in the end it's going to be the old story of a good little man against a good big man—the good big man always wins."

Another Olson strategist says the middleweight champ's heft advantage may be as much as 10 pounds by ringtime. "Right after the feigh-in, Bobo will start putting on weight," he declared. "By fight time he may weigh as much as 163."

To all this, Gavilan merely grins, points out that he has fought—and licked—a number of men as big as Olson, and maybe just as good, and says the difference in weight means nothing compared to the difference in degree of pugilistic excellence.

"I am real fighter, you know," is how he puts it. "Bobo I think punches not so very good."

If you were trying to predict the outcome on the basis of records, Bobo again would have the edge. They have fought six common foes.

Sugar Ray Robinson beat both of them twice. Each licked Walter Cartier, Paddy Young and Otis Graham. Olson stopped Gene Hairston in six rounds, Gavilan dropped a 10-rounder to the same man. Bobo won in 10 rounds against Robert Villemain and Gavilan lost to him in 10.

This means nothing, according to Angel Lopez, the Cuban Kid's manager. "Gavilan fought them all first," he says. "He's softened them up."

That the Gavilan side of the weight-and-records debate is gaining more influence may be reflected by a slow decline in the odds favoring Olson. They've dropped slightly in the last week and some figure they'll be down to 6-5 and take your pick by ringtime.

Three Bouts Added To Amateur Program

Three bouts have been added to the Wellston Legion Post No. 154 amateur ring card for Friday night, April 9, bringing Matchmaker Joe Herbst's total of bouts closed to six. Four open matches will top the 15-bout show at the Idadale and Kienlen Hall.

In a 135-pound novice bout, Bob Lynn of the Bangert A.C. will meet Earl Spicer of Mt. Pleasant. Roger Cozart, another Bangert A.C. product, will face with Otis Bolden of Carr Center in a 126-pound sub-novice bout, while the SBAC's Jerry Clinton will oppose Jim Anderson of Tandy in a 105-pound novice match.

One of Herbst's feature bouts is between Jesse Bowdry of the Rock A.C., the Golden Gloves lightweight novice champ, and David Earl of St. Paul Social Center, the clever open champ who reached the final of the Midwestern Tournament of Champions early this month.

Y.M.H.A. Shares Title.

Y.M.H.A. shared in the team championship of the United States Handball Association tournament at Chicago with a total of 13 points. Teams from Chicago and Detroit also tallied 13 points. Y.M.H.A. members included singles players Stan London, Carl Steinmetz and Paul Lubin and doubles players Ed Stein, Sid Schrier and Sig Loffstein.

City House Wins Opening Game in Maryville Tourney

Led by Carol Purtle, who scored 27 points, City House (Sacred Heart) started the defense of its Maryville College basketball championship with a 62-21 triumph over Laboure High yesterday afternoon.

Five other games were played on the opening round. Rosati-Kain defeated St. Francis de Sales, 43-25; St. Anthony won from St. Peter's, 39-36; St. Philips of Belleville walloped St. Mary's of Carlyle, 39-6; St. Joseph's trounced Notre Dame, 52-24, and St. Alphonsus (Rock) defeated De Andreis, 36-27.

Villa Duchesne, a perennial strong entry, will make its tournament bow late this afternoon, meeting Sacred Heart of St. Charles. Incarnate Word will oppose St. Mark's and St. Elizabeth will meet Xavier in other games.

Tonight St. Peter's will play St. Mary's, St. Anthony opposes St. Philip and Rock takes on St. Joseph.

Jack Mimlitz, Don Ohl Named Players of Year

Jack Mimlitz of C.B.C. and Don Ohl of Edwardsville were selected as the outstanding Missouri and Illinois high school basketball players of the year in the KXOK contest conducted by sportscaster France Laux.

Announcement of the selections was made last night at the annual banquet at the Downtown Y.M.C.A. Committee members who picked the boys were Roy Newsom, chairman, Sam Shepard Jr., Russell Wood, Bob Cochran, Clair Houston, Ray Kaegel and Ted Search.

Attending the banquet were Coaches Ed Hickey, St. Louis U., Sparky Stalcup, Missouri, Bob Light, Washington U., and Eldon Pederson, Concordia Seminary.

Detroit to Bid for 1960 Olympic Games

DETROIT, March 30 (AP)—Detroit will make another effort to be the host city to olympic games—in 1960. The city council endorsed the idea yesterday at the urging of a sportsman group. The motor city vainly sought the games in 1952. Australia was them for 1956.

The Kutis five rolled team high three of 3322 and Sisler-Hummel tallied 1191 team high single in the Metropolitan Classic Bowling League last night at Bowl-Mor Lanes. Woody Webb's 265 and George Rubich's 703 took individual honors. Team results: Porky & Brader 2, Silver Seal 1; Sisler-Hummel 2, Willens 1; Kutis 3, Reinekes 0; Bishops 2, Suburban 1. Bill Roberts tallied 277 and Irv Kreig 712 in the preceding B-M junior Classic League.

651 Series for Don Carter in A.B.C. Tourney

SEATTLE, March 30 (AP)—The American Bowling Congress observed "Detroit day" at the fifty-first annual tournament yesterday with teams from the Motor City taking over seventh and tenth places in the open team division standings and individual Detroit bowlers figuring in other changes in top rankings.

While the defending team champion, Pfeiffers of Detroit, was having a bad night, Maple Lanes Recreation help up honors of the Michigan City, rolling a 2874 which gave them seventh place in the open division. The Pfeiffers rolled 2826 to squeeze into tenth place.

Don Carter, all-star match game champion, didn't disappoint the crowd of 3000—largest ever to watch a bowling match in Seattle. He rolled a 651 series on 234 and 223 games after a 194 opening game that cost him his chance for his thirteenth straight 200 or plus game in ABC play.

Two 19-year-olds led Detroit entries into the standings columns yesterday afternoon.

Don Glinski, an unheralded tool and die apprentice, copped first place in the singles event standings with a 674 score on games of 224-245-250. He displaced Jim Nelson of Portland, Ore., from the No. 1 spot. Nelson's 665 tally had stood for the best since the tourney's second day.

Glinski, who rolls for the Cecil Ward Jr. All Stars of Detroit, scored 546 in the team and 607 in doubles which, coupled with his high singles effort, gave him an all-events mark of 1827, tieing for fifth place in that division.

Another Detroiter, Ken LaForge, also 19 and an apprentice welder, grabbed off a tie for fourth place in the singles with a 652 score.

And Robert Hitt, a Detroit milkman who bowls for E & B, rolled a 659 team score, a 590 doubles and a 592 singles to grab undisputed possession of third place in the all-events with 1841.

The other Detroit entry in the record books for the afternoon was made by the doubles team of Charles Stevens and William Stobart, ages 19 and 21, respectively, who moved into second position with 1240.

The only non-Detroit news was made by Shields Sporting Goods team of Vancouver, Wash., and a pair of California bowlers, Frank Kohl and Lou Perick, of Sacramento.

The Shields team took fifth place in the booster division on the strength of a 2714 tally. Kohl and Perick moved into ninth place in the doubles standings with a 1220.

McCall's Dogs Win 2 Events

Two dogs owned by B. McCall of Birmingham, Ala., won the puppy and derby stakes at the Missouri Open Field Trial at August A. Busch wildlife area at Weldon Spring yesterday.

McCall's Storm Tide, a male pointer, took the Derby stake and his Storm's Glory Be, a female pointer, was first place in the puppy stake.

Kjering, owned by Sam McCluney, Warrensburg, Mo., was third in the Derby and Miss Fysti, owned by Roger Lord, St. Louis, third in the puppy event.

The stakes are sponsored by the Globe-Democrat.

FAN FARE—By Walt Ditzen

Japanese Beats Filipino, Gains Oriental Title

TOKYO, March 30 (UP)—Masahi Akiyama won the Oriental lightweight championship tonight in a unanimous decision over Tommy Lerma of the Philippines in a 12-round bout.

Before a capacity crowd of 10,000 fans at Soldiers Memorial Hall, Lerma lost the fight but received cheers from partisan Japanese fans for his great fighting spirit.

He was the aggressor all the way. Even when Akiyama caught him against the ropes and in corners and punished him with hard left and right body jabs, Lerma came out fighting, swinging both hands.

Fans agreed it was the best fight seen in Japan for many years. Akiyama, at 133 pounds and Lerma, at 132, were both in top condition.

Simpkins Meet Kutis in Title Match Sunday

By Dent McSkimming

Pressed for time, the Municipal soccer executive committee has scheduled the championship final between Simpkins and Kutis for Sunday afternoon, Chick Oster, committee chairman, said today the game must be played immediately because of impending national championship engagements involving both Simpkins and Kutis, the one in National Amateur Cup competition and the other in the national Open field.

Kutis will be forced to face Simpkins with a weakened lineup. Center Halfback Harry Keough, Right Fullback Herman Wecke and Inside Left Ruben Mendoza will all be absent on their trip to Haiti. There they will play on the United States team in a World Cup match.

Simpkins, too, must get along without such stars as Bill Hain and Pete Traina, both of whom have reported to baseball camps.

Sunday's show, at Fairground Park, will be a doubleheader with Grapettes opposing Carondelet at 1:30 with halves reduced to 30 minutes, and the Kutis-Simpkins game starting at 2:45.

Overtime will be played if necessary to break a tie score in the title match. There will be no second game between Kutis and Simpkins.

Player Suspended One Year.

Open Season on Goalies.

The six American Hockey League teams employed 19 different goalies this season. Every regular goaltender received one or more injuries which caused him to miss games.

.400 Hitting Outfielder Embarrasses 'Big Brass' of Dodgers

Amoros Had Been Slated For Minors

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 30 (UP)—It's hard to believe it could happen even in Brooklyn but the Dodgers are being embarrassed this spring by a rookie outfielder's .400-batting average.

It's not because they expected him to hit .500, either, but because vice presidents Fresco Thompson and Buzzy Bavasi had Sandy Amoros ticketed for the minor leagues before he reported to camp.

"We need a left-handed hitting outfielder who can hit .300," Bavasi said at the outset of spring training. "We'd be very happy to swing a deal for one and will guarantee fine talent in return."

Amoros fits those qualifications exactly—he's left-handed, a left fielder and so far a .400-hitter—but the Dodgers still insist that he's not what they're looking for. They say he needs another year in the minor leagues.

Amoros, incidentally, batted .353 and drove in 100 runs for Montreal in the International League last season and was dubbed "the hitter with the miracle wrists."

Only Tebbetts In Doubt.

Fifteen of the 16 pitchers who will be honored with opening day assignments two weeks hence were just about set today with only Manager Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Redlegs in a bit of a quandary.

The world champion New York Yankees will have 34-year-old southpaw Ed Lopat on the mound when they open against the Washington Senators while Manager Walt Alston of the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers is expected to name Don Newcombe to start the campaign against the New York Giants. Seven of this year's opening day hurlers also opened the 1953 season and four started their teams off with victories.

Tebbetts said he would open "with a veteran pitcher other than Fred Baczewski," who has been selected to work the second game of the season against the Chicago Cubs, but Bud Podbielan is the favorite.

The probable opening day pitching lineup as learned via a survey of the 16 managers: (1953 records are in parentheses).

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Brooklyn (Don Newcombe 0-0) at New York (Sal Maglie 8-9).

Philadelphia (Robin Roberts 23-16) at Pittsburgh (Bob Friend 8-11 or Max Surkont 11-5).

Milwaukee (Warren Spahn 23-7) at Cincinnati (Bud Podbielan 6-16).

Rush, rapidly rounding into peak form for his assignment, turned in six shutout innings against the Baltimore Orioles yesterday but Lemon, the only other opening-day pitcher to work, was a disappointment against the New York Giants.

Rush's fine pitching was wasted, however, when the Orioles hopped on Howie Pollet for three runs in the ninth inning to score a 4-3 victory and score their fifteenth victory in 21 Grapefruit League games. Clint Courtney drove in the winning run for the Orioles with a single.

Lemon, however, was tagged for seven hits and two runs in four innings as the Giants downed Cleveland, 4-1, and opened up an 8-2 bulge in their 23-game spring series with the Indians. Larry Jansen and Marion Picone limited the Indians to six hits.

Big Day for Yost.

It was a great day for Eddie Yost, who hammered out three home runs to lead the Washington Senators to a 12-8 victory over the Detroit Tigers. It was Washington's seventh straight triumph against big league opposition and Yost's one-game total was one third of his entire output during the 1953 season.

Ted Klusezewski's two-run homer in the ninth enabled the Cincinnati Redlegs to overcome an 8-6 deficit and down the Yankees, 9-8. In other games, the Philadelphia Phillies routed the Dodgers, 19-5, and the Milwaukee Braves scored a 12-4 romp over Macon of the Sally League.

Rookies to Open Season.

Manager Fred Haney singled out two rookies as probable starters when the Pittsburgh Pirates open their National League schedule, April 13. Named as likely to open the season were rookie first-baseman Bob Skinner and rookie Curtis Roberts at second base. Haney also indicated that Sid Gordon would open at third, Frank Thomas in left field and Dick Hall in center field. Rookies Vincent Furfaro, Lew Damman, Guy Morton and Truman Clevenger were cut from the Boston Red Sox roster by Manager Lou Boudreau. Morton was optioned to Albany of the Eastern League while Furfaro, Damman and Clevenger all were sent to DeLand, Fla., for assignment with the Louisville club of the American Association.

Eight players, including highly-regarded outfielder Bob Masser, were sliced off the Baltimore Orioles' squad. In addition to Masser, first-baseman Frank Keller went to Syracuse in the International League while pitchers Ryne Duren and Bill Pilgrim, catcher Chuck Thomas, outfielders Jim Pisoni and Karl Kwak and infielders Jerry Jacobs and Sam David were optioned to San Antonio in the Texas League.

Last Words Before the Ax Fell

Gaines Gives Up Baseball Meet Chairmanship

By John J. Archibald

Froebel Gaines, who expects to have a powerful Webster Groves diamond squad this season, has resigned as chairman of the state baseball committee. He handled the job for four years, and did much to help the event reach the popularity it has attained. From a total of 78 entries in 1950, the number grow to 141 last year. Only 187 Missouri high schools had baseball teams that first year, but the total now is nearly 350.

Gaines wrote a thesis on the state high school baseball program in Missouri and submitted it to the University of Colorado, as part of his work toward a master's degree in physical education. This work has since been adopted as the official guide for operation of the state meet.

In vacating the chairmanship, Gaines said he felt that he had contributed as much as he could toward the program, and that he believed others should have an opportunity to improve upon the set-up with whatever ideas they have.

There has been no announcement regarding a new chairman from the state office. Also, no entry forms have been mailed out, although March 15 was believed to be the deadline for this.

The finals of the state meet will be in St. Louis, May 27, 28, and 29.

Ten Webster players received letters last season. Only first base and two of the outfield spots will be filled with non-lettermen, while four pitchers will be experienced.

Jerry Wolff will be at first, and he displayed his skill with the Maplewood Legion team last summer. Other probable regulars include Hank Kuhlman, catcher; Herschel O'Kelley, Bob Sadowski, Bo Toft, infielders; Charles James, outfield. The hurlers who earned letters are Wayne Thompson, Bud Schwarz, Sherwood Carr, and Wayne Kupferer.

Candidates for the outfield openings are Kirt Vahle, Bill Schwarz, Joe Heimlicher, and John Stauber.

The Webster Groves golf team, which has what is probably the longest string of consecutive athletic victories in this area—49 straight dual meet wins—is getting ready for another campaign. Coach Tyke Yates's team has won the Suburban League title for the past three years and the district championship the past two.

Webster hopes were dimmed somewhat last week, however, because of the injury to returning letterman Bill Johnson in an automobile accident. Two tendons in Johnson's left arm were severed, and he suffered facial injuries as well. It is uncertain how long he will be out of action.

The other returning letterman at Webster is Al Quevereux, a junior. In addition, two members of last year's squad who did not play enough to earn a letter will be available. They are Jim Lundergan, a sophomore, and Jay Aldinger, another junior.

A prep golf team uses six boys in each match, and teams usually carry two spares. Suburban League schools which play golf, in addition to Webster, are Kirkwood, Clayton, Ladue, Normandy, Brentwood, University City, and Wellston. Wellston will return to golf competition after an absence of several seasons.

Detroit in Ties.

Of the five tie games played during 1953 in the American League, the Detroit Tigers were involved in four. Three times they tied the Philadelphia Athletics.

Rosenberg to Defend State Sprint Title

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 30—The high school track and field championships have grown so big they will be run over three days at the University of Missouri.

The Class C schools will compete Thursday afternoon and evening, the Class B schools Friday afternoon and evening, and the Class A schools on Saturday morning and afternoon.

T. L. Noel, secretary of the Missouri High School Activities Association, reported that a handful of entries had been received for each division. The only thing he was certain of was that there will be a host of new individual champions, and possibly team champions, because graduation had depleted the ranks of defenders.

Take Douglass of Festus as an example. Marvin Byas scored 34½ of the school's 38½ points in winning the Class C title last year, and Byas has been graduated. That leaves Pacific, the runner-up, as a stronger contender because it has Jim Shepard for the distance races—although it lost John Accola, second-high point man to Byas, by graduation to the University of Missouri.

Coach Henry Schemmer at University City, always a contender indoors and outdoors for the Class A championship, has in Dave Rosenberg, sprinter, one of the three returning champions. Paul Rinehart of Brookfield, also a dash man, is a third and he competes in the Class B sprints.

As a warning to future Missouri Tiger foes, nine of last year's high tschool champions are enrolled at the University of Missouri, including Accola, Charles Batch of St. Louis, Roger Ornduff, Lynn Goodman and Ford Englund of Kansas City, Sonny Stringer of Willow Springs, Ronnie Smith of Bethany, Gene Roll of Harrisonville and Ronnie McCormick of Springfield.

Golfer's $279,000 Damage Suit Begins

DURHAM, N.C., March 30 (AP)—A $279,000 damage suit resulting from air crash injuries suffered by golf pro Stewart (Skip) Alexander was called for trial yesterday in federal district court here.

Alexander, a Durham resident who plays out of St. Petersburg, Fla., filed suit against the Federal Government and the Civil Air Patrol after the CAP plane in which he was riding crashed and burned at Evansville, Ind., Sept. 24, 1950. Burned in the crash, Alexander spent several months in a hospital.

Lengthy affidavits, CAP regulations and other documents were introduced.

CSMAC Baseball Meeting.

A meeting of managers, coaches and councillors for the Junior Division of the Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the CSMAC, 1012 Loughborough, to determine how many baseball teams the club will sponsor in the juvenile division this year.

Tehans and Ryans Win In Basket Tourney

The Tehans defeated the Slaughters, 68-42, and the Zions won from the Jets, 60-49, in senior division games of the Salvation Army basketball tournament. In an intermediate game, Art's Boys Club defeated the Carvers, 75-47.

Tonight's schedule will be Mustangs vs. St. Paul (intermediates) at 6:45, Royals vs. Pirates (seniors) 7:30, and Bob Soells No. 2 vs. Bergers (seniors) 8:45.

Milwaukeean Wins Title.

PANAMA, March 30 (AP)—Don Hopka of Milwaukee won the world professional diving championship yesterday with a total of 479 points. Rush Collins, a United States soldier from Korea was second with 450.

THE MOVE TO MODERN LIVING

See why the trend is growing to the 1954 Lincoln

The facts are simple: Lincoln is the one fine car whose sales have more than doubled in two short years.

There are good reasons why this trend keeps growing. The great new Lincoln for 1954 is the most dramatic edition of the car that started the big change in American motorists' ideas about fine cars.

Take, for instance, Lincoln's new styling—from the stunning new grille to the crisp, new rear deck and distinctive new taillights. It is a completely new design—akin to the ground-hugging, functional look found wherever the living is modern. Note, too, how well Lincoln's new colors and fabrics go with Lincoln's new styling; dramatic new shades in nylons, gabardines, and leathers.

Above all you have incredible performance. Lincoln's world-famous V-8 engine has the new automatic 4-barrel carburetor—gives you superbly controlled action at all times. Add to all this the optional features—power steering, power brakes, the 4-way power seat and electric power window lifts—and driving becomes practically effortless. You'll know what we mean the moment you drive a wonderful new 1954 Lincoln or Lincoln Capri.

Performance proof: Lincoln again won 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th places over all stock cars in the 1,912-mile Mexican Pan-American Road Race.

Don't miss the big television hit, "TOAST OF THE TOWN," with Ed Sullivan, Tuesday evening, 10:00 to 11:00, Station KSD-TV, Channel 5.

Rosenthal and Selvy Star as Collegians Win

TORONTO, March 30 (AP)—The College All-Stars defeated the Harlem Globetrotters 94-87 before 7455 fans last night to win their first game of a 22-game, cross-country basketball series.

The Globetrotters took a 30-21 lead in the first quarter but were outscored 29-17 in the second, giving the All-Stars a 50-47 halftime margin.

Frank Selvy, Furman's All-America led the collegians with 19 points. Dick Rosenthal of Notre Dame notched 17, Cliff Hagan, Kentucky All-America, 15.

The teams play at The Arena April 7.

Coast Loop Drops Its Rule Against Working Agreements

LOS ANGELES, March 30 (AP).

THE Pacific Coast League directors have voted to rescind the clause which prohibited working agreements.

The directors yesterday put official approval on a policy previously agreed upon, which makes it possible for P.C.L. teams to have dealings with parent major league clubs and others. The league had been restricted in its operations since it adopted the no option rule and was forced to develop its own players or bring them in from lower classifications.

The directors also decided to play an all-star game June 14 between the team in first place at that time and a picked group from the seven other clubs, funds to go to the Association of Professional Baseball Players.

The American Medical Association voluntarily conducted in their own laboratory a series of independent tests of filters and filter cigarettes. As reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, these tests proved that of all the filter cigarettes tested, one type was the most effective for removing tars and nicotine. This type filter is used by Kent...and only Kent!

IMPORTANT to every smoker who has ever been bothered by nicotine and tars are these findings of the laboratory of the American Medical Association.

Here you have authoritative confirmation that KENT's exclusive Micronite Filter is more effective for removing both nicotine and tars than any other type of filter cigarette tested.

And remember, KENT and only KENT has the Micronite Filter, made of a pure, dust-free, completely harmless material that is not only so effective, but so safe that it actually is used to help filter the air in hospital operating rooms.

Yet with all its superior filtering efficiency, KENT's Micronite Filter gives you an easy draw . . . and the full, satisfying flavor of the fine KENT tobaccos blended especially for filter smoking.

So, if you are ever bothered by nicotine and tars in tobacco smoke, change to KENT for real smoking enjoyment, and real protection!

Wonderful Music But Sour Comedy

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, March 30.

THE FORD MOTOR CO., almost unwittingly, really started something with their fiftieth anniversary program which may have been the most successful television show ever put on. Now every one is getting into the act. Sunday night, General Foods, apparently unwilling to wait another 25 years, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with an hour and a half show on all four networks devoted to the memorable works of that incredible team — Rodgers and Hammerstein.

MARY MARTIN

YOU COULD hardly ask for a more exciting prospect than an hour and a half of excerpts from "South Pacific," "Carousel," "The King and I" and "Oklahoma"—or even from some of the Rodgers and Hammerstein lesser works such as "Allegro" and "Me and Juliet." Especially when we were promised the original casts whenever that was possible.

However, some genius in charge of this operation decided that Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals—which are among the great show business phenomena of all time—were not enough. So they threw in Jack Benny, Edgar Bergen and Groucho Marx to tell some jokes. And right there the show, which had promise of greatness, dissolved into a sort of Lambs' gambol, a testimonial dinner to two very great showmen.

RODGERS AND HAMMERSTEIN'S MUSIC, fine as it is, is only a small part of Rodgers and Hammerstein. They are the two most consummate artists at show business in our time. They know how to establish a mood, how to build it, when to break it. They tell a story in song and dialogue with magnificent stage craftsmanship. And what's far more important (as someone once said of J. M. Barrie), they leave you feeling good. You leave the theater, not only humming the songs, but feeling wonderful.

All of this great skill was totally absent in staging this operation. We were shown only tantalizing excerpts from the great men's works. When they were allowed to develop at some length, like the scene from "Carousel" beautifully sung by John Raitt and Jan Clayton, or the touching "Getting to Know You" from the "The King and I," they were wonderfull.

Or even when Mary Martin strode out in front of a curtain and sang "It Might as Well Be Spring" (which contains the passage "I'm as restless as a willow in a windstorm" which may be the finest marriage of words and music this pair ever wrote), it was still fine entertainment though hardly very imaginative.

BUT THEN, just as the show started to get off the ground, there would be a little interruption—Jack Benny trying to buy a seat at an R & H show, and making wisecracks about all their money, or Edgar Bergen making similar wisecracks with Charlie McCarthy, or Ed Sullivan trying to make any kind of joke. Perhaps the most shocking breach of taste came when R & H were dragged out to perform a sort of parody of "You Bet Your Life" with Groucho Marx. I yield to no one in my admiration for Benny, Bergen and Groucho—but they didn't belong on this show.

And the commercials following Mary Martin's wonderfully impudent "I'm in Love With a Wonderful Guy" were a jarring change in mood. Of course, the glory of the songs remains undimmed. Almost no producer, no matter how bad, can quite take away the magic of Rosemary Clooney (the finest freshest young voice around) singing "No Other Love" or Jan Clayton and John Raitt singing "If I Loved You" or Gordon MacRae and Florence Henderson singing "People Will Say We're in Love."

But what a waste of talent!

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A HILL BILLY moonshiner, with a temper more violent even than his potent products, had all of the nagging from his wife he could tolerate, and so he up and shot her. Carted off to the hoosegow, he was confronted in turn by the lawyer assigned to defend him, reporters, prison doctors, publishers who wanted his autobiography, and a corps of psychiatrists. They asked him so many questions the moonshiner didn't know whether he was coming or going. The last one was, "If you could have it to do over, would you shoot your wife again?" "Ah shuah wouldn't," said the hectored hill billy. "Fact is, ah neva would'a done it in the fust place efin I'd knowed theah was gonna to be so much red tape!"

ACCUSED IN COURT of stealing a motorist's tool kit, the defendant declared that he'd taken it only as a joke. "How far," asked the judge gently, "did you carry that kit?" "Just to my home," answered the defendant. "About four blocks." "Thirty days!" snapped His Honor, "for carrying the joke too far."

"WHERE'S THE BOSS?" asked a salesman as he entered a store for the first time. A bored clerk told him, "Go through that door back there marked 'No Admittance.' Then go through another door that says 'Keep Out.' Turn left and follow the corridor till you see a sign reading 'Silence.' Then yell for him."

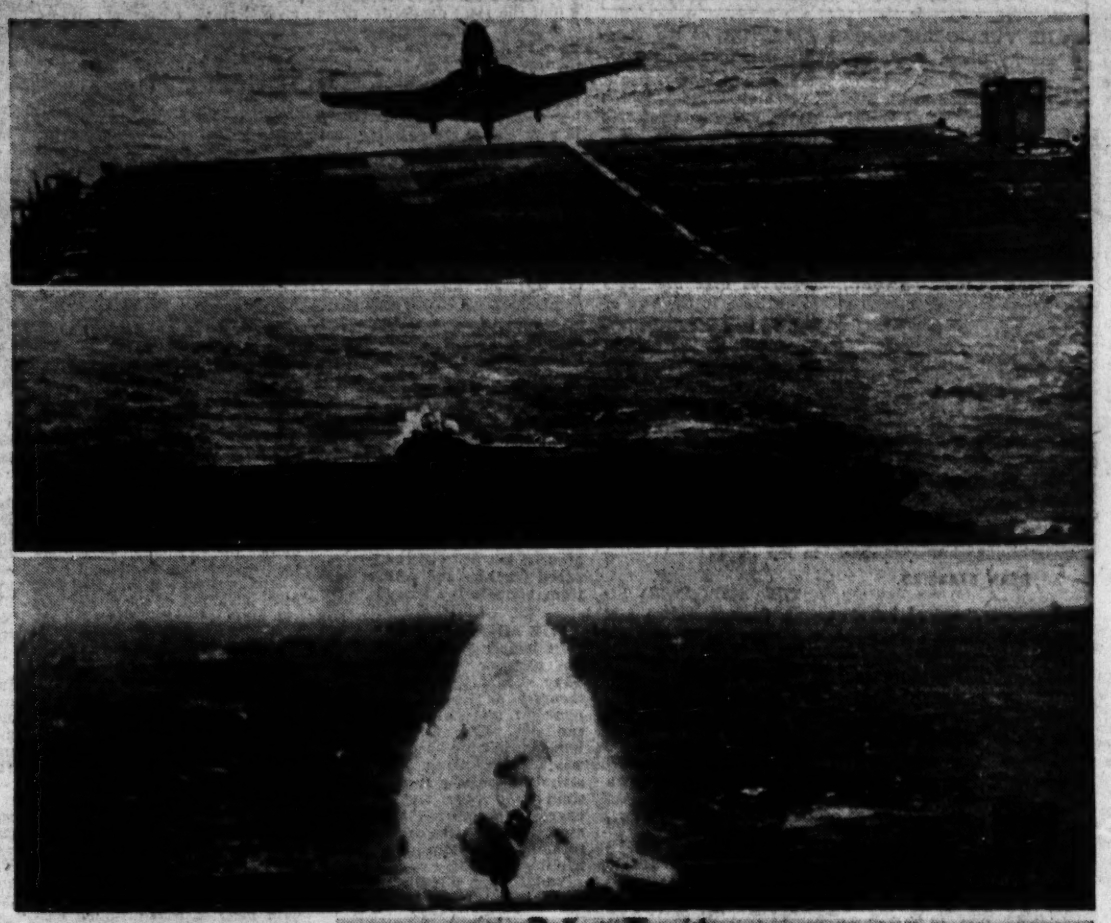
FLAMING LANDING AT SEA



Rapid-fire sequence of pictures illustrates spectacular landing made by Navy F2H-3 Banshee jet fighter plane on carrier Oriskany somewhere in the Pacific March 2. The craft lost altitude just short of flight deck and broke in two on hitting the edge. Forward part of the plane rolled across the deck spurting flame but the pilot, Lt. F. J. Repp (inset) of Waukegan, Ill., managed to break out and scramble to safety.

INDOCHINA HOT SPOT A French soldier sprints to what he hopes will be a safe spot in the split second following explosion of an enemy artillery shell on outpost near Dien Bien Phu, Indochina. Action was caught as the Communist-led Vietminh attempted to soften up the defenses of the key French outpost for one of their futile and costly assaults on the fortress. In an attempt to take some of the pressure off the fortress, the French Sunday wiped out 1000 of the rebels in a foray into neighboring villages.

The Dean

Speaks Up

More on Thank You Letters

By Adele Starbird

THE PUBLIC RELATIONS DIRECTOR of the Community Chest, R. Fullerton Place, has written to me as follows:

"Your column in the Post-Dispatch on Tuesday, March 23, in which you refer to letters of thanks to contributors, interests us very much here at Community Chest.

"Many of our business men who take an active part in the campaign have urged us over the years to do more in the way of thanking contributors. We should like very much to know what response you received, if any, to the views you expressed in your column on Tuesday. Frankly, if your views have general acceptance, they could have quite an influence on the practice we might follow in the future."

DEAN STARBIRD

THE RESPONSE SO FAR has consisted of two demurrals from men who said that they liked to receive thanks for a contribution, and enthusiastic agreement from a considerable number of women — "It just burns me up too, the money that is wasted."

I wonder if the rest of my letters will divide on the basis of sex. If they do, what might one deduce from the tabulation? That men care for appreciation more than women do? That women are more penny-pinching than men? Perhaps more concrete and literal?

It has already been established that women and men differ in the selection of their philanthropies. Women give to hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged, and to religion. They are concerned with bodies and souls. But not with minds! Women will not give as they should to education; that is something which fails to stir their imagination. It is the men who contribute heavily to colleges and research projects.

MY COMPLAINT was not intended for the stirring up of a controversy. I was simply ventilating a long-standing grievance, doing a little spring cleaning of my mind.

My contribution to any charity, however small it may be, represents a slight personal sacrifice. It represents also several hours or days of my time. And last it represents a choice — this particular charity rather than that one. Naturally I am interested in my little investment. I don't want to see it dissipated in useless flummery. So I am disappointed when I receive a form letter acknowledging the check and I try to figure out how much it must have cost to send that letter to all the contributors.

AND WHAT DOES a form letter mean? It is an attempt to personalize something that is essentially impersonal; it is a farce played out on the secretarial level. That big name signed to the letter — I should be naive indeed to suppose that he knows about my little check.

Even if he could know, why on earth should he feel grateful? If gratitude there must be, it should come from me to him and to the organization which makes it possible for me to discharge my obligation to society. It is a great comfort to know that institutions exist for the care and protection of the needy and the ill. Their support is our privilege.

Such institutions also protect the public from being exploited by fakes and loafers. Therefore I can see two good reasons why I should be grateful to the organization; I can see none why the organization should be grateful to me.

Maybe I'm wrong. Maybe I don't see far enough. Perhaps my feminine dislike of waste limits my vision. Anyway I should like to hear from the readers of this column. Do you like to receive form letters of thanks?

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

BOYS, do you ever wonder if your favorite date "really likes you"? Here's how you can tell! She thinks you're very "special" if—

1. She goes to the neighborhood movie with you instead of dating another boy who has invited her to a big dance.

2. She has fun and likes to be with you when you haven't a mint to spend.

3. She invites you to her home for house dates occasionally, proving it's you, not your allowance, that she likes.

4. She never keep you waiting when you call for her. She's ready for your date.

5. She often wears a dress that you said you liked.

6. She exchanges Christmas and birthday gifts with you.

7. She writes to you regularly when you're away and gives you her picture "so you won't forget her."

8. She wears your ring or pin (if you two go steady) where everybody can see it.

9. She smiles happily when your glances meet, and often laughs at nothing at all. (That's "laugh," not giggle, please note. A silly giggle may mean only a feather-brain or embarrassment, lack of poise.)

10. She's interested in your future plans and ambitions and wants you to finish your education before marriage.

Family Typewriter

By Christopher Billopp

THE family typewriter is used for typing English themes, committee reports and letters which otherwise would be done in illegible handwriting.

It sits on a bridge table in a prominent place and does nothing to beautify its surroundings. Suggestions that it be hidden provoke protests that it is about to be used.

The typing performed by the family typewriter is indistinct. A new ribbon would solve the difficulty. But when one is proposed, it is countered with the argument that the old ribbon will be all right if turned. Turning a family typewriter ribbon is a task that is indefinitely postponed.

Since two persons cannot use a typewriter at the same time, conflict is to be expected. This raises the question which is more important, the typing of Mary's English theme, Mother's committee report or a letter of Dad's.

Mary's theme will win. It will be argued that Dad can get his letter done at the office. Mother will yield on the ground that she is accustomed to sacrificing herself. Besides, considering Mary's recent marks, she needs all the help she can get.

Eventually Mother will get her turn at the typewriter. But it will not do her any good, since those who preceded her used up all the typewriter paper.

Women devote much time to learning flower arrangements. But, considering the conspicuous place it occupies in the house, how much greater the contribution to beautification would be if the same attention were devoted to the artistic arrangement of the family typewriter.

Suggestions On Caring For Elderly

By Paul Popenoe

IT has often been remarked that the most dangerous place to be in your home is in bed, because more people die there than anywhere else.

Next most dangerous is to take a bath, because of the number of fatal accidents occurring to people who are enjoying that luxury.

Such warnings will not prevent anyone from sleeping and bathing, but the number of deaths by accident, in homes, is large enough to make every family do some serious thinking.

Such deaths, in Canada and the United States, probably number around 30,000 each year, or almost as many as those two nations lost in battle during the entire Korean war.

EVERY HOME should be checked periodically, to remove unnecessary hazards, and this is particularly the case when there are small children cr very old people in the household.

Mrs. S. writes, "My father, who is nearing 90, is coming to live with us. He is well preserved, as they say, and gets around, but we want to be prepared for him and protect him from unnecessary hazards."

FOR THIS PURPOSE you can start almost anywhere, Mrs. S., but rugs are worth watching. They should be fastened down securely or backed with such non-skid material that no one can slip. This is particularly important at the head of a stairway. Back porch and cellar stairs particularly ought to have stout hand rails, and no loose boards. Of course, all stairways must be kept free from boxes, toys, mops, brooms, and other tripping hazards.

You'll want a night light in the hall and bathroom.

SPECIAL PROVISION must be made, in the bath tub or shower, to prevent the possibility of a fall. Rubber mats with vacuum cups should always be in place.

While you are about it, check all the rest of the house for possible fire hazards. It's astonishing how many there are.

You should also read some of the standard books or inexpensive pamphlets that deal with the care of the elderly.

Finally, help your father to make new friends, find new recreations, and keep active and useful as long as possible. You can't do anything more important than that for him.

Fix It Yourself

Cracks in Foundation Walls.

FEW things will throw a home owner into a state of shock quicker than going into the basement and finding a crack in one of the foundation walls. This is a sort of waste of energy on the part of the home owner for a few small cracks in a foundation wall does not mean that the house is going to fall down around your head.

When you first spot a crack, take a pencil or crayon and make a mark to indicate the top and bottom of the crack. Now go off and forget about things for a few months. If after a period of time you check back and find that the crack has not become any greater, you can patch it with a little cement mortar or just leave it alone—it's not doing any harm.

If the crack has grown, mark its progress and give it a little more time. In most cases it will stop of its own accord and can then be patched.

Usually it is nothing more than a slight movement of the wall and this in no way endangers the house. After all, the Empire State building moves around a little from time to time.

The cracks that you should worry about are those that run right through the wall and continue to grow at a pretty good rate. These usually indicate inadequate footings and should be attended to by a contractor.

If the foundation walls are made of block and they crack and begin to buckle out they should be attended to at once. This buckling out is usually accompanied by water coming through the wall at this point and it's the pressure of the water in back of the wall that is causing the trouble.

A situation of this sort is usually easily cleared up by removing the water from in back of the wall, but this may require the help of a contractor.

Your Food Problems

Fresh Fruit Salad

By Edith M. Barber

THE SEASON FOR THE SEEDLESS NAVEL ORANGE HAS JUST BEGUN. THEY'RE WONDERFUL FOR SLICING AND MAKE DELICIOUS SALADS.

SALAD greens and fresh fruits have an affinity for each other. Even if you are a die-hard partisan of the plain and simple tossed salad, you may accept a fruit combination.

And perhaps you will find that other members of the family will eat more greens if they are offered in a fresh fruit salad.

Fall fruits are particularly suitable for use in salads. Grapes and celery with a bit of onion, celery and apples with a few nuts and a light mayonnaise, or sliced oranges with sliced sweet onions are all favorite combinations. The navel orange season has just begun, and this seedless fruit is fine for salads.

Soon we will have more of the fine fresh grapefruit which gives a tang to a salad. Avocado slices add a contrasting note.

Fresh pears are delicious pared, cored, halved and topped with balls of well-seasoned cottage or cream cheese, or surrounded by a mixed grape and celery salad.

Canned pears and peaches, always available, may be used in the same fashion.

French dressing, which may be flavor with lemon juice, is a good choice for many of these salads. If mayonnaise is used, it may be thinned with sweet or sour cream unless it is to be used as a topping. Then I like to add a little minced parsley or a few minced ripe or stuffed olives.

Orange-Onion Salad.

Pare chilled oranges and slice. Peel and slice sweet onions. Arrange orange and onion slices alternately on bed of salad greens on platter or on individual salad plates. Pass Lemon French Dressing at table.

Lemon French Dressing.

Ingredients: One-half cup lemon juice; one-half cup salad oil; one teaspoon salt; one teaspoon paprika; two tablespoons sugar; one-half teaspoon celery seed; one tablespoon freshly chopped parsley.

Combine all ingredients except parsley. Stir or shake until sugar is dissolved. Store in refrigerator to develop flavor. Just before serving, shake well and add parsley. Yield: About one cup.

Secrets of Charm

Good Grooming Hints

GROOMING FOR A SPECIAL OCCASION TAKES TIME; PLAN YOUR ROUTINE SO YOU WON'T HAVE TO RUSH.

EVERY mother should instruct her daughter in the essentials of good grooming, so that when a girl reaches her teens she has set for herself a practical beauty routine.

Here are a few teenager beauty hints that will help to make a special impression on a special person (your best beau!) for a special occasion—say, a school prom.

If you schedule your preparatory hours, you won't necessitate rushing; then you can enjoy your party to the fullest, without concern for details you may have neglected.

You probably will have decided well in advance what gown, shoes and jewelry you will wear. You will have tried on the complete outfit, to be sure that each element complements every other, and that you haven't forgotten anything—gloves or evening purse, for example.

FIRST off on party day, be sure your dress is pressed and ready. Lay out your accessories, complete to your wispy girdle and the strapless brassiere that gives you such becoming curves.

Your hair has been shampooed the night before; now give it a final setting. Roll the curls without wetting your hair, then wrap a steaming towel round your head—turban-like—for a five-minute set. Let the curls dry under a net.

A warm, relaxing bath can be timed on the beauty schedule to coincide with drying curls. Then a powder dusting, lingerie and make-down.

Since you don't want to play the femme fatale, just your natural pretty self, this is no time to experiment with cosmetics. You may wear rouge and eye shadow, but apply them sparingly. Choose a bright clear-red lipstick, or one with orange or bluish cast, depending upon the color of your dress.

Do a careful job of applying cosmetics when you dress, to save extensive touch-ups later. Then you need carry in your evening purse only what it is designed to contain: a lipstick, comb, handkerchief, compact, tissues—and a door key.

Ready for the last-minute details? Your dress, your necklace and earrings, a last brush of the hair (with a cape covering your shoulders), and a check-up in the long mirror.

There's the doorbell . . . the evening's begun!

My Day

Meeting on Basic Rights Of Americans

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY.

I FINISHED just the other day a novel written by Isabel Black, titled "Hold Close the Day." This is a very simple and rather touching story of how a child gradually comes from deep resentment against a lovable, but certainly difficult, father to a final understanding of what makes her mother love and forgive.

In a hundred different ways this story could be told and understood, but this is well written and the woman who wrote it has a sensitive touch. She understands people of different kinds and can be sympathetic. I think it will be enjoyed by many who have the good fortune to read it in the next few months.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON I went to Columbia University where, following Prof. Henry Steele Commanger, I spoke at the opening session of a conference on "Rights of Free Americans." This conference was sponsored by the Columbia University Student Council and was part of the bi-centennial activities that are taking place on the Columbia University campus during the current academic year. It is interesting to remember that in 1754 this was King's College. Today, 200 years later, it is Columbia University.

I liked the little notice on the back of the folder telling of this conference on "Rights of Free Americans." It says: "This influence (Columbia's) has been felt in the constant expansion and modification of our basic rights. Emphasis on specific privileges and rights of the citizens has changed with the passing times. At one time the 'right' to file claim to several acres of land in the wilderness as a homestead, was important. Later, some felt that they had a 'right' to make men into slaves, others thought that theirs was the 'right" to free men from the bonds of servitude.

"PRESENTLY, EMPHASIS is on the extension of equality of opportunity in employment and education. Along with this, we are still concerned with the retention of our basic rights, although we are under the shadow of a 'cold war.' Will the ever-increasing security measures accomplish what we abhor in the government of our enemies—despotic rule by one or a small group of men?

"Any decision that the Government makes is done with the hope that it will not be regretted in years to come. In the future we can best see what course of action our country should have taken today, but then it is too late, for these actions have become matters of history.

"The purpose of this conference is to acquaint the students and friends of Columbia with the problems of our times so that any actions that they will take will be done after thought, rather than out of ignorance."

1. DOES EXPERIENCE TEACH US TO CONTROL OUR EMOTIONS? YOUR OPINION
2. DOES A CHILD FEEL GUILTY WHEN PARENTS QUARREL? YES NO
3. DO MOST AMERICANS PRAY? YES NO

Answer to Question 1

NOT often. Tests of EQ (emotional quotient) show that about as many people of 40, 50 or 70 years have a low EQ and are as emotionally adolescent as those aged 15, 20 and 25.

Answer to Question 2.

Yes. A leading psychologist says that when parents quarrel, the child feels that he is somehow to blame, even when he is not. Bickering and quarreling parents make children grow up with confused personalities, and, as surveys show, often makes them poor husbands and wives.

Answer to Question 3.

Yes. A Catholic Digest survey indicated that 92 per cent of Jews, Catholics and Protestants, 18 years of age and over, do pray to God. Sixty-one per cent of these pray mainly at night; only 23 per cent start the day with a prayer. More rich persons than poor persons pray.

You can't control your feelings if you don't understand how your emotional machinery works. Learn what happens to your mind and body when your emotions conquer you. Find out what you can do about it by reading the booklet, How to Manage Your Feelings and Emotions. Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I HOPE my letter will cheer up a teen-ager who is now eating her heart out over a boy. When I was 14 I was doing the same for a boy next door who wouldn't give me a tumble. Boy, was he handsome! And there I was, short, stocky, not ugly but neither was I good to look at from a boy's point of view. That went on for nearly a year, then gradually faded with time. Well, two marriages, four children and 26 years later I ran across him again. Believe it or not, he remembered me but I didn't remember him. It took me close to an hour to recall my "love" for him. So don't worry, dear teen-ager, it will all turn out o.k.

L. F. H.

Many adults are too apt to forget how miserable they once were in the throes of their first "love," and are tempted to hoot at suffering teen-agers. So, for that reason, an extra thank-you for your letter. If it proves to even one unhappy girl that her world really hasn't collapsed into little pieces because a certain boy likes someone else, it will be well worth the trouble you took to write it.

Dear Martha:

WE HAVE A SMALL CLUB OF MEN AND WOMEN and when we are at lunch one of the men has a habit of standing up and reaching across the table for the sugar or cream or whatever it may be. It is so revolting for the rest of us. How can we let him know how ill-mannered he is?

F. S.

You may have to kid him out of it, or treat him as you would a child. The next time he pulls that "boarding house reach," just pick up the object he's reaching for, place it right in front of him and say, "All right, Joe, we know you want the cream. Relax. We'll hand it to you." You can draw attention to his discourtesy without being discourteous yourselves.

I AM WRITING so others will learn about the G.I. Wives Club at the Y.W.C.A. Those who are waiting for their husbands to return from service know how lonely they can get. In this club we all get together and enjoy one another's company. We go places together and plan different activities but we watch our budgets, too. The club meets at 8 p.m. the first Friday of each month at the Central branch, 1411 Locust street.

Her Make-Believe Role Paid Off

Marsha Hunt Got Into Movies by Acting as If She Didn't Care for a Hollywood Career

By Mary Kimbrough

WHEN she was 17 and panting for a picture career, Marsha Hunt served as the guinea pig in an experiment to prove that the surest way to get to Hollywood is to act as though it's the last place you want to be. Her nonchalant indifference (a tidy bid of make-believe on her part) paid off in three screen tests and the start of a career which has now spread from Hollywood to Broadway and back to television.

With no recollection of when or how she decided to become an actress, Marsha was nearly through her first year of dramatic school when a pair of photographer friends invited her to the west coast to test their theory that many movie-makers are afflicted with a strange case of illogic and stubbornness and that if she would only say she she wasn't interested, they would be. She did and they were.

A few months later, the movie-struck girl from New York was cast in the magnolia-and-honeysuckle setting of "The Virginia Judge," and played her role so well that she missed out on some future parts on the assumption that she was strictly from Dixie.

BUT enough did come along—in fact there have been 56 roles in all—that she was soon established as a front-line actress and in 1948 she went to Broadway for the first stage role of her career. Since then she has gone into stock and this week makes her debut in St. Louis in "The Lady's Not for Burning," at the Empress Playhouse.

"I have no idea where I ever got the idea to go into the movies," the slim, dark-haired actress said. "Guess I was born with it. At any rate, Mother tells me that when I was 3, she would find me in my room sobbing. When she asked me what the matter was I would stop only long enough to say, 'Please go away. I'm acting.'

"But it was a one-track mind. In Sunday School or summer camp, wherever there was a stage, I was on it. I know I disappointed my parents by giving up college, but I must say they never forbade my going on stage. Once, Dad tried to warn me about the 'jungle' of show business, but I told him, 'Thanks, it's too late.'

"Now, Dad is my most avid fan. He even subscribes to the Hollywood Reporter, which is more than I do."

Marsha was prepared to "suffer, even live in a garret, if necessary." But it never happened that way. She did, however, find herself at a crossroads early in her career when, after 12 "sweet, simpering" ingenue roles in a row, her option was not renewed and "I was a has-been at 20."

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MARSHA HUNT . . . "I FELL FLAT ON MY FACE."

But she picked herself up, headed back to New York and prepared to go into stock, hoping that another movie break would come. It did, sooner than she expected. Before she had made her stage debut, another film studio called her west for a screen test and this time she began a series of character roles which ranged from a neurotic woman committing suicide to a humorous old maid and a Brooklyn slum girl.

AFTER six happy years, she and Alfred Drake were costarred in her first Broadway venture, "Joy to the World," followed by "The Devil's Disciple," "Borned in Texas," and "Legend of Sarah."

"I was worried about that first Broadway role because I was concerned whether or not I had so vanished into my various screen roles that I couldn't bring anything of myself to this part. By then, I was mature enough to realize that it is not enough to vanish completely into a role, that there must be the stamp of individuality to give it validity. In that role, I had no props of eccentricity, such as I had had in the movie parts, but it was a very happy experience."

Her friendship with Drake, which began with that Broadway engagement, later was to result in her introduction to and complete fascination with the work of Christopher Fry, author of "The Lady's Not for Burning."

"It was in 1950 that Alfred and his wife brought a copy of this play to our apartment. They and my husband and I sprawled on the living room floor and read the various parts. With one reading, I was lost, completely."

She didn't know that a chance to play the role would come her way a few years later. It was in La Jolla, Calif., where a theatrical group planned to present the comedy.

"I immediately asked for the role, but instead they wanted me to play 'Affairs of State.' Well, I did that, but I didn't give up on the other, and finally I did play it. Later, the whole cast went up to San Francisco and presented it there."

IN ST. LOUIS, she is co-starred with Vincent Price, who played opposite her in the La Jolla and San Francisco engagements and with whom she also went on tour three seasons ago in T. S. Eliot's "The Cocktail Party."

"Vinnie and I have come to stand for culture—with a capital C," she laughed.

Even though she has appeared more often on the stage than on the screen in the past few years, Marsha maintains her home in the San Fernando Valley, not far from Hollywood. She is married to Robert Presnell Jr., a writer, and is stepmother to 14-year-old Peter.

"I have been thrust rather suddenly into this career of stepmotherhood," she smiled, "because Peter has come to stay with us. Now I'm exposed to all sorts of jet airplane conversations, and information about baseball and basketball and other sports. I'm afraid I'm not very much of a sports fan."

But even though she's willing for Peter to be the athlete of the family, Marsha unwittingly won a brief reputation as a hardy soul when she was appearing in "Affairs of State."

"There was an Oriental rug tacked down over the other carpet, and I noticed that one of the actors had tripped over it in a previous scene so I was determined to be careful. But five minutes later, I had forgotten all about it and was making a fast cross when whump! I fell flat on my face.

"It happened so fast that I kept on saying the line lying prone on the floor. Now what was that line? As I recall, it was a beauty. Anyway, another actor came over and picked me up and said, 'Are you hurt?' I said, 'No I don't think so, but, you know, I've been planning to have that rug tacked down for a week now.'

"Well, I got numerous letters from people wanting to know whether that was an accident. One woman said she didn't understand how I could do that nine times a week. Another wrote rather accusingly that she had come back the next night just to see me and 'you didn't fall that time.'

"I wish I could think of the line because it was so appropriate. . . . Oh, yes, I remember now. Just as I fell, I was saying, 'I like it here!'"

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IT would be foolish to disparage the value of slam conventions, including the Blackwood and ace-showing cue bids, but there is no denying that at times the old-fashioned "general-direction method" is the best of all. The great flaw in most of the conventional slam-bidding methods is that the opponents can sometimes throw a very annoying wrench into the machinery. Here's a too-typical illustration:

South, dealer.

	♠A1096 ♥A7 ♦QJ943 ♣K5
♠5 ♥9643 ♦A72 ♣QJ1086	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠74 ♥KQ1082 ♦865 ♣942
	♠KQJ832 ♥J5 ♦K10 ♣A73

This was the bidding in a rubber game:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♠	Pass
4N.T.	Pass	5♥	D'ble
5♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The moment East had the chance to double hearts and ask for that lead, the North-South slam opportunity vanished, and they did well to subside at the five-level and take their game. Yet, it is worth observing that the only lead that could stop a slam was the heart lead, and so there is considerable room for debate about whether or not the slam should have been bid if the killing opening had not been announced to the enemy.

On a straight mathematical basis there can be no doubt about it—with three suits unbid, it would be two to one that West would not select the fatal heart lead, and indeed, the odds would be even better than two to one, since a trump opening (though not good) is by no means unheard of.

Thus, it is a fair summation that Blackwood turned out to be an unfortunate device in this case, since it opened the way to the heart double. The same would have held true of a heart cue bid, to show that specific ace; i. e., East again would have doubled. Only the "unscientific" way of bidding — with South jumping from three spades to five spades and North then bidding six spades — would have kept the enemy in the dark.

Child's Character

By Angelo Patri

THE home of today is not exactly suited for the basic character training of its children. What with so many mothers working in shops, offices and factories, in activities outside the homes; what with the temptations that lie on every hand, children need all the supporting strength that home and society can lend them. Yet, too many times a parent does not know where her child is, and if that child is to be kept out of trouble both parents should be concerned of his whereabouts.

School helps in this, as in many other social situations, but the school day ends early and there are many hours between dismissal and the arrival of mother or father from work. Where do the children spend those hours and with whom? We must know and we must see that the place, the atmosphere, the doings and the people are what would be good for the growth of the child's character.

"COME ON HOME WITH ME. Aw, come on. There's lots of time yet before anybody is home," and the child goes off with his schoolmate. That may be just fine and again it may not and it is the deep concern of the parents whether it is good for the child in question.

Then there are the shows. "I have the tickets. Come along and we'll have some fun."

"But my mother won't like it."

"Aw, she won't know. You don't have to tell everything you know, do you?"

Plainly that is not good, but then, how is the mother to know that, until one day something turns up that indicates plenty of trouble?

THE TRIPS IN THE FAMILY CAR are something to think seriously about. There are young people who can be trusted with a car, can be trusted to go where they say they are going and to do what they say they are going to do, and there are others whose word cannot be taken. It is the plain duty of parents to concern themselves about what their children do after school, and in their spare time, to know where they are and with whom they are and what goes on there.

A busy young person is a safely occupied one, usually, so if the school and the parents get together and form a program of work, play and study that guides the young people into safe ways, there will be fewer tragedies. A full day, a friendly co-operation between school and pupils, home and school and children, will go a long way toward a healthy mental, moral and physical growth in children. But we must know where they are and with whom and what goes on there.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER asks my advice on the following matter: "Several years ago I gave a gift to a friend of mine in appreciation for a good turn she did me. It was a very lovely piece of jewelry. This friend, of whom I was very fond, died recently, and as the present was purely a personal one, could I ask her husband to give it back to me to keep as a rememberance of her?"

You might say to her husband, "If there is no one to whom you want to give that piece of jewelry, which I gave to Mary, I would like very much to have it, because it is to me so closely associated with my memories of her."

DEAR MRS. POST: Are there any rules about who lights whose cigarette when several people start smoking at the same time? Let's say a man offers his cigarette case to several others with whom he is sitting before taking one himself. Is he then supposed to get up and go the rounds lighting these cigarettes before lighting his own?

Answer: He would offer a light to the woman (or women) nearest him. Beyond these, in most cases, another man lights additional cigarettes of those farther away or the women perhaps light their own before he can reach them.

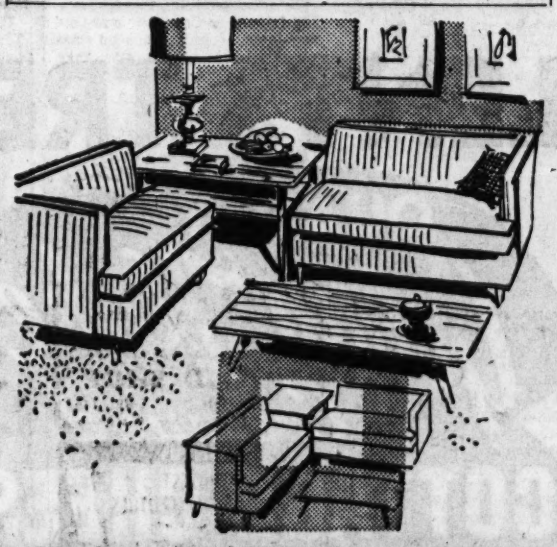
Cure for Crowded Corner

By Elizabeth Hillyer



TRY a longer table in the corner with an arrangement of sectional furniture. It does wonders. It cures crowding—actually makes it possible for at least one extra person to join the corner conversation grouping and sit comfortably.

When the table in the corner is the usual square, the corner edges of seating pieces meet and create a knee probelm. Two persons at the corner ends bump knees and have half as much room for their feet as they need.

The longer table moves one sectional unit enough inches away from the other to make sure of extra space comfort.

Oddly enough, it's a table that gives the room more seating area. The table can very well include a practical shelf, and in a table this long the shelf is easy to reach, as a lower shelf on a square tabel can't be.

Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?"—a quick check list of room faults and how to correct them—a booklet that contains so much information it's a short course in practical decorating. For your copy, address Miss Hillyer at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 15 cents with your request.

Freedom for Fathers and Husbands

By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S the same old rumpus down at the Wilson house—shall or shall not Dad be allowed "a night or two out with the boys."

Mom says he shouldn't. After a good supper and a nice rest he should be content with his clean, pretty home and family.

Dad naturally has different ideas and so have most of the teen-age kids. "Mother wants to keep us all under her wing," they declare.

So the battle is on—as it is in many a home. Well, who's right? Should Dad be tied to Mom's apron strings? Or has he certain inalienable rights as a free, white American citizen?

Me? I'm for Dad. Don't worry, Mom, if he swings an occasional elastic ankle come Saturday. He'll cherish the home hours all the more for that taste of freedom.

As a matter of fact, fathers and husbands would probably be far more amiable and home-loving if they were allowed to run on a looser leash.

For liberty is the basis of all decent human nature. Shut a man or woman away from all human companionship and you'll have a sad and vicious character. Male or female, we need to get out and kick up our heels as much as we need to breathe.

Reasonable freedom for all of us, say I!

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"VIRTUE IS ITS OWN REWARD."

"WHEN the prizes fall to the lot of the wicked, you will not find many who are virtuous for virtue's sake." The author of this cynical statement was the Roman historian, Sallust, who lived from 86 to 34 B. C. Very similar sentiments are expressed by our correspondent in asking about "Virtue is its own reward!"

However, the argument is not one-sided. It seems every language, as well as every century of whose literature there is record, presents different ways of saying that virtue is, or should be its own reward. Prior and Poge among the poets in English, Montaigne in French, sing of the joys of practicing virtue for its own sake.

Except for Montaigne, the aphorisms date chiefly from the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, a time when the writers of the West were on better terms with the classical roots of their language.

It seems in this saying they reflected the wisdom of the ancients. Plato was reported to have said, "Beauty, goodness, justice and the like, each exists in and for itself." The stoic philosopher, Zeno, is quoted in similar vein. Then came the Latin writers, including Ovid and Seneca. "You ask what I seek from virtue," the latter wrote. "Itself. For virtue has nothing better to give; its value is in itself."

Delicious Salmon Loaf

Ingredients: One one-pound can salmon, two-thirds cup evaporated milk, two cups soft bread crumbs, one egg (well beaten), one tablespoon minced parsley, two tablespoons minced onion, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon chili powder, one-eighth to one-fourth teaspoon tabasco sauce.

Method: Turn salmon, including liquid in can, into mixing bowl; add evaporated milk and bread crumbs; mix with a fork until blended. Add egg, parsley, onion, salt, chili powder and tabasco; mix well. Turn into well greased loaf pan, about 7½ by 3½ by 2½ inches. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees F.) oven 40 minutes or until center is firm. Serve with Parsley Sauce. Makes four servings.

If you ever have to break out a piece of window glass, put a piece of tape over it so that it won't shatter.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

LAST time I wrote about the wonder which a "Man From Mars" might feel if he heard that a caterpillar changes into a butterfly. Even if Mars has plant life, it may be without insects. If it does have insects, they probably differ widely from those of the earth.

The milkweed caterpillar is widely known. It feeds only on milkweed plants. It has a smooth skin, with bands of black and yellow. After eating for 10 or 11 days, it goes into the cocoon, or pupa, stage of its life.

SOME CATERPILLARS stay inside cocoons all through winter. Others come out in less than two weeks.

The cocoon stage of the milkweed caterpillar may last as little as 12 days. When the cocoon breaks open, out comes a monarch butterfly. The monarch is one of the beauties of the butterfly world.

Moths, as well as butterflies, go through the caterpillar and cocoon stages. One moth caterpillar is the "woolly bear."

Woolly bears are known far and wide. Sometimes they are taken to school by pupils. The teacher may help them to carry out a project.

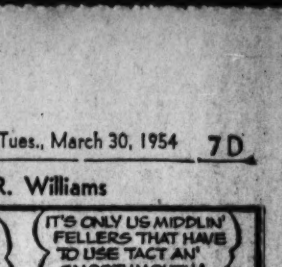
THANKS TO ITS WARM, furry coat, the woolly bear can live outdoors, in a sheltered spot, through a cold winter. Usually it waits until April or May before spinning a silken covering.



A WOOLY BEAR AND THE COCOON (RIGHT) WHICH IT SPINS FOR ITSELF.

A woolly bear caterpillar eats dandelion leaves, as well as clover and grass. Such plants are kept growing in a box in some school rooms for the use of the caterpillars.

A cold, or at least cool, winter home is suggested for hairy bears. They are all too likely to die inside a warm room. Now and then one of them, kept in a warm room, will spin its cocoon in autumn instead of spring.

WOMAN SCORNED

by Vida Hurst

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN.

MADELEINE'S phone call was from Dick Monroe. "Ilsa said you wanted to talk to me," he said as if an explanation were necessary.

"I want to keep in touch with both of you," she reminded him. "Even if I'm not living at the apartment any more." His lack of response made her add anxiously. "I was sorry I couldn't make it last night. What did you do?"

"The usual. Played records and talked."

"My godmother announced her engagement to Milton Lindsay. She wanted me here to meet her friends."

"She said you had gone out for dinner."

"You mean your called me last night?"

"Ilsa did. Some of the crowd insisted on talking to you."

He seemed determined to put her in the wrong. But how could she explain her absence after telling him Laurel wanted her at home? "I suppose you were out with that character who helped you move," Dick continued.

"We didn't plan it that way. It just happened. The party was practically over and they were so much older. After all I had to eat somewhere."

"You needn't explain. You are free to do as you please."

"I'd much rather have been with you," she continued wondering if it were true because in spite of everything that had happened it had been a thrilling evening. Ashamed of her duplicity she added, "Tyler is Laurel's nephew. I can't avoid seeing him occasionally."

THE door of Laurel's room opened and the swish of a taffeta housecoat could be heard from the telephone table at the foot of the stairs. "I'd rather not discuss this over the phone," Madeleine said wondering how much her godmother had heard. "Why don't you come out this evening?"

A moment later Madeleine faced her godmother guiltily. "I hope I didn't disturb you."

"It doesn't matter," Laurel smiled. "I should have been up anyway since we're going shopping today. I suppose you were talking to the young man who offered to bring you over here."

Madeleine nodded. "Yes, it was Dick Monrose. He works at the music store. You saw him the day you went down to look for me."

"It doesn't matter who he is," Laurel said gently. "It's always wiser to let the man in the case do the pursuing. What I mean is the calling or coming to see you should be instigated by him. It never helps to seem too eager. So far as my nephew is concerned no one is forcing you to go out with him. Tyler is too popular to spend much time with any one girl. I don't think he'll be here often enough to prove annoying."

"I shouldn't have spoken about him as I did but Dick has insisted we couldn't continue our friendship after I left the apartment. Neither could be understand why I wasn't here last night after telling Ilsa you wanted me here for the cocktail party," Madeleine attempted to explain.

"You mean he telephoned to check up on you? I don't recall any man calling. I answered the telephone myself and it only rang once."

"It was Ilsa who called but they were together. The whole crowd meets at the apartment and plays records on Sunday evenings."

LAUREL was arranging the telephone pad and pencil which Madeleine had displaced. "That's nice," she said absently. "Will you please ask Clara to bring my breakfast right away? And be ready to leave by 10. We've so much shopping to do today. Your practicing will have to wait."

Madeleine wanted to ask about getting her piano out of storage and putting it in the empty room in the garage but obviously this was not the proper moment. Laurel had a single track mind and it was useless to try to switch it. There was a time for everything just as everything had its place.

Madeleine told herself she had learned one valuable lesson. Never to say anything over the telephone she didn't want overheard. Neither could she confide in Laurel about the kiss Tyler had forced upon her. She would have to take care of that situation herself. She had forgotten that Clara had been roused by Madeleine's cry but Clara would not forget it.

Also, although she didn't realize it yet, Clara's attitude toward Madeleine had changed. Clara had disapproved the idea of the girl joining the family as she did most things her employer did but now she had decided the girl needed her protection. Clara would rally to her side in case of trouble which she confidently expected. "You can't mix oil and water," Clara said to Mrs. Malone who nodded approvingly but had no idea what she meant.
